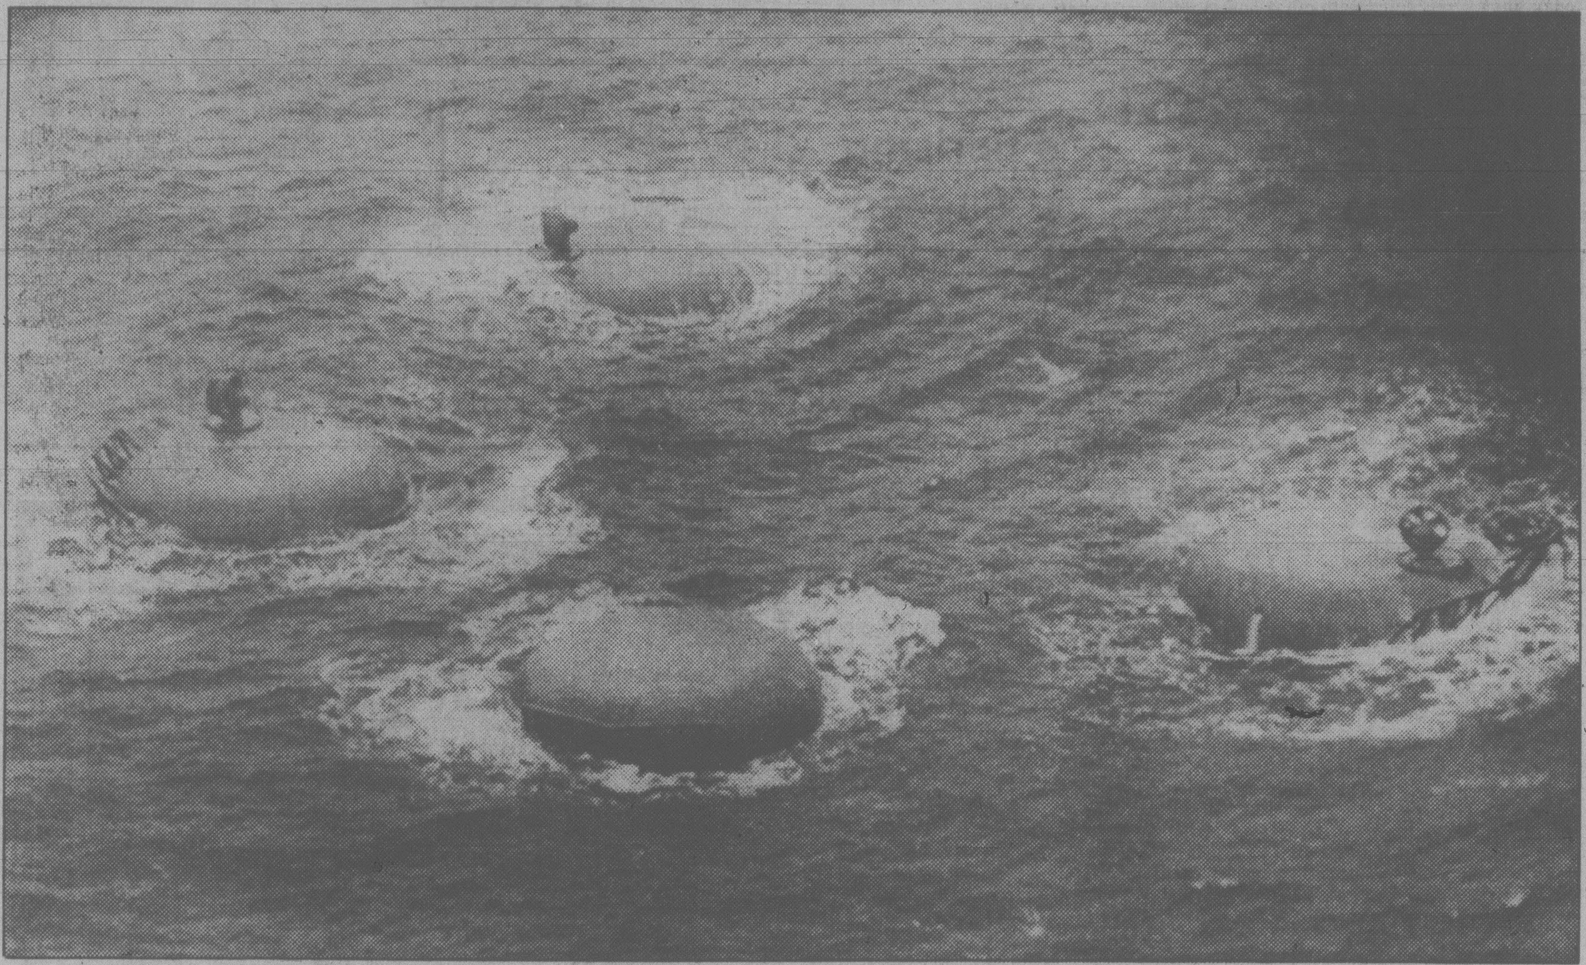
Oil rig disaster toll mounting



Four remaining legs of belly-up oil platform show on surface as divers desperately search below for survivors

Armada combs icy North Sea

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Divers today hammered on the hull of a capsized platform used as a floating hostel for workers looking for survivors of the worst disaster in the history of the North Sea oilfields.

With 139 men now reported dead or missing, the biggest rescue operation since the Second World War was under way with more than 2,000 people manning scores of ships, planes and helicopters.

Divers, operating at depths of up to 27 metres and using underwater television cameras, were checking for signs of life in the platform's submerged living quarters.

"They are hammering on the hull but so far there has been no response from inside," said Per Erik Bjorklund, spokesman for the Phillips Peroleum Co. which leased the 10,000-ton Alexander I. Kielland. "We are giving every priority to the search for survivors."

Tugs were standing by to latch onto the rig. Norwegian helicopters ferried dozens of survivors to hospitals here. Most escaped serious injury but are being treated for exposure.

Revised figures show there were 228 workers on board the platform when one of the five legs collapsed Thursday night during a storm that produced winds up to 96 kilometres an hour and six-metre waves. The rig listed briefly before overturning in 73-metres of icy water 160 kilometres west of Norway.

Phillips Petroleum listed 101 men still missing, 38 bodies recovered and a total of 89 workers rescued. Previously 149 survivors had been reported.

Visibility in the search area was described as good with dwindling winds after poor weather in the morning. But rough weather is forecast for later in the day.

At least 46 ships have been deployed in the search over 10,400 square kilometres in the Edda oilfield on Norway's continental shelf. Planes and helicopters from Britain, West Germany, Denmark and Norway joined the rescue.

Most of the workers aboard the platform were working, sleeping in the hotel or watching a movie when it capsized.

"There was an almighty crack . . . then chaos," said Tony Sylvester, a British rig worker briefly trapped in the hotel's movie theatre.

"It suddenly toppled right over and everybody was in the sea," said Sylvester, 35, a father of three from Grimsby, England. "Everybody was climbing up to the top that could make it and clinging on. Nobody knew what to do."

Many of the missing were feared trapped in the overturned rig.

Olav Forsheim, a Norwegian rig worker, also was watching the movie. "We were all thrown back against the wall, and the light went out, leaving us in complete darkness."

People panicked as they started for the doors, which soon became jammed, he said. Men not inside the cinema grabbed life jackets or just hurled themselves into the water, looking for a raft, he added.

In London, the British foreign office said among those aboard the platform were 170 Norwegians, 35 Britons, three Finns, one Spaniard and one Portuguese.

An investigation has been ordered into the disaster, the second of its type in the North Sea. In December, 1965, the British Petroleum drilling rig Sea Gem collapsed during a storm with the loss of 13 lives.

The Sea Gem collapse was subsequently blamed on a fatigue fracture in one of the legs.

One British government specialist told the London Evening News newspaper that sea water might have seeped into a crack in one of the buoyancy tanks of the Alexander I. Kielland and upset the rig's stability.

In Paris, the French firm that built the platform, Compagnie Francaise d'Enterprises Metalliques, said 11 identical rigs are in operation throughout the world and are "renowned for their stability."

Mountain spews gas, ash

SPIRIT LAKE, Wash. (UPI) — Sulfur gas and ashes from erupting Mount St. Helens plumed three kilometres into the sky today and spread over a wide area.

Observers, fearful of a full-scale volcanic eruption, moved back farther down the mountain.

The 2,950-metre volcano, 80 kilometres northeast of Portland, Ore., which has been dormant since 1857, exploded to life Thursday with a loud boom in the first volcanic eruption in the continental United States since California's Mount Lassen erupted in 1914.

Although no lava had yet been sighted on the mountain, observers were moved beyond an eight-kilometre radius. the intense heat from two crescent-shaped fissures across the top of the mountain — one five kilometres long, the other 1,500 metres long — melted the volcano's snow pack and sent water cascading down the slopes.

A U.S. Forest Service plane spotted the blackened plume of ash and gas at 3 a.m. PST rising 300 metres above the mountain. Within 30 minutes the vertical column had risen 2,000 metres above the cone-shaped peak, which has been compared in beauty with Japan's Mount Fujiyama.

Don Swanson, a scientist with the U.S. Geological Survey who was aboard the plane, said the craft flew through the plume to get a look at the crater.

He said they noticed "a terrible rotten egg smell" from the sulfur fumes and steam.

Ash was falling eight kilometres from the crescent-shaped fissures near the volcano's summit, and officials said "an avalanche of ash" flowed down the peak's northwest flank. A steam cloud from the inferno rose 3,000 metres above the summit and floated at least 30 kilometres in a southeasterly direction.

Sgt. Dallas Reel of the Cowlitz County sheriff's office, on duty at a roadblock about 13 kilometres south of the base of the mountain, said he was in radio contact with a newspaper crew on the north side of the peak when they reported at 1:48 a.m. that "the mountain was spewing stuff out."

Reel said he and another deputy went to the base of the mountain where they could see the column of smoke and ash.

"But the main thing was the sound effects," Reel said. "It was rumbling, cracking and banging. It was unnerving."

Asked if it was frightening, Reel replied:

"That's why we moved the road block down here," to Cougar, about 17 kilometres from the base of the peak.

A crew of four or five was stationed at Swift Dam, 11 kilometres from the base of the mountain. It is the closest of three Pacific Power and Light Co. dams on the Lewis River that were lowered to handle any increased runoffs resulting from mudslides and melting snow.

Residents of Cougar and of Toutle River, about 55 kilometres from the volcano's base, were warned to be ready for possible evacuation because of the latest explosion.

But Dot Elmire, owner of the Cougar store, said she would not leave "unless a lot of ash starts falling."

Shaken by a week of many earthquakes in the range of 4 on the Richter scale and smaller tremors too numerous to count, the cone-shaped mountain first blew its warning Thursday. Officials immediately evacuated several hundred loggers, Forest Service personnel and residents .

Thursday's eruption touched off snow avalanches and spewed ash 55 kilometres away. A murky steam curled into the sky. No one was hurt.

Scientists have said the greatest danger from a full-scale eruption would be gigantic mud slides moving at 80 to 95 km/h, clogging streams and creating the problem of possible downriver floods.

Most of the 250,000 people in the mountain's three-county area of Southwest Washington live more than 30 kilometres from the peak.

Gloom and doom forecast too cheerful: economist

Visit the stars

Marsha Mason, who has been nominated for an Academy Award this year, is the public half of a powerful husband-and-wife team.

Husband Neil Simon writes comedies while she stars in them when the plays are turned into movies.

It was a bit of a surprise in 1978 when she was nominated best actress for her performance opposite Richard Dreyfuss in The Goodbye Girl. Dreyfuss won an Oscar for his performance in the movie.

This year Mason is back and has a better chance with her portrayal of a man's second wife in the Neil Simon movie Chapter Two, apparently vaguely based on Simon's life story.

Mason has tough competition, however, from Sally Field, Jane Fonda, Jill Clayburgh and newcomer Bette Midler.

The Victoria Times and VI*90 are offering readers a chance to win a trip for two to Hollywood via CP Air with weekend accommodations for correctly predicting the Oscar winners for best actress, best actor and best movie.

A full list of rules and the official entry form are printed in an advertisement on page 16 today.

The Academy Awards will be announced April 14.

OTTAWA — While the nation was wringing its hands this week over the Conference Board in Canada's most pessimistic economic forecast in 26 years, its author was privately confessing the board had not gone nearly far enough.

"To tell the truth, we've been too optimistic," said Thomas Maxwell, the board's chief economist in an interview.

In fact, the board — one of the country's half dozen most influential economic institutions — has a track record of being too cheerful in its forecasts, he admitted sadly. And it looks like it's happened again.

The board is officially predicting, for instance, that the cost of living will go up by 9.7 per cent this year. But none of its economists really believe the country can make it through 1980 without hitting double-digit inflation.

For the record, it is predicting an unemployment rate of 7.8 per cent — one of Canada's better showings since the mid-1970s. But Maxwell said the official unemployment figure hides as much as it tells.

Many companies are hanging on to employees they don't really need in the hope that business will pick up in a year or so. At the same time, serious shortages of skilled workers are developing in some industries, while others have reached the stage where they have little choice but to contemplate massive lay-offs.

One of the glaring question marks in the Conference Board forecast is its treatment of oil prices.

Until the board officially hears otherwise, its policy is to assume — on the record, at least — that oil prices are going up by $1-per-barrel every six months, just as they always have. Maxwell knows that is nonsense.

So, instead of the 0.3 per cent jump built into the board's inflation forecast for this summer's oil price jump, he figures the new Liberal government's soon-to-be-announced oil price regime will mean a jump of at least 0.7 to 0.8 per cent in the consumer price index.

But there is a matter which supersedes any of these statistical underestimates. The old economic measures don't tell the whole truth anymore.

On the surface, for instance, it looks as if Canada is doing a dramatically better job of fighting inflation than the United States, which this week reported an 18-per-cent rise in price levels. Canada's current inflation rate is 9.4 per cent.

Dramatic comeback for stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market scored a dramatic comeback this morning after a massive wave of panic-selling pushed it to its most spectacular nosedive on record Thursday.

The Toronto Stock Exchange index of 300 selected stocks jumped 74.66 to 1,777.17 by mid-afternoon in moderately active trading.

All 14 stock groups in the composite index advanced, led by oil and gas, which soared 211.49 points to 3768.53.

Beset by crashing prices on precious metals markets and soaring interest rates, the market plunged 95.65 points to 1702.51 Thursday, wiping almost $6 billion off the market value of companies listed on the exchange.

It was the worst daily plunge since the Toronto Stock Exchange started keeping daily records Jan. 1, 1976, surpassing the drop of 82.56 points on March 17.

In the aftermath of Thursday's sell-off, the Toronto Stock Exchange announced this morning that margin requirements — the amount of money required from investors as a down payment when they borrow money from stockbrokers to buy securities — will be reduced to 50 per cent from 60 per cent, effective April 7.

Roller wins on red

HAMILTON (CP) — Although he admitted going through a red light, a Hamilton man skated around the law in traffic court Thursday when a justice of the peace ruled that his roller skates were not a vehicle.

The skater, Michael Magee, a 22-year-old pinball machine repairman, was charged last January by a city policeman for failing to yield after he saw him skate through a red light in downtown Hamilton.

But Justice of the Peace Clayton Gledhill dismissed the charge after Crown Prosecutor Arnold Renshaw conceded that a roller skater is a pedestrian.

Bomb rips unity sign

MONTREAL (CP) — A small time-bomb blew a foot-square hole in a Canadian unity billboard early this morning, police said.

Constable Mario D'Arcy said the bomb exploded overnight and was discovered around 7:30 a.m. No one was injured. The bomb was in a pipe about a foot long.

The billboard, rented by the Pro-Canada Foundation, said J'y suis, J'y reste, pour ma securite. (I'm here and I'm staying here for my security).

CP strike mediation begins

Federal mediators Thursday launched exploratory talks between Canadian Pacific and the Seafarers' International Union in a bid to end the SIU strike.

Federal Labor Minister Gerald Regan announced the appointments of mediators Don Crabbe, who earlier booked out of the dispute, and Mike Collins, who is booking out of a dispute involving the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

The strike by about 60 members of the Seafarers International Union began Monday, shutting down the CP marine service between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Commodities involved include food, general merchandise, coal, sulphur, liquefied propane gas, machinery and paper products.

So far the extra traffic generated by the strike has been easily handled by B.C. Ferries.

A spokesman said today that commercial traffic was heavy on early morning sailings between Vancouver Island and the Mainland, but the crush tapered off by mid-morning.

The traffic pattern was much the same Thursday.

An extra sailing of the truck ferry Queen of Alberni carried 45 "drops" — semi-trailers without tractors — on one trip and 48 on the return trip.

The extra capacity of the ferry was filled with other commercial traffic and overheight vehicles.

Provincial Transport Minister Alex Fraser said the ferry corporation has been told by the SIU that the union has no objection to the extra run because it has no argument with the corporation or trucking firms.

The CP workers want wage parity with workers in the West Coast tugboat industry and are seeking a wage increase of $1.08 an hour on a base rate of $8.49. CP has offered 74 cents an hour.

Irate spud farmers blockade border

HOULTON, Maine (UPI) — Hundreds of angry potato farmers today ignored a warning from Gov. Joseph E. Brennan and blockaded traffic at nine Canadian border crossings for a second straight day to force the U.S. government to stop imports of cheaper foreign spuds.

More than 200 farmers were gathered at Houlton, another 175 were at Madawaska and hundreds more were at the seven other blockade points, police said.

No traffic was able to cross the international line at any of the blockade points. Crossings outside the farming area were not affected.

The farmers' action has brought promises from the White House that the administration will reconsider a $15 million government program to buy excess potato stocks that would allow the farmers to recoup some of their losses.

On Thursday the farmers dumped barrels of rotten potatoes onto roads, including Interstate 95, throughout the state's huge northern farming area. Then they parked empty tractor-trailers, pickup trucks, tractors and other vehicles in the travel lanes.

A Canadian flag was burned by the protesters.

The governor allowed the blockades for more than 12 hours Thursday, but Brennan finally ordered state police to move in with heavy equipment to tow away the vehicles blocking I-95 at Houlton.

Dozens of officers lined I-95 during the towing operation to prevent interference. Two farmers were arrested, one of whom suffered a head injury.

That crossing was blocked again overnight and traffic was cut off as farmers maintained their vigil into a second day and promised to stay through the weekend.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, said he has received promises from Vice-President Walter Mondale and the Commerce Department that the farmers' requests will be considered.

Muskie has told Congress denial of a federal aid program "will cause severe economic consequences."

Although Brennan said he would not tolerate any more traffic interference, the farmers made it clear they were not ready to quit.

What the figures don't reveal is that the two countries use quite different yardsticks. The Statistics Canada system is to add all the monthly price increases for the last year to come up with the latest 12-month inflation rate. In the United States, the government takes the latest monthly figure and multiplies it by 12 for the annual rate. Another important difference is that mortgage rates play a much larger role in U.S. calculations.

These technical differences didn't used to matter a great deal. Prices and mortgages tended to increase on a relatively stable month-to-month basis. But in recent months, energy prices and mortgage rates have charged ahead throwing the old parallels into disarray.

Maxwell estimates the U.S. inflation rate would be 13 per cent, if that country used the Canadian system.

And that 13 per cent takes into account the fact that Americans have already advanced well along the path toward higher energy prices — a process Canada has not yet begun.

The unemployment rate is similarly flawed.

For one thing, it hides the fact that many workers who are now officially working are, in fact, virtually sitting on their hands at factories across the country because their companies have no work for them. Instead of laying employees off, firms are hanging on to as large a work force as they can, hoping for better times ahead.

"With the high cost of rehiring and the lost worker loyalty, it makes sense for a company to let its profits drop rather than give up its workers," Mawell said. "They're taking the long-run view, trying to stick it out for one or two bad years. Some are even giving their people generous wage settlements."

The unemployment rate has also become an unreliable indicator of the suffering caused by joblessness in the country. Twenty years ago, it was a fairly clear signal of pain, but in those days it showed mainly how many breadwinners were out pounding the pavement for jobs.

No longer. Since the early 60s huge numbers of women and young people have descended on the job market. Many of them were inexperienced and took a long time to find work. During the same period, the government introduced unemployment insurance, relieving much of the financial burden of joblessness.

The unemployment rate soared. But its meaning had changed. Comparisons between today's 7.4 per cent unemployment and the rates of a decade ago are all but useless.

Another assumption people used to blithely make was that the economy would grow every year. The Conference Board's forecast of zero growth for 1980 proves how wrong that can be. Other analysts are even gloomier. The Toronto investment firm of Dominion Securities says the economy is going to shrink by 1.2 per cent this year. Burns Fry Ltd., another large investment company is calling for a 0.9 per cent drop in the country's level of production.

"What you're looking at is a set of policy concerns altogether different than 10 years ago," Maxwell said. "The name of the game has changed."

Singapore man jailed for spying

SINGAPORE (Reuter) — A Singapore foreign office employee has been sentenced to 10 years in jail after being convicted of passing secrets to a Soviet woman spy who seduced and then blackmailed him in Moscow. Miss Maluba threatened to tell Wee's wife about the affair if he did not pass on secret information to her, the court heard.

Snake-girl uprising quelled

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (UPI) — Riot police used tear gas to disperse a crowd from a church where they believed a creature that was half-girl, half-snake was hiding, a local newspaper reported today.

The Rev. Guillermo Rodriguez told El Listin Diario that a crowd formed outside Santo Domingo's Santo Cura de Ars church early Wednesday muttering about rumors that a "girl turned serpent" was inside.

As the day progressed the crowd of men, women and children grew, and so did the details of the rumor. Eventually the crowd believed that a girl had been swallowed by a snake with "sparks coming out of its mouth."

"The crowd tried to force the gates of the church and we were forced to call the police," Rodriguez told the paper.

The paper said the crowd refused to move and riot police known as the "Black Helmets" used tear gas to disperse the crowd. Some people also were beaten and arrested, the paper said.

$7½M cost hike if ferries can't use Active Pass

By JAKE BANKY

If ferries travelling between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen were forced to abandon the route through Active Pass and take the long way around it would add an extra cost of $7.5 million a year, B.C. Ferry Corp. general manager Charles Gallagher said Thursday.

Testifying before the legislature's committee on Crown corporations, Gallagher said if the number of small boats using Active Pass continues to increase: "We will have no choice but to go around East Point."

He estimates such a move would add 30 minutes to the trip and cost the ferry system an extra $7.5 million a year.

'Trikes on road'

"Allowing small boats free run of Active Pass is like allowing children with tricycles on a main highway," Gallagher told the committee.

"Ferry captains are concerned that with the proliferation of small boat traffic and the lack of control. Sooner or later somebody is going to get run down."

Coquitlam-Moody NDP MLA Stuart Leggatt suggested pleasure boats could be restricted to safe areas of Active Pass by use of marker buoys.

But Gallagher said this would not be effective.

"When you've got a fish on the line, you forget. That's human nature."

A briefing paper prepared for the committee criticized the Ferry Corp. for lack of long-range planning.

Gallagher admitted a certain amount of frustration in planning because ferry management does not set fares and therefore there is no certainty that necessary funds will be available.

At present, management makes recommendations on fares to the board of directors and the board must then take its proposals to the cabinet for approval.

The government has promised to establish a Public Utilities Commission and Gallagher raised no objection to the suggestion that the PUC should rule on future ferry fare increases.

He gave no details of fare increase proposals currently before the board.

Management forecasts both passenger and vehicle traffic on the ferries will increase at a rate of seven per cent per annum, so that by 1990, the service will be required to carry double the traffic it now handles.

Gallagher also said the Horseshoe Bay terminal cannot be expanded further and it is increasingly unlikely the Iona Island-Gabriola Island transportation corridor — first proposed in 1962 — will ever become a reality.

Vancouver South Socred MLA Peter Hyndman suggested a tunnel under the Strait of Georgia might not be as far out as many have suggested.

Gallagher said he is forced to agree a tunnel might be a good idea.

"It has disadvantages," he said, "but it is technically feasible."

Gallagher offered no solution for the fact that ferries usually travel with their car decks full but their passenger space half empty.

Little incentive

However he pointed out that two people plus their car can make the trip between Vancouver Island and the mainland for $15 while the bus trip for two cost $12.50.

"The extra $2.50 is not a disincentive to leave the car behind," Gallagher said.

He also told the committee that food on the ferries is not likely to improve.

The trend will be to prepared food and self-service.

"It is inevitable that as efficiency increases — larger numbers of people being moved at greater speeds — food service will become more and more impersonal."

NDP members pressed the question of low morale among ferry workers, particularly among captains.

Gallagher denied reports that captains have been put under pressure to stick strictly to schedule or that the job performance evaluation system used by the corporation treats employees as ciphers.

Low job-loss

"We have a lower job-loss record, in percentage terms of man-hours worked, than any other organization in B.C. if that's a reflection of morale," he said.

Another management representative, Norm Thornber, said much of the poor morale can be blamed on troubles within the ferry union and not on problems between union and management.

Skeena NDP MLA Frank Howard served notice he will bring in a motion calling for a joint union-management study on the feasibility of having employee representatives sit on the Ferry Corp. board of directors.

The meeting was the first public session of the committee since the last provincial election.

No date was set for the next sitting but the ferry corporation will still be in the hot seat when the committee reconvenes.

Committee chairman Jack Kempf (SC-Omineca), promised board members will be available at that time to answer questions on policy.

Experts fear toxic spill causing death of seals

There are fears that seals and other sea mammals found ill and dying recently may have been affected by a highly toxic chemical spilled from a merchant ship 80 miles off the coast of Oregon March 14, Sealand manager Angus Matthews said today.

He and Sealand veterinarian Dr. Allan Hoey went to Point-No-Point near Sooke today to take skin, fluid, urine and stomach samples from a dead Stellar sea lion which washed up on the shore.

The samples will be flown to the Marine Animal Resource Centre in Seattle, which has been carrying out autopsies on the beached mammals.

Matthews says vomiting, frothing at the mouth, tremors and convulsions make it highly suspect the mammals have been poisoned.

The sea lion at Point-No-Point was a male four-year-old, Matthews said.

A U.S. Coast Guard spokesman in Seattle confirmed the MV Falstria lost four containers of potassium titanium chloride — about 1,800 pounds — during a storm.

Matthews says the last report of animals being beached came from Moclips, about 30 miles north of Aberdeen, Wash.

Law practice not family

VANCOUVER (CP) — A legal practice cannot be a family asset, a county court judge ruled in refusing a claim by Mrs. Barbara Piters to have the interest of her husband in a law partnership constitute family assets.

Judge D.T. Wetmore said that if he was to declare the practice to be a family asset there would be a prima facie right to equal ownership entitling the non-professional spouse access to business files and confidential communications between solicitor and client.

"It would entitle that spouse to a voice in the policies of carrying on business in the practice of law without the professional sanctions upon that policy-making which is imposed on the professional," the judge said.

"The whole structure of the legal profession and its responsibility to the public is premised on the accountability of members of the profession to the act (the Legal Professions Act) and the governing body constituted under the act."

Bias against young in income benefits?

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's ombudsman is looking into the possibility that the human resources ministry improperly discriminates against younger recipients of benefits.

Dr. Karl Friedmann said he will investigate whether the age criterion used for income assistance under the guaranteed available income for need (GAIN) program is improperly discriminatory.

Friedmann made the statement in a letter to the Downtown Eastside Resident's Association.

Under GAIN, younger recipients receive generally lower benefits than older persons. Base rates are staggered from a minimum of $240 a month for a single male under 30 and increase to $295 for persons over 65.

Bruce Eriksen, president of DERA, said his organization requested the ombudsman investigate age discrimination because direct appeals to human resources yielded no results.

Absurdity over abortions

It really doesn't matter whether or not one believes that abortions should virtually never be allowed, should be allowed only under exceptional circumstances, or should be allowed on a relatively routine basis in unwanted pregnancies. No matter what one's personal beliefs on the intensely emotional subject of abortion, nearly everyone can agree that the current situation at Victoria's two major hospitals is just plain silly.

The problem begins with the Criminal Code which allows abortions to be performed legally if a therapeutic abortion committee appointed by an individual hospital agrees that continuing the pregnancy would threaten the life or health of the mother.

In the past few years, this has caused no difficulty in Victoria because both major hospitals have appointed committees that have interpreted the word "health" very broadly, including mental, emotional, and even social and economic health. The result has been that almost all abortion requests from doctors have been approved. Both hospitals have performed abortions, but Victoria General has taken the lion's share because it has a day-surgery facility particularly suitable for abortions.

This year, however, problems arose when Victoria General's hospital board appointed a new abortion committee. It is taking a much narrower definition of "health" than either its predecessor or the Jubilee's committee, and is approving abortions only where there is a demonstrated threat to a woman's physical or mental health. As a result, it is approving fewer than 10 per cent of the applications that come before it.

It is quite possible for either definition of "health" to be argued forcefully and convincingly. It is not possible to argue convincingly that the public is well served by having the two policies operating simultaneously and by the ridiculous bureaucratic machinations that the hospital boards and staffs are going through to try to make the two-policy system workable.

It does not, for example, make sense that, at the moment, Victoria General, which has by the far the more suitable facilities to perform abortions, is not performing them. The whole load is being taken by Jubilee — which needs every inch of its space to perform the more serious surgeries that are better done there than at Vic General.

It does not make sense that the true criterion for obtaining an abortion in Victoria at the moment has nothing to do with any definition of "health" but only with whether the woman can ensure that her doctor has hospital privileges at Jubilee instead of or as well as at Vic General.

Neither the doctors nor the board of either of the hospitals should be blamed for the current impasse. All of them are doing their best to make work at all a system which has proved to be unworkable.

The solution lies in changes to the federal abortion laws to ensure that the standards for abortion are uniform across a province, or, at the very least, across a region. Since no senior government wishes to take responsibility for an abortion policy, however, silliness and bureaucratic struggles will probably remain the order of the day.

Stern before bow

Pity poor Charles Gallagher, general manager of the B.C. Ferries.

Gallagher told the Legislature's standing committee on Crown corporations yesterday that he really would like to begin some long-term planning for the ferry fleet, but lack of information made it extremely difficult.

Gallagher, commenting on a committee research paper which criticized the ferry system for a total lack of longer-range planning, said such unknowns as fuel costs, fuel shortages and fare structures made it difficult for the system to determine what it would or should be doing in the future.

Gallagher is putting the cart before the horse — or the stern before the bow. The whole point of long-term planning for an association is for it to examine the likely variables over the next few years and develop strategies to cope with them.

In the ferry system, for instance, management should be considering how it will cope with keeping the system going if drastic fuel shortages do develop. It should be considering how it would shift to moving fewer cars and more foot and bus-passengers if gasoline prices or shortages led to decreases in the number of automobiles in the line-ups. It should be considering an appropriate over-all financing formula, incorporating both government subsidies and new fare structures.

If it does not begin planning now for these contingencies, it may well find itself suddenly confronted by them and having to plan on an emergency, ad hoc basis. Long-range plans are not written in stone, but they should offer guidelines to likely problems of the future.

For the ferry system, that planning can't start too soon.

WALTER STEWART

An election no one will win

WASHINGTON — Tuesday's primary results have made it clear who is going to win the 1980 U.S. Presidential race.

Nobody.

Like so many elections, this contest will not be won; it will be lost. The man in the White House next January will be whoever of three men — Edward Moore Kennedy, James Earl Carter or Ronald Wilson Regan — is the least repugnant to the voters.

On Tuesday, Sen. Kennedy walloped President Carter in two primaries in New York and Connecticut, in a large part because Jewish voters were furious over Carter's decision to order a vote against Israel on a UN resolution.

Carter's campaign chairman commented, "That resolution was a mistake, and it hurt us."

Polls showed that 10 per cent of those who voted in the New York primary were Jewish and they plumped 4-to-1 against Carter. The Jewish proportion of potential voters was 30 per cent. Ergo, it was the antis who turned up in the polling booths.

Written off

The Kennedy who won on Tuesday is the same lad who had been written off by pundits as a has-been the day before the primary, the same fellow who was regarded as a shoo-in last November.

The Carter who lost on Tuesday spent Monday night reading polls that had him 26 points ahead of Kennedy in New York (he actually lost by 16 points, 58 to 42). That was fair enough because similar polls a few months ago showed that the only way Carter was likely to get back into the White House next year was by paying 25 cents for the tour, like other out-of-town visitors.

On the Republican side, Regan, who lost in Connecticut to native son George Bush, is the odds-on favorite to take his party's nomination. There is no measure of popularity in the Republican primary for New York, but Regan has a solid grip on delegates from that state, and has more than three times as many committed delegates in total (321) as his nearest rival Bush (105). He needs 998 to lock up the nomination.

This awesome lead should make Regan nervous. The same experts who are telling him he has the thing wrapped up today were telling him after his loss in Iowa on Jan. 21 that he was through.

In Iowa, everyone was sore at Regan because he wouldn't come out and debate. So he fired his campaign director, dashed off a few more one-liners — "God isn't dead; we just can't talk to him in the classrooms" — polished up his smile, entered the Idaho debates and laid 'em.

However, he is still far from a popular fellow. "I'm going to vote for him," says Washington housewife Sally Latchford, "because I can't stand Carter. After all, there's always the chance that Regan will have a heart attack. He's pretty old."

RONALD REGAN
. . . is he the least objectionable?

There's a ringing endorsement.

The other day, a Washington newspaper ran a cartoon of the three top contenders in the guise of battered old used cars being looked over by a customer who complains to the car salesman, "You mean that's it?"

"Yep."

Friendly comments about the frontrunners always skid off the road at the last minute. Some samples: The New Republic on Regan: "He's not mean. He's as direct as Donald Duck."

The Washington Post on Kennedy: "A magnificent orator . . . who has yet to prove that he can communicate much more than his name."

The New Yorker on Carter: "As well qualified as any in the past three decades. . . Still, he remains a weak executive and a maladroit politician."

This isn't an election, it's a nose-holding contest.

Voter turn-outs are low for both presidential votes and primaries. In 1955, fewer than 55 per cent of those eligable cast a presidential vote, and the primary turn-outs are lower than that.

This trend not only indicates disenchantment; it gives a sharper edge to negative votes. The chance to throw the bum out is a stronger spur than the chance to throw in someone regarded as mediocre.

That is why the results have been up and down like a fever chart.

Kennedy was on top earlier because of Carter's economic ineptitude. The President inherited an inflation rate of five per cent and pushed it to 18. He appeared doomed.

Trouble in turn

But then Kennedy got into trouble. His evasions, confusions and contradictions about the tragedy at Chappaquiddick don't sound any better in 1980 than they did in 1969.

He, in turn, was in trouble and stayed there until Carter's blunder on the UN resolution.

The two men are at either end of a teeter-totter with a fulcrum of dislike and distaste. At the moment, the Kennedy end is rising again, a condition that may not survive the next primaries on April 1.

There are still 24 primaries to go; so far, they have given Carter 768 of the 1,666 committed delegates he needs, to Kennedy's 381.

The President is substantially ahead, but the contest is no longer a walk-away.

Regan appears to have the Republican nomination well in hand, but the groundswell of dislike for him hasn't really had a chance to build yet.

Perhaps Harold Stassen, working in the wings on his seventh try at the GOP title, will give him a run.

. . . GET OUR MORTGAGE PAPERS . . THE NEWSPAPER . . . AND OUR LAST GROCERY BILL . . . I'M GONNA PAINT A BLEAK PICTURE! . . . .

Pay TV

I cannot let the March 22 article by Richard Gwyn pass without comment. Even if all of his allegations about pay-TV are true, which is absurd, one TV station cannot cost the average citizen very much.

He misses the cardinal point about pay TV, the availability of viewing without being subject to the unmitigated propaganda of TV advertising. People react with feigned horror at the idea of how many murders their children will see in the next 10 years, but they turn an entirely blind eye to the far more corrupting influence of the ads, accepting them as necessary part of financing of TV. Well, pay TV provides the alternative.

The fact that public TV is desperately needed in B.C. is attested to by the $600,000 that B.C.ers pay to finance the American public TV station just south of the border.

If Mr. Gwyn doesn't understand pay TV, its purpose, or its usefulness, the least he can do is not interfere with those who are working hard to bring it about. We will permit him to change the channel. — Craig Carmichael, 820 Dunsmuir Road.

Alternate party

The Times report of March 4 had the NDP laughing at Socred MLA Peter Hyndman's proposed motion in the House to have each NDP MLA reject the Waffle Manifesto. As Charles Barber said, the radical Waffle Group was driven out of the NDP 10 years ago. But Barber was off the mark when he attributed "funny money" only to the Major Douglas originator of Social Credit. (And what could be more anti-social than credit?)

The fact is, the early CCF also advocated the printing press solution to the great depression in its Regina Manifesto. That is, excess government issue of currency in an attempt to stimulate the economy. This Keynesian theory has been followed by Liberal and Conservative federal governments since the Second World War ended, with no objection from the NDP. The result has not been a boom, but stagflation, resulting in greater hardship for the wage working majority in society.

B.C.'s two prominent anti-people parties seem to think the negative practise of calling each other bad names will ensure votes in the next election. Rather than being attracted to this shallow entertainment, the wage workers should think about the alternative, a social arrangement in which all processes function in the interests of all. This of course means democratic control which goes with common (not state) ownership of the means of production and distribution.

The Socialist Party of Canada is ready and willing to assist. — J. G. Jenkins, 1090 Lodge Ave.

Keep towaways

In response to your recent front page article on replacing towaways, I feel very strongly that this service should not be discontinued. At present it remains as the only alternative for recovering a parking space which has, in effect, been stolen. What most people do not realize is that a great many Victorians rent downtown parking spaces on monthly basis, and when someone else 'steals' this space by not paying for it, the person renting this space does not receive the service he has paid for. As well, the owner of the lot is out the money he requires to pay mortgages and taxes.

By decreasing the penalty for this form of theft to a $10 ticket the offence will only proliferate and add further fuel to Victoria's growing parking problem not to mention the increased man hours, paper work and complaints to the Victoria Police. If anything, the towing rate should be increased to $40 or $50 to discourage offenders in the same way that most other sensible Canadian cities have. — Tom Hinton, 1624 Monterey Avenue.

Camping facilities are still a good buy in B.C., says minister.

Minister replies

Further to your article on provincial campsite fees, I trust that you will publish this letter in order that the public will have proper information on this subject.

1. The private sector does not set the public campsite fees in this province. I have not met with the industry on this subject. A staff review was conducted with the industry, but I must advise that this meeting, which dealt with a range of subjects, took place after the rates for provincial parks had been established by Order-in-Council early last fall. Claims by the industry that it established the fees are nonsense.

2. Fees for provincial parks are determined by historical rates, comparison with rates in other provinces, and the costs of operating campsites in the parks.

3. Fee levels in this province are comparable to other provinces, such as Ontario ($5.00), Nova Scotia ($4.00), New Brunswick ($4.00 and $5.00). On the whole, considering the services provided, Alberta is the only other province in Canada which could be seen as having a more reasonable rate.

4. The charges of $3.00 and $5.00 at our campsites do not constitute an outrageous increase in fees. In fact, considering the changes in dollar values and the increased earning powers of the population, these fees are approximately equal, in real terms, to the $2.00 fee which was in effect in parks as far back as 1972. Even discounting these facts and assuming that the dollar had the same value, I doubt very much that a change in actual price from $2.00 in 1972 to $3.00 and $5.00 in 1980, a period of eight years, can be claimed to be punitive.

5. In paying a campsite fee, the public is not paying twice for facilities.

The costs of acquiring and developing parks are paid for by all the people out of revenues of the province. This is appropriate as, even though not all people in the province use parks, it is in the interest of all our citizens to ensure the provision of adequate access to our lands and waters and scenic natural features.

In the case of operating costs, however, it is deemed appropriate that users should bear a portion of the operating costs. In fact, without such fees we would have to raise additional revenues from all of the people to pay for those who are using the parks.

With the revised fee rates, campers will now be paying approximately 60 per cent of the costs of providing necessary services at the campsites. This includes such costs as firewood, garbage collection, patrol and policing and the numerous related services which go towards providing a pleasant vacationing environment for our users.

6. Senior citizens and handicapped people are not being charged camping fees, and have not been charged such fees since 1975. On the matter of the handicapped, to the best of my knowledge, British Columbia is the only province in Canada which offers these citizens free use of campsites in provincial parks.

I would like to point out, that in addition to the above, school groups, Scouts, Girl Guides, church groups and all related youth-oriented educational and training events have always and will continue to get free use of group sites in the provincial park system.

The positive policies of this government are clearly illustrated in this year's budget. In this coming year, a total of $7.1 million will be spent on new facilities. This is one of the largest capital budgets in the history of provincial parks. Furthermore, it is not a one year, but a three-year program which will see the creation of many additional camping and day-use facilities as well as a number of new parks.

Thank you for this opportunity to provide a full and accurate account of our policies on provincial campsites. — James R. Chabot, Minister of Lands, Parks and Housing.

Please donate

Today and tomorrow more than 450 firefighters will be involved in their annual drive to raise funds in support of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada. Over the past five years, Victorians have given generously to this cause. The amount of money raised in Victoria amounts to more per capita than any other city in Canada. Victorians give the third largest amount in Canada exceeded only by Edmonton and Toronto. The total amount of money sent to the Muscular Dystrophy Association from Victoria has reached the sum of $160,000.

Muscular Dystrophy comes in various forms striking individuals through our different walks of life. It affects the major muscles of the body, rendering the individual severely handicapped. One type of dystrophy called Duchenne, strikes only male children between the ages of five and six years. Their muscles progressively degenerate to the point where they are confined to a wheelchair. Throughout their teen years, progression of the disease will cause the individual to become bedridden. Eventually they will die of a cardiac arrest or respiratory failure, at or near the age of 20 years.

Muscular dystrophic victims usually have very alert minds and must make tremendous adjustments to enable them to cope with their plight.

On behalf of all the firefighters involved with the drive, I would like to appeal to the generosity of Victorians once again and ask that they donate a sum to help firefighters defeat Muscular Dystrophy. All of the money donated will be forwarded to the Muscular Dystrophy Association for distribution, to facilitiate research projects dedicated to finding a cure for Muscular Dystrophy. It must be beaten. — Neil Duckworth, Chairman, Greater Victoria Firefighters Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Bridging the chasms

By MICHAEL VALPY

OTTAWA — Every once in a while, the masks and tones all of us adopt for public posture slip away and the real stuff of how we live collectively comes out — our fears about each other, our conceptions and misconceptions of each other, the motes we see in our brothers' eyes, our frictions, our clumsy antagonisms, our prejudices, our warts; in short, our humanness.

A single one of those immensely human acts revealed can in a moment tell us more about ourselves than the most learned sociological analysis. Which is what happened in Toronto last week.

Constable Michael Sweet of the Metropolitan Toronto police department, shot by robbers and left bleeding to death on the floor of a chic downtown jazz restaurant, was buried. Mentioned routinely in the newspaper accounts of the funeral was the fact that young Mayor John Sewell had not attended because he was on holiday; he was represented by the city's senior alderman.

But political opponents of Sewell decided to exploit the issue — coupling the mayor's non-attendance at the funeral with criticisms he has been making of the force and its policies.

It was an issue that dominated the mayor's press conference Thursday. Questioned doggedly by reporters about why he had not attended the funeral, he said: "I made a decision that I owed myself holidays and I said I was going to stay home." He said he did not want to cancel those holidays because of the "staggering demands" on his time.

But, after acknowledging that he also did some work in his office on the day of the funeral, Mayor Sewell became upset with the questioning and said: "I won't get into any more details on the matter — we're dealing with a very sensitive issue." He went on to talk about one or two other things and adjourned the conference.

One can only surmise what troubled thoughts occupied John Sewell's mind over the next 20 minutes. Because 20 minutes after adjourning his press conference, the mayor emerged from his office on Toronto city hall's second floor, walked the few feet down the curved, carpeted corridor to the municipal press gallery, rounded up reporters and made an announcement.

"I was hoping the issue (of attending the funeral) would go away and we could concentrate on the violent death," he said.

Then he explained: "I felt that my presence would create hostility and disrupt the funeral. I wanted to ensure that the funeral was directed towards the tragic death of this officer and the deep sympathy that everyone . . . felt for his widow and family.

"I did not want to go and mend fences — that's making political marks and that's not what I wanted to do. My attendance would have turned it into a political event and I thought it would be better not to attend . . . I think that decision was a wise one. The police would have said: "There's that Sewell guy. What's he doing here? He doesn't respect police.' "

And so a chasm — between a city's police force and its chief magistrate.

There are many of us who came to maturity in the political crucible of the socially troubled '60s — the troubled '60s of civil rights and the New Left and the Just Society and Cool-Aid and the greening of our cities and participatory democracy and the Company of Young Canadians and all the other catch-phrases and movements of the new politics of the time.

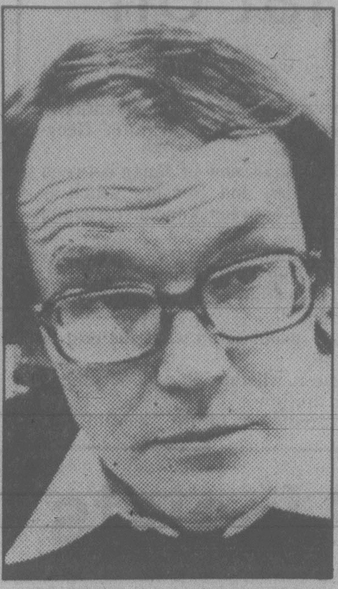
John Sewell unquestionably is one of Canada's best products of those new politics.

There can be no light without darkness, no ying without yang, no struggle without two sides.

In the struggles for social change that the new politicians took up, there had to be opponents. Thus, inevitably often on the front lines of the other side, cast in the dark role of the forces of reaction and oppression, were the police — the enforcers of the social rules conceived and supported by the powers of an outdated, discredited, vested interest, elitist, political generation.

To an urban reform politician like John Sewell, the police function would have to be a major concern. How police treat minorities. Immigrants. The poor. The young. Women. Homosexuals. How police respect civil liberties. How they handle legitimate political dissent.

We've demanded that city police be more sophisticated about pornography and marijuana. That Mounties be more sophisticated about national security. That police everywhere be ladies and gentlemen and more sophisticated about obeying the rule of law in the pursuit of their duties. That they do better at a dozen, a score, a hundred other things.



SEWELL . . . a tough decision

I know all this has been said many times before. But it is when you set down such a list that you realize the incredible demands our communities put on their police forces. We want them to be sociologists, counsellors, psychologists, philosophers, lawyers, political scientists, liberals. All these expectations of a bunch of men and women with high school diplomas and largely conservative, working-class backgrounds.

You can't say it's too much. You can't say that the standards we expect of our police are too high, not in a free society ruled by law and due process. But when they also have to go out and get killed for us, protecting our money . . . I think those are the thoughts that went through John Sewell's mind in the 20 minutes.

Military command resists change

By DOUGLAS FISHER

(Second of two articles)

Ottawa — Paul Hellyer gave up the ministry of national defence in 1967 to Leo Cadieux. Cadieux inherited the swirling aftermath of the biggest post-war issue in the armed services — unification. After Cadieux ('67-'70) came four other Liberal ministers: Donald MacDonald, Edgar Benson, Jim Richardson and Barney Danson. It is fair to say that none of these put the stamp of his mind or purpose on the forces.

In his last year at DND, Richardson hardly operated in the department, and his successor, Danson ('76-'79), was preoccupied with a few pet ideas and his constituency. By his time unification had shaken out and the accommodation between the civilian mandarins of the department and the military brass in the defence staff was complete. Public debate on defence largely centred on re-equipping the services. The civilian and military leaders concentrated on ensuring that a policy of governmental financial restraint did not unduly cripple the forces' budget.

Into this comfortable 'status quo' stepped Allan McKinnon, a quiet, studious ex-army officer. Five years as Tory defence critic had convinced McKinnon that the forces had some serious structural problems. He seemed committed to both shake up the command structure and re-open issues within the forces caused by unification.

This drive for change aroused the suspicions of the brass. Around DND there is still much talk about "Black Monday." This was the day last fall when McKinnon and the Chief of Defence Staff, Admiral Robert Falls, had at each other over remarks the minister had made in a Victoria speech.

The gist of McKinnon's remarks was that he had reservations about the "Functional" command structure. Admiral Falls took this as a criticism of himself and the Ottawa brass and took his gripe to the press. Since Falls' appointment as chairman of NATO's military committee had already been confirmed by the Tories, the chief knew he could publicly challenge the minister with impunity. One can question the courage of Falls' action, but not his intelligence. He knew that a public difference with a civilian minister could only enhance his reputation in the military and send him off to Brussels on a popular wave.

The command structure of our forces is a very curious thing indeed. We have in Canada three operational commands: Air Command (Winnipeg), Mobile Command (Army, Montreal) and Maritime Command (Halifax). Each command has a "three leaf" commander (Two lieutenant generals and a vice-admiral), but none of these field or operation commanders has direct access to the minister. When a decision for the procurement of a piece of equipment is made by the Defence Council — let's say the new fighter — the senior air force commander (until last week Lieut. General Allan MacKenzie) is left out in Winnipeg. And his recommendation does not go to the minister, but goes down a rank to his liaison in Ottawa, a major general, then up through the deputy chief (Lieut. General Gerry Theriault), the vice-chief (Lieut. General Ramsay Withers), the chief, and finally to the minister. The same process will apply when Vice-Admiral Allan (commander, Maritime command) makes his recommendation for the new frigates.

The rationale for this byzantine process is that it cuts out the old inter-service bickering for dollars and streamlines decision-making. It accomplishes this by isolating the senior commander in each service and then short-circuiting his advice.

Since all the power is concentrated at National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, not the operational commands, has become the focus of military ambition. Admiral Falls, a product of this system, has been in Ottawa since 1972. By all accounts he was an excellent sailor but he has not held an operational command since he was a commodore.

The other major criticism of the command structure is the inordinately large civilian bureaucracy at headquarters. There is a civilian deputy minister, Buzz Nixon, who holds the rank equivalent of a "four leaf" general, and three civilian ADMs (Policy, Finance and Material), who have major-general status. Approximately half of the Defence Council is civilian. I am told these civilians are capable men, but surely our military can determine their own policy, manage their own finances.

The military command reconciled itself years ago to civilian mandarins at DND. At senior levels they concurred in their distaste for McKinnon's ideas of altering the command structure. If the Fyfe Task Force Report, commissioned by McKinnon and due soon, recommends major changes, then you can almost wager it will be pigeon-holed by the department. Give them the new fighters and ships and a few more thousand other ranks and they will muddle along again, secure from political criticism.

STRAY FEATHERS

Harold Hosford

There are days and there are days.

Take last Friday, for example. I'd gotten a bee in my bonnet that it was shaping up to be a good night for "owling." To those of you unfamiliar with the term, "owling" is simply hunting owls with a tape recorder or some other means of reproducing owl calls.

I'd picked the UVic campus for my initial owling effort of 1980; the grounds of our hallowed hall of learning had paid off in the past, so why not this time.

Well, after an hour of my own renditions, plus those from Roger Tory Peterson's tape, it was clear the old campus wasn't going to pay off this time.

But, undaunted, I figured another good spot to try for owls was closer to home — the corner of Metchosin Road and Happy Valley Road. So, half an hour after coming up empty at UVic I was parked outside St. Mary's Church and preparing to let go with a try of my own before using the tape, when a strange, wild shriek — emanating from the graveyard — stopped me.

I waited, not quite sure what my next move should be. But all I got for my indecision was silence — deep, penetrating silence.

I guess I let two or three minutes go by, hoping to get another crack at my shrieker, but nothing happened. So, with visions of ghosts in my mind, I turned on the tape. No sooner had its rhythmic renditions of a Screech Owl rent the night air than another shriek, this time from a grove of Douglas first across the road, forced me to turn it off and listen.

Again nothing. Another long silent wait produced more of the same.

I was about ready to close up shop when I heard the shriek for the third time, but with no more idea of what was producing the sound.

A short time later, on the way home, I'd come to the conclusion that what I'd heard was a Barn Owl — at least that was as good a guess as any. I was disappointed. I'd never seen a Barn Owl and being — so I thought — as close to one as I had been that night was food for further thought.

Well, that was one day. On to the next.

This one was two days later, Sunday evening to be exact. I was on my way south along Interurban Road. Owls were far from my mind — particularly Barn Owls.

The sun had just set but the light was still good. I was approaching the hill near Courtland Avenue when, of all things, a large brown owl flitted across the road.

My sudden stop, in reaction to the sight of that owl, brought my family into the story. They hadn't seen the owl and were vociferously concerned about my unexpected lurching stop.

Ignoring their comments about birdwatchers who drive and birdwatch, I kept an eye on the owl. My first thought was Short-eared Owl. The size was right and so was the situation — broad daylight, over open fields.

But there was something odd about this owl. First, it didn't show any of the field marks that would have made it a Short-ear, and it struck me as being too reddish-brown.

After two or three passes over the road, and one long course down the verge, the owl struck west across the fields. I was just about to write it off as another of those frequent examples of unidentified birds that haunt the memories of birdwatchers when the owl turned and headed straight for me.

With its peculiar, stiff-winged flight, it held its line and I kept an eye on it. There wasn't even time to grab for the binoculars.

When the bird was about 100 feet from me, it turned away — but not before I got a good look at its "monkey" face.

It was a Barn Owl, my very first!

As I say, there are days and there are days.

A matter of sexual politics

By JUDITH FINLAYSON
The Globe and Mail

For years now we've been hearing about the contraceptive revolution, that gift of science which supposedly freed us from the biological aftermath of sexuality. And yet, despite the availability of birth control and information concerning its proper use, there are an ever-increasing number of unwanted pregnancies.

Dr. Eugene Sandberg, an associate professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics at California's Stanford University, finds the real reasons for most unwanted pregnancies are to be found, not in technological failure, but in the mysteries of the human mind. Needless to say, the problem is complex. He has concluded that many of the women who come to him requesting contraception don't really want it, and that unwanted pregnancies are often more deliberate than women want to admit.

Dr. Sandberg has arranged the reasons for contraceptive failure or misuse into 16 separate categories. They range from denial and guilt, to shame, hostility and masochism. His statistics indicate that 80 to 90 per cent of the women who have abortions do not repeat the procedure. "Obviously, they learned whatever they needed to learn from the experience," he told me. "If a teacher had a 90 per cent acceptance rate on a theme we'd think he or she was doing a wonderful job. But when it comes to abortion, we concentrate on how terrible the situation is by emphasizing the 15 per cent who repeat. Condemning women for having abortions serves no constructive purpose."

While Dr. Sandberg's studies offer some interesting insights into the psychology of female sexuality, to some extent the issue is still one of sexual politics. Because women have assumed responsibility for contraception, they have also been made to bare the brunt for contraceptive misuse. As psychologist Judith Bardwick points out, the data concerning contraceptive practice is distorted because it ignores male irresponsibility.

For many women who have been socialized to the conventions of our culture, their sense of identity is dependent upon the achievement of an important heterosexual relationship. Over and over again, studies of sexual behavior suggest a similar theme. Women, particularly younger ones, or those who are low in self-esteem, often engage in sex because they fear their boyfriends will abandon them.

Moreover, most women are the products of upbringings which condemn pre-marital sex; planning for intercourse makes them feel "bad". Contraception represents a rational acknowledgement of themselves as sexual beings, and a rejection of their parents' social or religious values, which they're not prepared to confront.

Women who fail to use contraception are not the only women who demonstrate emotional reactions to its use. Bardwick's studies indicate that even women who successfully use contraceptives experience extremely high levels of anxiety and hostility. The reason is that no contraceptive technique is perfect. They can be awkward, messy, possibly hazardous to the health, or not entirely effective.

Bardwick believes that a level of ambivalence is intrinsic to the situation and that healthy women are able to articulate appropriate levels of fear or resentment. They recognize that they have made a decision. The motives to use contraception outweigh their negative feelings.

Still, the issue of sexual politics remains. In most acts of intercourse, men get at least 50 per cent of the pleasure and women assume 100 per cent of the responsibility, risk and possible pain, should an abortion prove necessary. It's not surprising they feel hostile. And women who are low in self-esteem will turn it against themselves because they feel powerless to effect changes, either in the men they're involved with, or society at large.

McGeer talks to experts: island tunnel still far off

Science Minister Pat McGeer is still promoting the idea of a tunnel linking Vancouver Island with the mainland but has no intention of putting his money where his mouth is.

McGeer said Thursday he has no intention at this time of committing government funds to tunnel research.

In the meantime, he's trying to form an opinion on the economic feasibility of such a tunnel by holding private conversations with experts.

McGeer met Thursday with a group of visiting tunnel engineers from Britain.

"There is no point in putting any money into research unless you have some reason to believe it's going to give you information that will be valuable," he said.

"If you know from the very beginning that it's something totally out of the ball park from a financial point of view, then you wouldn't spend any money on it."

McGeer, however, said he has no doubt eventually there will be a tunnel across the Strait of Georgia.

"They're building a tunnel now in Japan between the islands from Hokkaido and Honshu, which is greater than the distance between Vancouver Island and the mainland."

A Vancouver Island tunnel, therefore, is entirely posible from the engineering point of view, he said.

"Whether it's feasible from the economic point of view is another question."

McGeer would not speculate on what the cost of such a project might be.

Nor would he guess whether it will become a reality within his own lifetime.

"I'm not going to predict the future," he said.

Bennett lied, NDP insists

Uranium mining and Premier Bill Bennett's credibility continued to dominate debate Thursday on the premier's budgetary estimates.

The NDP has been trying for three days to get Bennett to admit that in a 1977 meeting with the Commission for European Communities he advocated the sale of uranium — something he denied earlier this week in an angry response to a question by Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East)

NDP leader Dave Barrett told the house earlier that Etienne Reutuer, the commission secretary, told the NDP in December, 1979, that Bennett in a discussion with commission president Roy Jenkins "underlined a concern of his government to find markets for the province's products and listed amongst others uranium."

On Thursday, Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) told the legislature he had evidence that shows Bennett, while on an economic tour of the Far East in 1979, discussed the sale of uranium with Korea Electric Co.

Lauks said details of a uranium exploration project being conducted by Norcen Resources Ltd. were included in a semi-annual report to the department of economic development.

"The second fact is that the premier and the minister of economic development travelled to Korea and talked with Korea Electric, who we found out in November of 1979, did enter a long-term resource contract with Noreen for the supply of 2.1 million metric tons of uranium ore."

Lauk rejected charges by Social Credit MLAs that the NDP has wasted valuable time by arguing the point for three days, saying "we're very concerned about the credibility of the first minister of the province."

"We want him to get up and start coming clean with the people of this province," he said outside the legislature. "It is his responsibility to set a good example.

"He get's up in the house and lies about discussions he had in Europe with the European economic communities. We can't tolerate that kind of person in high elected office."

Earlier this month, the government announced a seven-year moratorium on uranium mining and exploration in the province.

BC Rail debt rises again

The B.C. Railway's massive long-term debt, which the provincial government recently agreed to retire, increased by $21 million in 1979 to $648.03 million, says an auditor's report of the Crown-owned railway.

The report, tabled in the legislature Thursday by Industry Minister Don Phillips, also shows that an operating profit of $4.45 million in 1979 — down almost 50 per cent from 1978 — was wiped out by an expense of $54.05 million for interest on borrowed money.

In Finance Minister Hugh Curtis' March 11 budget, the government set out $70 million in a statutory appropriation as the first step towards reducing the BCR's debt.

Auditor-general Erma Morrison had recommended such action in her 1978 report, saying that if the railway's current practice of borrowing to meet commitments on earlier borrowings and to cover losses, its loss could exceed $600 million annually by the year 2,000.

Railway president Mac Norris said the $4.45 million operating profit, down from $8.68 million in 1978, was achieved "in the face of some very real difficulties."

"The severe rail car shortage during the first half of 1979; the lengthy Gibraltar Mine strike; the decline of eastern rail lumber shipments during the second half of 1979; and the loss of the Peace River bridge for 47 days all had a major impact on revenues," he said.

"In addition, the strike of BCR unions which began on Dec. 10 resulted in a loss of switching and freight revenues of $4 million in December."

Despite the result of those problems, revenues from all sources were above those of the previous year, $127.2 million compared with $115.5 million. However, operating expenses increased by 14.9 per cent to $121.4 million from $105.6 million.

Nanaimo bypass studied

The highways ministry has hired a consulting firm to conduct a feasibility study for a 30 kilometre four lane expressway bypass of Nanaimo.

Crippen Engineering Consultants of Vancouver will undertake the first phase of the proposed bypass design, dealing wih engineering and environmental matters of the route in a corridor west of Nanaimo.

The cost of the study is estimated to be about $100,000 and it's to be completed within six months.

This bypass is part of an ongoing program to upgrade the Island Highway. During the last three years many sections have been widened.

Ocean Falls laid to Bennett

Premier Bill Bennett is personally responsible for the shutdown of the government-owned forest operations at Ocean Falls, a spokesman for the Canadian Paperworkers Union said Thursday.

Ocean Falls Corp. announced March 6 that it will close by June its paper mill, which employees 410 of 1,100 residents in the town, located about 600 kilometres north of here on B.C.'s coast.

The first 100 layoffs take effect early next month, with 300 more to come in late April and May.

Brian Payne, union national representative, said in an interview from Ocean Falls that local workers and residents generally are blaming Bennett for the closure much more than they are the Crown corporation or its chairman, former Social Credit cabinet minister Ray Williston.

Payne said he and other union officials were assured by Bennett at a Jan. 16 meeting here that "the one thing they (the provincial government) weren't going to do was walk in one day and put a closed sign on the mill."

"He (Bennett) also said we would be the first people to know what would happen," Payne said.

"It's just not fair what these people are being put through. It's crazy. And he (Bennett) is responsible in the end."

Back of the bus a hazard

The next time you board a Vancouver trolley and the driver tells you to move to the back of the bus, don't do it.

Vancouver Centre NDP MLA Gary Lauk reports that on 398 occasions last year, the poles at the back of Vancouver's old trolley buses suddenly bent or broke.

When that happens, the damaged pole tends to crash through the rear window, striking anyone sitting at the back of the bus.

Lauk told the legislature Thursday that several passengers have been hurt and at least two persons have suffered severe head injuries.

"It's a miracle no one has been killed," he said.

Lauk claims the poles are breaking because they have become brittle with age. He said they should all be replaced immediately.

"That's the least they can do to protect public safety."

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm, who has responsibility for the new Urban Transit Commission, promised to look into the situation.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market continued to soar in active mid-afternoon trading today, staging a remarkable recovery after enormous losses Thursday.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said margin requirements will be reduced to 50 per cent from 60 per cent effective April 7.

The exchange raised margin rates to 60 per cent last Jan. 23 in an attempt to curb speculative interest in securities.

Among industrials, Dome Petroleum gained 5⅛ to $62⅛, Gulf Canada 5 to $130, Gusky Oil 5 to $74, Texasgulf 5 to $40 and Inter-City Gas 4½ to $16½.

MTS International fell 15 cents to 85 cents, Bank of B.C. 1¼ to $27¼, Canada Permanent Mortgage ¼ to $15½, Petrofina Canada ¼ to $46 and Union Gas A ¼ to $10⅝.

McIntyre Mines rose 6 to $53, Dome Mines 4 to $65 and Brenda Mines 3½ to $24½. Patino N. V. lost 1 to $26 and Chimo Gold Mines 45 cents to $2.05.

Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange as gains outnumbered losses two to one. Volume at 11 a.m. PST was 2,954,885 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 245 advanced, 106 declined and 125 remained steady.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials and gained .40 to $7 on 102,300 shares. Keg Restaurants was steady at $1.40 on 3,900, National Trust Co. remained unchanged at .35 on 2,000 and Adera Financial rose .05 to .45 on 2,000. Renn Industries remained steady at $1.65 and Computrex Centres gained .01½ to .18½.

Anglo-Bomarc Mines led industrial traders and rose .05 to $2.65 on 43,100 shares. Thunderwood Explorations advanced .15 to .92 on 33,900, New Frontier Explorations gained .75 to $5.35 on 33,350, Silver Standard gained .19 to $1.44 on 33,100 and United MacFie Mines dropped .05 to $2.75.

Logan Mines Ltd. led traders on the curb exchange, and dropped .01 to .91 on 37,000 shares. Beach Gold Mines gained .12 to .80 on 27,200, Tagus Resources rose .31 to $1.56 on 25,700 and Mackenzie Energy gained .16 to .96 on 21,600. Samson Energy Corp. advanced .08 to .93 and Neptune Resources gained .05 to $1.30.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices surged ahead in busy trading, recovering sharply as Wall Street leaders and government officials began examining the jolt late Thursday from a collapse in silver prices.

The wild gyrations Thursday prompted Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Harold Williams to go to the New York Stock Exchange today for an emergency meeting with leaders of the NYSE. The SEC Thursday halted trading in securities of Bache Group, a major brokerage house that had large loans outstanding for silver purchases by the wealthy Hunt family of Texas. Those loans were jeapodized when the price of silver plunged.

The upward movement in prices was broad-based, but was particularly felt by the independent oil and precious metals issues. The gains came as Citibank and First National Bank of Chicago announced they had increased their prime lending rate by one-quarter point to 19¼ per cent.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — The London stock market was mixed near the close of trading.

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 421.5, down 1.6.

Industrials and banks declined while golds and oils were mixed.

Canadian stocks were mixed.

A used Mercedes-Benz is often more valuable than a new anything else.

For the automobile industry, retained value is the ultimate test of a car's true quality. Based on the average official used car prices over the past five years, Mercedes-Benz holds its value better than most other makes of luxury cars sold in Canada. And even when used, a Mercedes-Benz is often more valuable than a brand-new anything else.

Investment analysts confident

WINNIPEG (UPC) — Market analysts at Richardson Securities of Canada, despite recent sharp declines, remain confident of an upward trend for Canadian stocks, and continue to recommend investors buy common stocks.

"We believe the correction we had been looking for has now about run its cours, and we can be more or less unqualifiedly bullish again," said Hugh Benham, head of research, in Richardson's monthly publication "Investment Thinking."

"Virtually our only remaining concern is that the market not snap back too quickly from current levels," said Benham. "We strongly recommend full investment ... at these levels."

The prediction comes even though the firm's economists are predicting a flat economic performance in both Canada and the U.S. in 1980 and continued high interest rates.

Banks follow suit at 16.5%

Times News Services

Most of Canada's major banks raised their prime lending rates to a record 16.5 per cent from 15.75 per cent, effective today.

The moves were announced by the Royal Bank of Canada, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, the Toronto Dominion Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia following an increase in the Bank of Canada's lending rate to 15.49 per cent from 14.79 per cent.

Prime lending rates are those charged to banks' top-rated customers.

The remaining chartered banks said increases in rates were under study.

Douglas Peters, vice-president and chief economist of the Toronto Dominion Bank, said interest rates are likely to increase still further. Banks in the United States would be likely to move their prime rates upward today from 19 per cent "so we will again be under pressure."

In fact, the U.S. prime lending rate jumped today to a record 19½ per cent when Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago leapfrogged over the 19¼-per-cent rate established earlier in the day by Citibank in New York.

Citibank, the second-largest bank in the United States, led the latest round of prime rate increases by setting the 19¼-per-cent rate, a record at the time.

Faint silver lining after panic

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of silver recovered a bit today from a frantic slide that took the price to a seven-month low on Thursday.

Trading in silver futures opened at $13 U.S. an ounce at the New York Commodity Exchange, up $2.20 from the spot contract price Thursday when markets went into a frantic slide tied to a huge sell-off of Texas billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt's holdings.

In Washington, the U.S. Commodity Future Commission today rejected a request by the Bache Group Inc. to suspend trading in silver futures. A spokesman said, however, that the regulatory agency will continued to monitor the market closely.

Thursday's close of $10.80 an ounce for a contract for spot delivery was down $5 from the previous day and the lowest at the Commodity Exchange since Aug. 31 last year when silver closed at $10.48 an ounce.

In London, bullion dealers set the afternoon silver price at $14 an ounce, off slightly from Thursday's $14.50 price.

The Bache Group Inc., whose subsidiary handles many of the Hunt family's commodities accounts, announced after the close of most trading Thursday that it had sold off "most of Hunt's silver positions" in the futures market after the Hunts failed to meet a $100-million margin call the previous day. Hunt could not be reached for comment.

Fears that Hunt might sell some of his huge silver holdings emerged Thursday with his announcement in Paris that he and four other men with large holdings of silver were seeking to borrow money by issuing bonds backed by more than 200 million ounces of silver.

The move was seen by some traders as evidence that Hunt, who apparently was the largest buyer of silver as the metal soared upward from $6 an ounce 15 months ago, needed money and might have to sell some of his bullion if the bond issue could not be arranged.

However, a member of the Hunt group said today the turmoil will not affect plans for a multibillion dollar issue of silver-backed bonds by Hunt and his Arab associates.

In a telephone interview from Geneva, Selif Nassif, an associate of Hunt's, said he was surprised by the reaction of U.S. markets.

"By lowering the price of silver, speculators are playing into our hands . . . We have an unlimited treasury," Nassif said. He said the group's plans remain unchanged.

Analysts say many traders have been forced out of commodities futures positions recently by the cost of margin calls and high borrowing costs, but the liquidation of the Hunt holdings was far more dramatic.

As prices decline, those who hold contracts to buy in the future must come up with additional funds to keep a fixed amount of margin relative to the cost of the whole contract.

That snowballed recently as gold, silver and platinum prices tumbled.

Connaught acquires Dominion

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — Connaught Laboratories Ltd. of Toronto has acquired 49-per-cent ownership of Dominion Biologicals Ltd. of Truro, the companies announced today.

Officials of both companies said in a joint statment there is also an option for Connaught to acquire a further 26 per cent within five years.

Sam Brushett, president and founder of Dominion Biologicals, said the health-care industry would benefit from the agreement. He said the agreement would enable both firms to expand sales volume and increase product marketing.

Dominion Biologicals produces more than 40 products for use in blood typing, pre-transfusion testing and diagnosis of blood related disorders.

What is a Lemon Sale?

When the squeeze is on, our manager likes to laugh away his problems. His problem is too much inventory that has been around the Windsor store so long it's beginning to become root bound. For the past two years his inventory has been growing, and growing. Either IT goes or We will be squeezed into using our washrooms... as an office. This giant LEMON SALE is not really LEMON stock. It's good stuff. And, bad, stuff, too. Stock that has been around a while, hidden in corners where nobody has seen it to buy it. There's a lot of good value in our LEMON SALE. Buy something and save up to 40% or more. Buy nothing and save 100%. WINDSOR PLYWOOD... an unusual place.

Phillips leads the high flyers

B.C. cabinet ministers and their senior civil servants recorded travel bills of more than $31 million in the 1978-79 fiscal year.

Industry Minister Don Phillips led his cabinet colleagues by spending $23,244 on travel, it was disclosed Wednesday in the public accounts document tabled in the legislature.

The most frugal minister was Sam Bawlf, who was both recreation minister and deregulation minister during the fiscal year. Bawlf, defeated in the May, 1979, election, spent $3,802 on travel.

Don't shunt French classes: parents

Parents of children in French immersion classes at Willows elementary school made clear Thursday night they want the program left intact.

Their strong opinions on the matter were voiced at a meeting called to discuss a school district proposal to move the 1980-81 French Kindergarten and Grade I classes to Oaklands elementary school and leave the other French classes at Willows.

A March 20 letter to parents said the students moved to Oaklands would remain there until the end of Grade 3 and would then be brought back to Willows.

Increasing enrolment was said to be the reason for the action.

But the parents said they won't accept any solution which means breaking up the French program at Willows.

Some said any such split would weaken the program and discourage parents from enroling their children.

"We don't want to be viewed as something that can be shifted and shunted around," one parent said.

Bernie Chandler, assistant superintendent of schools, field and curriculum, told the meeting at one point that any intention of moving the program is now abandoned.

But the problem — what to do about the school's shortage of space caused by rising enrolment, remains, he said.

A number of possible solutions were outlined and eventually it was decided to form a committee of three parents with children in the French program and three in the English.

Willows principal Bill Harris said the French program has been growing steadily since 1976-77 when there were 102 children from Kindergarten to Grade 4.

This year there are 209 in the program which goes up to Grade 6 and the projection next year is for 255 with the inclusion of Grade 7.

In earlier years there was a corresponding decline in the English enrolment from 542 in 1975 to a low of 434 in the 1978-79 school year.

But the number in the English program during the current year jumped to 463 making a total enrolment of 672.

This is above the school's capacity of 655 students and next year it is forecast to go to 717, Harris said.

A total of 29 classrooms will be required to accommodate that many next year, he added, and only 28 are available.

B.C. warned it will lose if insurance firms leave

The provincial government will lose an annual $6.8 million in taxes paid by private insurance companies if it forces them to leave the province, Insurance Bureau of Canada president John Lyndon said in Victoria Thursday.

He said B.C. is in danger of losing these companies because they can not compete with rates announced under the FAIR plan.

Lyndon said he doubted the lost tax revenues could be compensated for by the increased revenue that would go to ICBC.

In an address to the Rotary Club of Victoria, he said ICBC rates are based on political and social considerations, rather than the cost of supplying the insurance.

"ICBC's approach is so alien to sound insurance and sound business practices that most private companies filling coverages in B.C. have already indicated they cannot continue to compete with the FAIR plan," he said.

"The FAIR plan is neither fair nor insurance. The whole story will not be known until several years have passed and automobile insurance rates in the province will have risen considerably.

"We believe there are better ways of doing business than flying by the seat of our pants and hoping to break even sometime in the future."

Lyndon criticized ICBC for removing geographic factors from its rates.

"The chances of a motorist getting into a serious accident in Victoria are far less than those of one in Vancouver but ICBC wants to ignore that fact and charge the same rate here as in Vancouver."

He said private insurers would like to be given a chance to compete fairly for compulsory coverage.

"You can't have much of a champion if you only have one fighter in the ring."

Before the judge

Three days have been set aside in May for the preliminary hearing into a charge of first-degree murder against a 35-year-old William Head penitentiary inmate.

Judge Lorne Pearce in provincial court Thursday set May 12 to 14, inclusive, in the case of Michael Thomas Leslie, charged in the death of inmate William Engel.

Engel died of stab wounds following a March 16 incident at the federal medium-security prison.

Leslie was represented by lawyer Arthur De Meulemeester of Vancouver.

Judge Fred Green imposed a four-month jail sentence and a $2,000 fine on a 72-year-old man in connection with a 2½-year-old case.

Walter Protasawich, 1527 Cedar Hill Crossroad, pleaded guilty March 7 to breaking and entering and assault causing bodily harm and was remanded until Thursday for a pre-sentence report.

Protasawich broke into the home of Kenneth Charles Watson, 1737 Feltham, on Oct. 16, 1977, in an attempt to steal a bracelet valued at $5,000. Court was told Protasawich tried to buy the bracelet earlier but was refused by Watson.

During the break-in, Protasawich was caught by Watson and a struggle ensued in which a medallion was torn from Watson. Protasawich ran from the scene but was caught a short distance away.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang said Protasawich had a lengthy criminal record between 1928 and 1956.

Green imposed the jail term and fine on the breaking and entering conviction and a concurrent, two-month sentence on the assault.

A 20-year-old man charged with breaking and entering was remanded until Monday for bail hearing and possible election of trial method.

Gregory William Hibbert was charged with breaking into the Stadacona Jewellery Shoppe, 1516 Fort, earlier Thursday.

Victoria police said $1,863 worth of jewelry was taken in a smash-and-grab but most was recovered.

Judge Pearce ordered a 30-year-old woman to accept any residential drug treatment program such as the one at Nanaimo's Brannen Lake.

Nancy Winnifred Kosdrowski pleaded guilty to two counts of impersonation and was given a suspended sentence with three years probation.

Kosdrowski gave other names in attempts to obtain pharmaceutical drugs, court was told.

Defence lawyer Brian MacKenzie asked the judge to consider the Brannen Lake facility, noting that a pre-sentence report stated Kosdrowski could kick her addiction to prescription drugs if she took the residential treatment program seriously. MacKenzie said Kosdrowski slipped back into the addiction after her husband died of a drug overdose last August.

Crown counsel Don Laughton argued that there was nothing to compel her to take the Brannen Lake program.

However, Pearce said he could sentence her on the impersonation charges and a charge of breach of probation if Kosdrowski didn't accept the program.

"I have a great deal of doubt that you can change your ways," Pearce told the woman.

He said he wasn't sure that Kosdrowski's desire to go to Brannen Lake wasn't an attempt to avoid a long jail term she would have received Thursday.

Wife can't collect from spouse: court

A Maple Ridge woman injured in a car accident cannot recover damages from the driver of the car whom she subsequently married, the B.C. Supreme Court has ruled.

Victoria county court Judge Montague Drake, sitting as a local judge of Supreme Court, said the law in Canada has been settled that no husband or wife is entitled to sue the other for a tort under Section 13 of the Married Women's Property Act.

The case was argued in Victoria March 4 and judgment was delivered this week.

Maureen Susan Landstrom was a passenger in a car and Kenneth George Ringrose, also of Maple Ridge, was the driver on Jan. 29, 1978. The car, owned by a dealership and leased to his drug store, collided with a parked vehicle in Maple Ridge. The collision was caused by Ringrose's sole negligence.

Her action for damages was started on Sept. 8, 1978, and on Sept. 23, 1978, she and Ringrose were, and remain, married.

Judge Drake ruled that Section 13 of the Married Women's Property Act bars her from continuing or maintaining a claim against Ringrose for damages because of the accident when subsequently they became husband and wife.

He said the expression in Section 13, "no husband or wife is entitled to sue the other for a tort," means exactly what it says.

Drake said she could proceed with an action against the corporate defendants, the car dealership and the company which leased the car, but he ruled the Contributory Negligence Act bars her recovering any damages.

Section 7 of this act says in any action for damages for bodily injury of any married person, where one of the persons at fault is the spouse of the married person, no damages, contribution or indemnity shall be recoverable for the portion of damage caused by the fault or negligence of such spouse.

Drake said there is no claim for contribution between husband and wife under this statute and the same considerations must apply to Landstrom and he precluded her from recovering damages from the corporate defendants.

She was represented in court by Victoria lawyer Michael O'Connor while city lawyers James Carfra and Keith Bracken represented Ringrose and the two companies.

Man came out swinging and fell on curb: Mountie

A Sidney RCMP constable said Thursday a 23-year-old man got out of a police car swinging at him and fell on a concrete curb.

Grant Bottrell, 29, was testifying on his own behalf at the third day of his trial on two charges of assault causing bodily harm to David Dean Krenbrink, one by striking him with a nightstick and the other by kicking him, in an incident outside the Sidney detachment early May 1.

The county court case was to go to the jury today after Judge Leslie Cashman's address. Crown counsel Robert Mulligan and defence counsel Gordon Macdonald gave their summations Thursday.

Bottrell, who has had 10 years' experience, said he drove Krenbrink and John Wolski, 24, to the Sidney RCMP and got out to unlock the office.

He said his partner, Constable Joseph Choquette, said Krenbrink was "playing silly bugger" by holding the lock inside the car and Constable Keith Terlson of Victoria police threw him a nightstick and suggested he rap the man's knuckles if he didn't release the lock.

He said when Krenbrink got out of the car he came out fast and swung at him. Bottrell said he put his left hand on his throat and pushed him with his right hand which had the stick in it and Krenbrink was up against the car.

Bottrell said he told Krenbrink "let's go" and he went to guide the man when he pulled and tripped and fell to the curb.

As a "reflex action," Bottrell said he kicked Krenbrink twice in the chest area but not his head. He then saw blood and administered first aid in the office.

Bottrell denied slapping his open palm with the nightstick before the incident and denied striking Krenbrink with the stick.

He also said he never intended to cause bodily harm and never intended to go beyond his duty to escort him to the office.

He said it wasn't true that Choquette pulled him off Krenbrink and he maintained he was in full control of the situation.

In cross-examination, Bottrell said he didn't open the window of the plastic cage between the front and back of the police car.

Shown his notes made at the time which referred to "our opening the window in the cage," Bottrell said he meant his attempt to open the cage.

Shown references in his notes that Krenbrink was "forcibly removed" and "forced out" of the police car, Bottrell said this was not true. What he meant was that Krenbrink was not co-operative and he didn't volunteer to get out of the car.

He agreed that there was no reference in his notes to Krenbrink taking a swing at him.

Bottrell also agreed that before his testimony in court Thursday, there was no reference to him kicking Krenbrink.

And he agreed he never told a Sidney Review reporter that he kicked Krenbrink. It was his version was that Krenbrink injured himself when he fell.

Bottrell agreed that on the booking sheet there was a reference that Krenbrink "fell getting out of police car" and that the Review article quoted him as saying he restrained Krenbrink who was walking away from the car when he fell.

He denied that that was misleading.

Bottrell said Krenbrink and Wolski were polite until told they were under arrest at Durrance Lake on a trespassing complaint.

He said Krenbrink was abusive and swearing, saying the policeman was "a big goon" who "must be from Saskatchewan because you are so stupid" and wondering "what your old lady is doing while you are out playing policeman."

Krenbrink, who denied swinging at Bottrell, testified earlier he wasn't rude and belligerent to Bottrell and didn't ask him about his wife. He said he was barely out of the police car when he was "laced" on the forehead with the nightstick, felt a jab in his eye, and was choked on the ground.

Crown appealing McKitka acquittal

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — The Crown is appealing the acquittal of former Surrey mayor Ed McKitka on a charge of demanding a benefit.

McKitka recently was found guilty of breach of trust, demanding a benefit and threatening a Surrey alderman and sentenced to three years in jail. He was acquitted by the B.C. Supreme Court jury of demanding a benefit from Raymond Loewen, developer and former Social Credit MLA for Burnaby.

Loewen testified that McKitka, while mayor of Surrey, had sought a $100,000 payment in connection with a proposed development in Surrey.

During the trial, Mr. Justice George Murray said the jury should consider whether Loewen was an accomplice.

The Crown is appealing on the submission that the judge erred in holding that Loewen could be considered an accomplice of McKitka and that he further erred in warning the jury that Loewen might be considered an accomplice.

McKitka is out of jail pending an appeal of his convictions.

Quebecers TV champs

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebecers still watch more television than most Canadians, but according to recent statistics they're watching less on French channels.

According to statistics released by BBM Bureau of Measurement, 27.2 per cent of the total weekly viewing hours of Canadians was devoted to French television in 1969, but the percentage dropped to 21.8 in 1978.

The statistics also indicate that while the average Canadian watches 22.1 hours of television a week, the average Quebecer watches 24.1 hours.

Sylvia battles for a new image

TORONTO (CP) — It's been six years since Ian and Sylvia Tyson decided to separate their music careers but Sylvia is still trying to establish her new image.

"The one thing I find myself battling is the tendency people have to typecast me as part of a duo, as a folk-singer, country singer, someone whose music has not been substantially changed in the past 10 years," she said recently. "None of these things are true.

"I'll go into a record store to see if they have my album. It will be under 'Ian and Sylvia' or in the folk bins. It's very annoying — like you haven't progressed."

And Ms. Tyson, 39, is adamant that she has changed: "All I know is that I can do a concert and get two or three standing ovations. I don't think any nostalgic artist gets that."

In 1959, the singer left her home town of Chatham, Ont., and teamed up with Ian Tyson in Toronto. They climbed to international fame with the recording of Four Strong Winds.

Three years ago their marriage broke up. She stayed in Toronto and he went to Alberta. Tyson still has a band and performs, but is more involved with raising cattle and horses outside Calgary.

"It's not a rancorous separation."

Today, she has her own band, The Great Speckled Bird, and her own record company, Salt Records Inc. She also has a new record — Sugar for Sugar, Salt for Salt.

Earl Holliman hires himself

scott's world

by vernon scott

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There is no better means for an actor to escape the unemployment lines than to operate his own theatre and hire himself whenever he pleases.

Burt Reynolds, who need not worry about bread lines, owns and operates the Burt Reynolds' Dinner Theatre in Jupiter, Fla., occasionally appearing in plays and dragooning his pals from Hollywood (i.e. Carol Burnett) to star in his theatrical presentations.

Farther west, but still in the sunshine belt, is Earl Holliman's Fiesta Dinner Playhouse in San Antonio, Texas.

Holliman, who has owned the theatre in partnership with Pat Baldouff for more than two years, will appear on his own stage for the first time beginning April 1 for six weeks in Arsenic And Old Lace.

It's not that Holliman needs the work all that much either. He recently completed an American Sportsman and was seen earlier this month starring with Karen Black, Candy Clark and Lisa Hartman in Where The Ladies Go, playing the owner of a bar catering to swinging housewives.

Holliman is enjoying a revival in his career since his long identity as the tough cop in TV's Police Woman series with Angie Dickinson.

Actor Holliman is less interested in paying himself a good salary than in filling the theater every night of the six-week stand.

His theatre, which seats 465 patrons for dinner, is open 52 weeks a year, charging $17.50 per customer for a full course dinner and a show.

Holliman selected San Antonio for a couple of good reasons. To begin with, the Oklahoma-born actor was reared only 60 miles from San Antonio in the town of Kerrville. Secondly, the theatre was already in existence after having gone bankrupt under its previous management.

"I fell in love with the city of San Antonio when I was seven years old," Holliman said. "I went there to see the annual Battle of the Flowers parade and never forgot the beauty of the city.

"Years later they made me an honorary grand marshal of the parade with Lady Bird Johnson. On top of all that, my partner also liked San Antonio and was looking for a place to open a dinner theatre.

"The theatre didn't do well under the previous ownership because the management didn't lure stars down there for the productions. We've done a lot better along those lines."

Holliman's theatre produces nine or 10 show a year. Van Johnson starred in Boeing Boeing and Send me No Flowers, and Holliman featured Gary Burghoff (one-time Radar in the M-A-S-H seres) in The Owl and the Pussycat.

Among others he has landed for his plays were Joan Fontaine in Dial M For Murder, Dorothy Lamour in Barefoot In The Park, Cesare Romero in Never Get Smart With an Angel and Robert Morse in Play It Again, Sam.

Dinner theatres throughout the country thrive on former TV series performers or movie stars who have seen better days. Americans throng to get a close up look at celebrities while ignoring productions with local actors.

Canada Council okays $500,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The 21-member Canada Council spent three days of barrel-scraping this week and managed to allocate about one per cent of its funds for the arts.

Chairman Mavor Moore announced Thursday the council, which still has no clear indication of what money it will have to spend in the new fiscal year starting Tuesday, decided to:

—Invest $200,000 in new independent productions of theatre, music and dance shows which might return a profit.

—Continue special grants for senior performing artists at the rate of $200,000 a year — giving 10 performers grants of $20,000 each.

—Spend $100,000 on fees for young recording artists and the recording of new Canadian music that might not otherwise be commercially successful.

Direct investment in commercial shows is new for the council, which in the past has given grants to performing arts companies and artists.

The shows in which the council decides to play "angel" — using old show-business terminology — will be selected by the council with advice from show people in the same way as it decides to subsidize major theatres, festivals and tours.

The selections will be announced in advance, Moore said.

The senior arts grants for performers were to have been suspended April 1 as a money-saving move. But Moore said the council decided they should continue because of their value to artists who have already made their mark in their professions, especially in dance, and want to further their studies and professional development.

The recording program is mainly for young artists to make their first, or possibly their second recordings, and is important in career-building.

The council, which is the principal federal grant-giving agency for the arts, is modifying its block grants to more than 100 firms to ensure that more money is available for publishing works of literary or cultural merit. A new government program in the secretary of state department gives weight to commercial works.

The three projects involve $500,000 out of a total budget, including endowment earnings, of about $48 million. The current year's parliamentary appropriation was originally $39.1 million, but this was cut, then restored, and the the council was subsequently promised more.

Moore and officials of the council said they are living on the expectation of obtaining $44.5 million from Parliament in the new year, "but not with entire confidence." If the government is convinced of the worth of the arts, it could be more.

CBC's national at 10

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC's nightly television newscast, The National, will move from its 11 p.m. local time slot to 10 p.m., Monday to Friday, beginning in January, the CBC announced Thursday.

In a news release, Mike Daigneault, director of news and current affairs for the English network, said the move follows a thorough study which began last June.

"We have concluded that 10 p.m. is the best spot in the evening schedule," he said.

"The National is our flagship information program and we have felt for some time that it has been telecast too late in the evening for many of our viewers."

It has been estimated that 7.5 million Canadians watch television at 10 p.m., but the number drops sharply to 4.2 million at 11 p.m., he said.

The National will become the only English language network newscast in North America to be shown in prime time.

The change affects only the English network. The French network now starts its national news at 10:30 P.M.

The National will remain in the 11 p.m. spot on weekends.

Hudson's Bay Company

Hooked! They wriggle, they fume, they curse

The towaway drivers don't like being villains and say motorists who don't buy parking tickets are really guilty of theft.

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The towing business is hell. Also #$%&@ and !@%$ and ?$@&!

Towing cars from downtown parking lots generates a lot of unprintable language. Some drivers turn into profane, raging fighters when their cars have been towed away.

Everyone has a horror story about being towed away from a parking lot in Victoria and Gordon's Towing gets the blame, no matter who's right.

Gordon's staff resent the role of nasty villain assigned them.

They just provide a service for the parking lot owners, they say. People who park and don't buy a ticket are guilty of theft and without the deterrent effect of towaways, the lots would be plugged.

At Gordon's impoundment lot at 50 Songhees Road, the staff are insulted, screamed and sworn at most nights as fuming, sometimes drunk, drivers pick up their vehicles.

They get arson threats by phone all the time (which are received with some amusement, as their building is solid concrete) and there isn't a month without some disgruntled driver aiming a punch at a Gordon's employee.

Come down one night and see it from the other side, said Gerald Hartwig, general manager of Gordon's Towing and son of the owner, developer Hans Hartwig, who bought the company a year ago.

So a Times reporter spent several hours one Friday night recently at Gordon's dispatch office, just over the Johnson Street bridge.

It was a quiet night, according to "J.B.", who manages the day-to-day operations. Just a hockey game at the Memorial Arena. But it provided enough nervous tension and drama.

The dispatcher was Renee, a quiet, polite but firm woman who used to drive tow trucks in Calgary. She handles the telephone and the radio calls from the drivers in the tow trucks as well as the cash register. And, no, she doesn't want her surname published. Neither do the drivers.

At 10:30 p.m, a man who attended the Cougar game at the arena comes by to get his car, which was towed from Blanshard and Caledonia. He parked in front of the Kennametal foundry, a 24-hour-a-day operation with a sign out front that says Loading Zone At All Times.

No argument. He pays $16 without objection and drives off.

Other arrivals are not so meek, understandably because it turns out they bought tickets and were towed away.

In half an hour, two groups arrive and the young drivers argue heatedly with the dispatcher. Both claim they bought tickets.

After searching both vehicles, they find the missing tickets on the floor. Although legally the city bylaw allows Gordon's to claim half the towing charge if the driver can produce a valid ticket, they are allowed to drive off without paying the $8.

Maybe the tow truck driver didn't see the ticket and the wind blew it off the dash on the trip over the bridge. Maybe when the car door was slammed shut, a draught caught the ticket and blew it on the floor. It's happened.

Refunds like these are made often, he says. They weren't staged. Earlier, Gordon's let off two drivers who had bought tickets and stuck them somewhere other than the dashboard. One lady had left them in a bag of groceries, another shoved them absentmindedly down into a door pocket.

When informed over the radio, the tow truck driver who brought the two cars in is peeved. No tickets were visible on the dash, he says, blaming Renee for letting them off. He's mad because he's just lost $8.50 in wages.

Gordon's drivers are paid a straight commission, $4.25 per tow out of the $16 the company charges a motorist. Most own their own trucks, or are paying off a loan on them, so there is pressure to make enough to pay the bank. More towaways, more pay.

Hartwig made the change when he bought the company last July. Previously, Gordon's paid wages — and partly because of it lost $83,000 in the last six years, he says.

Working on commission makes the drivers overzealous, the critics claim. Gerald Hartwig alluded to this when he appeared before city council's finance committee last week and asked for the towaway charge to be upped to $25. He could give his drivers more money, and then they would be a little more careful, he said.

"I agree that some of them definitely will step out of line and try to get as many commissions as possible to pay for their trucks," Hans Hartwig told the aldermen. The answer — raise Canada's lowest towaway charges to a more realistic figure.

"My drivers don't have to steal tickets," says J.B. There's enough business with legitimate deadbeats.

Meanwhile, back at 50 Songhees Road, shortly after midnight. A code 10-33 comes from one tow truck driver who's hooking up a car in the Wharf Street lot beside Hartwig Court (no longer owned by the Hartwigs). That means driver in trouble, call the police.

The second tow truck driver working that night is just coming into the lot with a car. He turns around immediately and, with the towed car still hanging from his hook, roars over the bridge to the lot, just across the harbor from the dispatch office.

Silence on the radio. Then a call from the first driver to record an $8 charge — that's the fee to release a vehicle hooked up but not impounded. Later, one of the drivers says the owner and his friends "tried to get rough" but agreed to pay.

Last outburst of the night's busy period occurs near 1 a.m. when a man comes down by cab to claim his white Mercedes, towed away about 12:10 a.m from a lot behind the Sussex Hotel at Broughton and Douglas.

He is very angry. He flashes a ticket stub but it doesn't look like the ones from the lot's machine. He doesn't persist, just yells and swears a lot after paying $16.

"There's going to be a lot of shit flying at this lot. You're going to hear from my lawyer," he says.

So ended a "pretty quiet" night in the towing business, for the reporter anyway. The lot is open 24 hours a day, and car owners keep trickling in until three or four in the morning to claim their vehicles.

TOWN TALK

B.C. Tel announced this week it needs more money or service will get worse.

But some people wonder why the company had to spend probably $250,000, conservatively estimated, mailing a special information pamphlet to its one million subscribers.

One irate Victorian tells Town Talk it arrived in his mail this week, followed only a day later by his regular monthly phone bill.

Why couldn't the phone company just combine the two?

Spokesman Rick Hyde said the company thought subscribers would have a lot of questions when they learned of its application to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission for rate increases up to 25 per cent for some services.

"It was felt that because of the anticipated interest in the rate hike a separate mailing was necessary," said Hyde.

So B.C. Tel shipped out a million copies of its little pamphlet — $170,000 in first-class postage alone — and took out three-quarter page ads in many newspapers explaining in great detail why it needs the extra revenue.

Who pays? You do, of course, with your long distance conversations with Aunt Martha in Moose Jaw. Keep those phone calls coming, folks, or you'll bankrupt B.C. Tel.

Yes, right there, just behind the bicuspid, is just the tiniest bit of information about the government's long-promised Denticare program.

In a terse press release, Health Minister Rafe Mair says the plan will put special emphasis on the needs of children and the elderly, further details will be announced before June 1 and in the meantime talks continue with the College of Dental Surgeons and the Dental Technicians Board.

On yes, and the plan definitely will be in effect sometime before the end of 1980.

Saanich mayor Mel Couvelier won his way this week to the tune of an additional $4,500 bill for Capital Regional District taxpayers.

The money will be used to provide tapings of CRD committee and board meetings.

Couvlier has been pressing for such recordings since he recently accused the media of misquoting him.

On Wednesday, he urged the expenditure, saying it would help the secretaries who make minutes of meetings.

Victoria mayor Bill Tindall noted Couvelier appeared to have changed his priorities. Listening to the tapes would be costly and time-consuming for staffers, Tindall said.

Equipment from three firms was tested before the choice was made.

Strangely, the secretaries who are supposed to be the ones to gain, were not consulted on which equipment did the best job.

Those ivory towers can be lonely — and insulated from the outside world.

B.C. Hydro chairman Robert Bonner wrote the Capital Regional District this week to say no way Hydro would pay for bus passes for Hydro employees and retired employees once the CRD takes over public transit.

Town Talk can't help but wonder where Bonner has been since the November elections when CRD board chairman Murray Glazier lost his place on the regional board.

You guessed it — Bonner is still writing Glazier as board chairman.

The big question is: will the caller be able to holler all through that marathon dance the young members of the Curli-Q square dance group plan to stage starting at 1 p.m. Saturday?

The event — to raise funds to help the group attend a big square dance festival in Penticton — will run all Saturday, and if the legs and music hold out, all through the night and all day Sunday.

The toe-tappin', skirt-swirling and fiddle playin' all takes place at the Sanscha Hall in Sidney.

It's Easter soon and everyone thinks it's a nice idea to give their kid a cute little chick or bunny.

But please, please, pleads the B.C. Veterinary Medical Association, stifle the urge.

Baby chicks and bunnies, adorable as they are, need special care and accommodation — and the novelty usually wears off pretty quickly for most children.

Within months, say the vets, the chick will be a hen, the bunny a handful, and everyone will realize what a mistake they made.

Think about it and come up with more appropriate gifts, they say.

Think of Greenpeace and you envision protesters shielding baby harp seals or Zodiac boats harassing whalers as they try to harpoon whales.

Ed Davis thinks Greenpeace and sees red.

The Salt Spring photographer says the environmental group doesn't pay its bills and he wants the media to curb coverage so that Greenpeace will die.

"Four years ago I sold Greenpeace a poster for their marketing program, only to find out later that they had no marketing program, not to mention a history of not paying their bills."

"After the shock of the initial loss, we elected not to take the issue to court as indications were that their only asset was hot air," Davis wrote.

Davis wonders if there's anyone around who would like 40,000 posters showing a baby harp seal's head emerging from the water.

Davis lives at RR1, Tripp Road, Ganges.

There were only five communities in B.C. which got through Safe Driving Week without a fatal traffic accident, and Victoria was one of them.

The Canada Safety Council recognized the city's death-free record with a special award to Mayor Bill Tindall at city council's Thursday night meeting.

Victoria police and the city's traffic engineering department were also praised for their roles in making Victoria's streets safer.

Samuel, whose popular children's magazine was discontinued when she ran out of money, was chosen from almost 500 applicants.

She has taught at the elementary level and is also trained to work with retarded and slow-learning children. She and her three children have lived in Victoria since 1975.

Samuel takes over the $30,000-a-year job from Bill Stavdal, who moved to the human resources ministry.

Heinrich to talk Tuesday with nurses

Mediator named for police

Labor Minister Jack Heinrich has taken action in two burgeoning labor disputes.

He named a mediator today for the dispute involving 300 Greater Victoria policemen and said he has agreed to meet with representatives of 2,700 community and psychiatric nurses who are threatening strike action.

The police asked Heinrich Wednesday to appoint a mediator after negotiations with the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association (GVLRA) collapsed and there was talk of wildcat strikes.

Heinrich has named Bob Almgren of the provincial mediation services to cool out the police dispute.

The minister also says he will meet mediator Clark Gilmour and representatives of the Registered Nurses Association of B.C. (RNABC) in his office Tuesday, the day before strike notice goes into effect.

The RNABC has asked Gilmour to withdraw from the negotiations, clearing the way for a strike.

Victoria area health units are not affected by the dispute.

The nurses' contract expired Dec. 31, and the major issue is wages.

The Government Employee Relations Bureau has proposed a three-year agreement with an eight-per-cent increase each year.

The nurses want a 27-month contract with a compounded salary increase of 39 per cent.

The police contract talks are also foundering on the issue of wages.

Policemen in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt want parity with their Vancouver counterparts.

Talks broke off when the GVLRA offered only 95 per cent of what Vancouver policemen get.

This is the first year police in the four core municipalities have bargained jointly with the GVLRA rather than individually with their own police boards.

Woolford coming

Viv Woolford, the former Mississauga car salesman who is leading a cross-Canada homeowners' protest against ever-increasing mortgage interest rates, is coming to B.C. soon.

Woolford said today he hopes to attend a rally in Vancouver to signal a cross-country blitz, culminating in an Ottawa appearance in mid-April.

He expects to have a firm schedule early next week.

Ena Curran, the Saanich hairdresser who is organizing the mortgage protest here, had tentatively planned a rally at the Legislative Buildings April 5. But she is now waiting for Woolford's plans so she can have him at the Victoria gathering.

Curran has a day off work Saturday but she won't get much rest.

She and other volunteers will be at the Mayfair Shopping Centre collecting more names on a petition promoting Woolford's Proposal 89, which calls on the federal government to lower the interest rate to between 10 and 12 per cent and to close mortgages for a period of 25 years.

People in Sidney can sign the petition at the Sidney Fashion Flair store on Beacon Avenue, and anyone close to Brentwood Bay can drop into The Bookworm, 2105B West Saanich.

Shupe asks if Portland spent energy in March

There are nine Western Hockey League coaches still conducting business today and among them, Victoria Cougars' Jack Shupe reckons performance in April is far more important than accomplishment in March.

He could afford to say that because his team had qualified for the playoffs before March arrived.

Seattle Breakers and Portland Winter Hawks also made it, and the main interest in the Western Division centered on the final claim to first place.

The Winter Hawks, winning nine of their 10 games from the first of the month to the end of the regular campaign, finished on top, five points ahead of the Cougars. In the same period, Cougars had an 8-6, won-lost record and Seattle, turning things around for its third-place finish, was 8-3.

Momentum, everybody figured, was in Portland's corner.

It didn't help on Wednesday. The Breakers showed they had some of it by defeating the Hawks, 5-2, and in Portland.

"I have to think that taking first place may be starting to work against Portland. I have to ask myself if they shot their bolt in going for first place," said Shupe Thursday.

"We really weren't interested enough in first. It would have been nice to get it (first), but it wasn't the end of the world if we missed. Now that I look back at it, I appreciate the attitude of my players in that last game in Portland.

(Portland won, 5-2, and clinched top spot.)

"My guys played a good game. Except for two bad goals, we could have won it. In the dressing-room after the game, they weren't downcast. They felt badly, but not as if we had lost everthing.

"First really meant a lot to Portland and I think that helps explain Wednesday's result. The game you have to look at is Friday's (Portland at Seattle). If Seattle wins that one, then I would have to say Portland may be in trouble."

Cougars make their first start in the round-robin Saturday night at Memorial Arena, against Portland, and Shupe feels Wednesday's result "was a good one for us insofar as our thinking. It made my players realize this series is not going to be a piece of cake for anyone."

Except for winger Bob Smith, the Cougars are free of serious injury. Smith, sidelined with a badly bruised shoulder, resumed skating this week. The shoulder still troubled him Friday but Smith is expected to be ready Saturday.

Shupe disclosed that, "basically," he will lay the attacking load on three lines, rather than the four he used for most of the regular season. Daryl Coldwell will start alongside the high-scoring combination of Barry Pederson and Greg Adams. But, in all probability, rookie Bud McCarthy may alternate with Coldwell at times.

Rookie Grant Fuhr will start in goal against Portland and Kevin Eastman, the WHL's goaltending champion, will open against Seattle here next Monday. Shupe will continue to alternate his netminders until "performance dictates a change."

Shupe's greatest concern, heading into the first game, is his defence. "They certainly haven't been playing as well at the end of the season as they played earlier. There have been too many giveaways in our own zone," admits Shupe.

There's no question about it. If the Cougars want to make April, and what's left of March, their happy time, the defence will have improve on the inconsistencies detected during the past several weeks.

Tigers accept a good bounce

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Peter Steblyk's goal at 9:20 of overtime provided Medicine Hat Tigers with a 4-3 win over Billings Bighorns in the second game of their Eastern Division quarter-final Western Hockey League playoff series Thursday.

Steblyk scored when puck bounced back to him at the point. Billings goaltender Andy Moog appeared to see the shot all the way, but it hit a Billings player and bounced into the net.

Victory ties the best-of-seven series 1-1.

Pronovost's party turns into a roast

By The Canadian Press

Marcel Pronovost, a former Buffalo Sabre coach now behind Detroit Red Wings' bench, might have thought he was attending a welcome-back party Thursday but he soon found he was being roasted instead.

Pronovost received a 30-second ovation from the partisan Buffalo crowd as he made his way across the ice to the visitors' bench before the game but his appreciative smile quickly vanished as Gil Perreault scored 63 seconds into the game to start the Sabres off to a 10-1 National Hockey League rout.

Danny Gare ended the embarrassment 57 minutes later with his 50th goal of the season.

"It seems like we've always been playing catch-up," said Pronovost, fired by the Sabres in December, 1978, and recently elevated to the Detroit coaching job. "We have an inexperienced defence and we seem to lose our poise."

Scotty Bowman, head coach and general manager of the Sabres, agreed with Pronovost about defensive hockey.

"When we got the jump on them with four quick goals, we forced them to do things they shouldn't," he said. "It was a big win for us."

The victory vaulted the Sabres over the idle Montreal into second place in over-all standings with 101 points to 100 for the Canadiens. Both clubs have five games left, including a crucial game in Buffalo on Sunday.

In other games, Boston Bruins kept pace with the Sabres by dumping St. Louis Blues 7-1 in Boston, Philadelphia Flyers took a step closer to the Prince of Wales Trophy with a 5-2 win over Quebec Nordiques and Los Angeles Kings got a goal in the last minute of play to salvage a 2-2 tie at home to Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Sabres, unbeaten in 15 straight home games, outshot Detroit 32-20 and played stingy defensive hockey throughout. Buffalo is the only team in the league to have allowed opposition shooters fewer than 200 goals this season — 191 have gone past the goaltending team of Don Edwards and Bob Sauve, giving the Sabres a stranglehold on the Vezina Trophy.

Gare drew long applause when he rammed in his 50th goal — a rebound off the back boards. Gare scored an even 50 goals in the 1975-76 season and is the second Buffalo player — Richard Martin is the other — to score 50 more than once.

General manager Harry Sinden, undefeated after three games as interim Boston coach after firing Fred Creighton, says the team is beginning to look like the fiery Bruins of old.

Two goals by Brian Propp in a 3:08 span of the second period helped Philadelphia to its 46th win of the season, leaving the Flyers one point shy of clinching first place in over-all league standings.

Charlie Simmer scored his 53rd goal of the season with 49 seconds left to play to earn the Kings the tie in Los Angeles.

Folk cool under pressure

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Under pressure late in the game, skip Rick Folk continued his shot-making heroics in the men's world curling championship Thursday night.

He made a last-rock takeout with his final shot in an extra end to count two for an 8-6 decision over Sweden's Ragnar Kamp, the 1977 champion.

In the ninth end, with Sweden leading 5-4, the cool Saskatoon real estate agent came through with a brilliant chip shot for two points and the lead entering the 10th.

Those clutch shots kept the Saskatchewan foursome undefeated after eight rounds in the round-robin portion of the 10-country championship. A win over Giuseppe Dal Molin of Italy in the final draw this morning would give Canada a bye to Sunday's title game.

Folk, who made a nifty draw shot in an extra end to beat the United States 5-4 Wednesday night, said the Swedes "curled a super game."

"We were do[illegible] to be in there," said the skip who is looking for Canada's first world men's title since 1972. "You could tell after about five ends that it was going to go down to a last-rock game."

Defending champion Kristian Soerum of Norway and Jurg Tanner of Switzerland both won their eighth-round games in the Air Canada Silver Broom competition to move closer to playoff berths. They shared second place with 6-2 records.

Soerum beat Jorn Blach of Denmark 6-3 and Tanner, sidelined earlier in the week with a sore left hip, whipped Franz Engler of West Germany 12-2.

Paul Pustovar, skip of the U.S. entry from Hibb[illegible] Minn., and Sweden both were 5-3, with a chance to make the playoffs if Canada lost its final game.

West Germany was out of the playoffs with a 4-4 record, while Italy was 3-5 and Barton Henderson of Scotland was 2-6. Denmark was 1-7 and Henri Muller of France was winless after eight games in the Moncton Coliseum.

In other eighth-round games, Scotland defeated France 8-4 and the U.S. stole three in the ninth on the way to an 8-2 win over Italy.

Canada scored three points in each of the third and fifth ends, then coasted to a 9-3 win over France in seventh-round play Thursday afternoon.

The Americans bounced back after losing to Canada on Wednesday with an 8-4 win over West Germany, while Sweden shaded Italy 6-5, Switzerland beat Denmark 7-2 and Norway nipped Scotland 6-5 in an extra end.

Knicks flub big chance

By Canadian Press

An entire season — 5½ months, 82 games — may boil down to six seconds for New York Knicks. A playoff berth was theirs if they could turn one play into a basket.

But Julius Erving picked off the pass, raced down the court and scored with one second to play to give Philadelphia '76ers a 103-101 victory Thursday night, leaving the Knicks in limbo. They now need help from other teams if they are to gain one of the two remaining spots in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"We now cross our fingers and hope Washington Bullets lose," said Knicks guard Michael Ray Richardson, who threw the pass that Erving intercepted.

The Bullets get two chances, at home against Atlanta Hawks tonight and at New Jersey on Sunday. If they lose either of those games, the Knicks will make the playoffs. If Washington wins both, it grabs the playoff berth.

Houston Rockets are also in the scramble, needing just one win to clinch a playoff berth. If Houston loses both, things get complicated.

In a two-way tie with New York, Houston would get the playoff spot by virtue of a better intra-conference record. But in a three-way tie with New York and Washington, Houston would lose out.

All those mathematical gymnastics would have been eliminated had the Knicks defeated Philadelphia.

They led by as many as 11 points in the second quarter, were ahead 100-96 with 2:16 to play and tied at 101-101 with six seconds remaining.

The Knicks called a timeout to move the ball to midcourt and Richardson tried to lob a long pass, but he made one mistake: "I didn't see Doc coming out."

Skaters start tonight

Weekend sports

Something new in the form of speedskating comes to town this weekend and sports fans have a choice of watching that or taking in some hockey, field lacrosse, soccer or rugby. As well, there's a host of sports on television for those who prefer to do their watching at home.

TONIGHT

For those who'd like to try a little speedskating, the North American Indoor championships start at 6 p.m. in Memorial Arena. They continue Saturday and Sunday mornings at 9:30 and the finals get under way at around 11 a.m. Sunday.

In hockey, Saanich Braves and Seattle Northwest Americans square off in the opening game of the best-of-three Pacific Coast junior "B" championship at 7 in Pearkes Arena. Remaining games are at 1 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday, if necessary.

SATURDAY

Those who have become fans of the relatively new sport of field lacrosse here will have a choice of games Saturday — when the Victoria Seasprays take on Burnaby Lakers — or Sunday — when their opponents are the North Shore Indians. Both Pacific Northwest Field Lacrlosse League games start at 1:30 p.m. at Centennial Stadium.

There is a lot of soccer this weekend. As well as a big slate of Vancouver Island League matches Sunday, there is one first-division game Saturday between Victoria Athletics and Oak Bay at 2:15 p.m. at Heywood Avenue Park. And at Lambrick Park, the first annual Gordon Head Soccer Association Jamboree gets under way at 9 a.m. Saturday and continues at the same time the following day.

For rugby fans, there's the McKechnie Cup match between Fraser Valley and the Vancouver Island's Crimson Tide Reps at 2:30 p.m. at Royal Athletic Park. The Junior Tide meets the Fraser Valley Juniors at 12:30 p.m. at Macdonald Park.

And for those who prefer to watch hockey, there's the Western League playoff game between Victoria Cougars and Portland Winter Hawks at 8:30 p.m. in Memorial Arena.

Television

The world curling championships from New Brunswick are highlighted on Sportsweekend on Channels 2 and 6 at noon. On Channel 5 at 1:30 p.m. there's action from the Kemper Open women's golf tournament from California and at the same time there's wrestling on Channel 13.

Channel 4 has auto racing at 2 p.m. followed by professional bowling at 3:30 and Wide World of Sports at 5 p.m., including highlights of boxing and horse racing.

Golf is featured on Channel 7 at 2 p.m. with action from the Heritage Classic and that's followed on the by Sports Spectacular, highlighting college basketball, power lifting and car racing from Long Beach, Calif.

At 4 p.m. fans have a choice of Wide World of Sports on Channel 8 or WCT tennis on Channel 13.

And for the hockey fans, there is NHL action Edmonton Oilers at Toronto Maple Leafs on Channels 2 and 6 at 5 p.m.

District sports roundup

Coast playoff

Defending-champion Saanich Braves will tackle Seattle Northwest Americans in the best-of-three Pacific Coast junior "B" hockey championship series, starting tonight at 7 in Pearkes Arena.

The remaining games are scheduled at 1 p.m. Saturday and, if necessary, at 1 p.m. Sunday.

The winner advances to face the winner of a series between the Northern and Interior champions.

Quadra captured the Greater Victoria elementary school girls' volleyball championship Thursday by defeating Hampton 15-11, 13-15, 13-15, 15-7, 15-3 in the final at Rockheights.

Members of the winning team, coached by Shel Kuschner, were Nicole Bradley, Sherry Butler, Deanna MacDuff, Carol Robinson, Inderjeet Nahal, Angie Hoshal and Diana Provan.

With an outstanding performance by young Mike Montgomery, Molsons defeated Labatts 3-1 Wednesday night to finish on top of the Victoria "A-B" squash league.

Graphic Office defeated Chauney's 4-1 to finish in a tie for second with Labatts, each with 115, and Chauney's ended up with 74.

Barb Hyde collects second pin award

Barb Hyde is back in the spotlight.

Barb, who claimed the fivepin award during the fifth week, captured women's tenpin honors during the 23rd week of competition in the 17th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest.

Al Persicke won the men's tenpin award.

Barb captured her latest laurels with a 193-207-214 — 614 series in the Victoria Mixed League at Mayfair Lanes and Al collected honors with a 217-215-231 — 663 series in the Early Bird Monday League at the same site.

Barb is now qualified to compete in Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs in both divisions — tenpins at 1 p.m. April 27 at Mayfair Lanes and fivepins at the same time May 4 at Mayfair.

Al will be chasing a trophy and cash in the tenpin rolloffs.

CANADA'S OPPONENT

LONDON (AP) — Canada has drawn Yugoslavia in the opening round of the Federation Cup women's tennis competition in West Berlin, May 19-25.

SMILING WINNERS of President's Cup, top athletic award at University of Victoria, are swimmer Judy Newman and rower John Hammond.

Water sports most rewarding

The water sports splashed front and centre at the University of Victoria's annual athletic awards banquet.

Swimmers Judy Newman and Janet Rushcall and rower John Hammond joined basketballer Eli Pasquale in accepting UVic's top athletic awards Thursday night.

The prestigious President's Cup, presented by president Dr. Howard Petch, went to Newman, 21, and Hammond, 23. The awards are presented to the outstanding female and male athletes in her or his fourth or fifth year who best combine scholastic achievement with athletic ability.

Rushcall and Pasquale, both 18, were presented the Robert T. Wallace Shields. Presented by the former chancellor, the awards go to the outstanding athletes in their first year of varsity competition.

Other major award winners were rugby's Julian Paine, 24, and Viking basketball manager Bill Chapman. Paine won the Marlett Award, presented by chancellor Dr. Ian McTaggart-Cowan, as the student who contributed greatest to the athletic program in the areas of service, participation and administration. Chapman was adjudged the team manager-of-the-year.

In addition, a total of 55 athletes were presented block awards after competing in varsity competition for three years.

Former federal Sports Minister Iona Campagnolla, now a television talk-show host in Vancouver, was the guest speaker.

Some heavy chinooks in southern waters

When the wind has eased off around the southern portion of Vancouver Island, fishermen have tied into some hefty chinook salmon.

Don Patterson landed a 14-pounder, a 13-pounder and two smaller chinooks during the past few days while trolling a Radiant silver minnow off the Sooke Bluffs and some other good catches have come from the vicinity of Secretary Island.

Squirts, hootchies and anchovies are all working well and catches have been made at all depths.

Henry Rollin topped a good catch at Becher Bay by boating a 28-pounder earlier this week off Beechey Head. Several limit catches were reported off the Head as well as Aldridge Point and the Bedfords using strip, small minnows, anchovies, green and blue needlefish and white hootchies at all depths.

At Pedder Bay, Tom Seymonsbergen landed a 20-pounder and two smaller salmon Sunday while trolling off the kelp bed. Most chinooks have weighed in between six and 12 pounds and a few blues to three pounds are also showing. Best catches were made with strip, anchovies and needlefish trolled at the 125-foot depth for chinooks and shallower for blues.

Charlie Guiget landed a 20-pounder early Wednesday morning off The Gap at Oak Bay while trolling a hootchie and driftfishermen using Stingsildas have been landing good catches in the same vicinity just before dark.

Sidney fishermen have been having on-and-off success trolling for chinooks and the odd blueback close to the bottom off Dock, James and Coal islands. Rhys Davis boated a 15-pounder on strip Tuesday near the latter spot.

Deep Cove fishermen venturing out to Sansum Narrows and the Saltspring Island side of Satellite Channel have been returning with chinooks to five pounds and a few blues to three pounds. Most were taken on strip trolled at depths between 125 and 150 feet.

Deep waters off Senanus Island and Bamberton have yielded chinooks to seven pounds and blues to 2½ pounds. Best results were noted on Tomic plugs, pink hootchies and small strip.

Fishermen are also having to go deep for the same type of return in Finlayson Arm between Goldstream Island and The Narrows using Squirts, strip and minnows.

Further up-Island, Nanaimo fishermen are landing chinooks to six pounds and a few blues well off Five Fingers on shallow lines around 7:20 a.m. and on deep lines the rest of the day. Luminous hootchies, strip and large Hot Spots have worked best.

Chinooks to 18 pounds are providing Port Alberni fishermen with fair returns around Holford and Rainy bays at the mouth of Alberni Inlet. Troll very deep with strip.

Fair catches of chinooks to eight pounds have turned up on deep lines off Courtenay.

Campbell River fishermen have boated chinooks to 15 pounds on deeply-trolled strip off the Big Rock as well as in Deepwater, Menzies and Duncan bays.

Trout fishing is starting to pick up in a number of spots as some of the low-elevation lakes around the Island start to warm up.

Bait anglers are starting to pick up a few good catches in Somenos, Quamichan, Extension and Quennel lakes.

Other fishermen trolling yellow or orange-colored flatfish off the mouth of Taylor River in Sproat Lake have landed trout to six pounds.

One bright spot on the steelheading picture has been the Nanaimo River, where the success has been described as "excellent".

NIBBLES: Speaking about trout fishing . . .

Be sure to renew your non-tidal sports fishing licence — it expires Monday.

And make sure you pick up a copy of the new regulations.

There have been numerous changes for Vancouver Island — but we'll deal with those in a little more depth next week.

Vernon skier earns 'hunk of prestige'

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Olympic veterans Dave Irwin of Vernon and Cindy Nelson of Lutsen, Minn., won the downhill titles Thursday in the closing session of the U.S. Alpine ski championships.

Irwin, who finished 11th in this year's Olympic downhill, edged Karl Anderson of the U.S. ski team. His winning time was one minute, 4.87 seconds, seven-hundredths of a second better than Anderson.

Doug Powell of Stowe, Vt., was third in 1:05.02.

Jim Kirby of Toronto, although not among the top finishers in the downhill, won the men's combined title.

Irwin said winning Thursday brought him a "good hunk of prestige."

Nelson, the bronze medallist in the 1976 Olympic downhill, said after winning the event for the third time in the U.S. nationals that she'll decide this spring whether to retire from competition.

"I feel like I'm putting out more than I'm getting back," she said.

Nelson won with a time of 1:08.54 down Squaw Valley's KT-22 hill. She deprived Christin Cooper of Ketchum, Idaho, of claiming a sweep of the three women's events.

Cooper, winner of the giant slalom and slalom, was second in the downhill with a time of 1:09.40 and won the combined national title.

Other Canadian placings in the men's downhill were: Robin McLeish, Kanata, Que., seventh, 1:05.64, and Mike Irwin, Calgary, eighth, 1:05.66.

In the women's race, Laurie Graham of Inglewood, Ont., finished third in 1:10.97, Gerry Sorenson of Kimberley, fifth in 1:15.50, Shane Leavitt, seventh in 1:12.06, and Lynda Robbins of Toronto ninth in 1:12.59.

Soccer jamboree on tap

Close to 2,000 players will invade Lambrick Park this Saturday and Sunday for the inaugural Gordon Head Soccer Association Jamboree.

Some 140 teams — 50 from Gordon Head, another 50 from Victoria and the Lower Island and 40 from the Mainland, including a few from Washington State — are expected to take part in the biggest event of its kind ever staged on Vancouver Island.

Players will age from six to 36 in mini boys' and girls' divisions through to senior men and women.

The jamboree kicks off Saturday at 9 a.m., breaks at noon for the official opening ceremonies, and winds up for the day at 5 p.m. Sunday's program starts at 9 a.m.

Starting bargain at Carboro Bay

If you've been wondering how to get into the sailing game, one of your best bargains could be a membership in the Cadboro Bay Sailing Association.

Operating out of the Gyro Park at Cadboro Bay, the club is open to anyone who would like to try their hand at rag-hauling.

The University of Victoria is giving its support to the new club, and Phil Foster of the university's athletics and recreation department will conduct sailing lessons.

So far, classes in the club are Lasers, Enterprises, Fireballs, Flying Juniors and Wayfarers. The latter is particularly versatile, being good for racing, cruising, fishing and all-round use. Would-be members would be well-advised to consider investing in one of these boats in order to ensure some healthy competition when they finally decide to try racing.

The club's first round of evening races will begin May 6, and there will be weekend racing, beginning at 11 a.m., on June 1, June 29, July 30 and August 24.

The club has completed a dinghy enclosure at Gyro Park and fleet captain Rupert Holmes-Smith is organizing a work party this Sunday to build racks for the Lasers.

If you want to know more about the club, I suggest you give him a ring at [illegible]5-7915.

Members of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club will pass up the racing circuit this weekend to do their own thing after a packed schedule last Saturday and Sunday.

Holger Brix's Caliente was over-all winner of Saturday's six-miler. After her came Cam Thomson's Cal-Lorri, Jim Morris' Madeleine, Bill Hingley's Quintango, Daryl Foster's Tzonqua, John Meikle's Anodyne, Gordie Inglis' Water Mellon, Don Wilson's Menehune, Kevin McCullough's Vagrant and H.O. Ramey's Deceiver.

Madeleine won the 10½-mile Sidney Channel race on Sunday, beating out Roger Vale's Temenos, Bob Bentham's Dystocia, Quintango, Water Mellon, Vagrant, Philip Sumsion's Aquae Sulis, Menehune, Tzonqua and Cal-Lorri.

Members of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will also be taking time off from racing this weekend. On Sunday they had the last two races in the around-the-buoys series.

The same three boats won both races in the division for the larger Pacific Handicap Racing Fleet boats. Jack Foster's Sherlock won top honors, runners-up being Fleetwood, owned by Doug Hemphill and Dave Richardson, and Jim Allen's Tiffany.

Vidas Stukas' Jan continued her winnig streak by winning the first race for the smaller PHRF boats, edging Ron Saunders' Irrawaddy and Bob Callow's Minstrel. The second time around it was Minstrel's turn with Jan and Trevor Hayward's Merry finishing right behind.

Gary Cooney's Hocus was the first over the finish line in the first race for Thunderbirds. She was followed by John Davies' Scooter and Rod McBride's LeMolo. Barry Shorter's Kila Kila won the second race. Next came LeMolo and Dennis Robinson's Coco.

Gerry Porter's Lickety Split won the first race in Catalina 27 competition, beating out Geoff Buck's Buckshot and Ron Jewula's Beowulf. Beowulf finished first the second time around, runners-up being Gary Jacobi's Salty Dream and Lickety Spilt.

Stiff winds provided plenty of action on Sunday when local Hobie Cat enthusiasts took part in a three-race regatta, hosted by the Esquimalt Squadron, Canadian Forces Sailing Association. Top Hobie Cat 18 sailors were John Norwood, Urs Ruegsegger and Jim Vosburgh. Heading the Hobie Cat 16 fleet were Rob Woodward, Kevin Blanuw and Colleen Kennaird.

The Hobie Cats will be sailing in waters off the Esquimalt Lagoon this weekend, studying local conditions in preparation for the Race the Best Regatta, to be held there on the Easter weekend.

Members of the Victoria Canoe and Kayak Club will explore Shawnigan Lake this Sunday. They will meet at the Y of the west side road at the south end of the lake around 10:30 a.m. Doug Collis, who will be heading this sortie, can be reached at 592-2309 if you need more information.

Johnston reinstated as captain of Tide

Fresh from leading his James Bay Athletic Association side to victory in the 32-team Monterey Invitational rugby tournament in California and capturing the tourney's most valuable player award himself, Gary Johnston has been recalled by selectors to captain the Vancouver Island Crimson Tide this Saturday.

Johnston, dropped by the selectors before the Tide's 17-9 loss to UBC Thunderbirds at the start of this month, will be in the No.8 slot when the Island Reps tackle Fraser Valley in their last McKechnie Cup game at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

There are a few other changes, too, and James Bay's Tillman Briggs takes over the coaching duties from Oak Bay's Don Burgess, who is on vacation.

Starters with Johnston in the Tide pack are James Bay clubmates Ron McInnes, Ray Rogers, K.C. Walt, Hans de Goede and Ed Polson. The other forwards are Chris Fowler of Oak Bay and Gary Grant of UVic Vikings.

UVic's trio of Ed McCauley, Brook Smith and Greg Smith are the inside backs with Paul Monaghan of Oak Bay at outside centre, James Bay's Chuck Shergold and Cowichan's David Bellis on the wings and Murray Allen of James Bay at fullback.

Reserves are Mick Eckhardt, Paul Mulholm, Brad Miles, Tim White and Kim Clarke all of James Bay, Larry Chung of Castaways, Don Carson of Oak Bay and Jamie Hawthorne of UVic.

All players will be trying their hardest — for two reasons.

Firstly, although UBC Thunderbirds have won both their games and need only to beat Vancouver Saturday to take the round-robin competition, the McKechnie Cup is still wide open. Should Vancouver defeat UBC and the Tide get past Fraser Valley, UBC, Vancouver and the Tide will all be tied for first place with 2-1, won-loss records.

And secondly, Canadian and provincial selectors will be at Royal Athletic Park Saturday looking for candidates for both the Canadian and B.C. teams to play Wales in May.

Crimson Tide Juniors play Fraser Valley Juniors at 12:30 p.m. Saturday at Macdonald Park.

Stone does it again

KELOWNA — Roy Stone of Trail scored four in the seventh end of a playoff game to defeat Bill Osborne of Qualicum 10-6 Wednesday and win the B.C. seniors curling championship.

Osborne and the Stone foursome of third John Cameron, second Reg Stone and lead Al Defoe finished round-robin play with 5-2 records to force the playoff.

The victory for Stone was his fourth in a row. Osborne won the event for curlers over 60 in 1976.

Sather moves up

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Oilers owner Peter Pocklington says coach Glen Sather will become the club's general manager for the 1980-81 National Hockey League season and that the Oilers are now shopping for a new coach.

Weather interupts tourney

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Steady overnight rains forced a one-day postponement today of second-round play in the $300,000 Heritage Golf Classic.

The steady rains flooded the Harbour Town Golf Links and made play impossible. The tournament schedule now has second-round play set for Saturday with a double round of 36 holes for Sunday.

Jerry Pate, winner of the 1976 United States Open as a pro rookie but winless all last year, held a two-stroke lead after the first round after firing a five-under-par 66 in a howling wind Thursday.

"Under the conditions, it may be the best round of the year," said John Mahaffey, who was tied for second.

The conditions were dreadful. Temperatures were chilly and made more biting by gusty winds blowing at 50 kilometres an hour.

Canada's Dan Halldorson fired a 71 and Jim Nelford a 73.

Shamrock helps Sherk

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Cathy Sherk, needing a little luck to revitalize her ailing golf game, got it when she opened her mail Thursday.

Inside the envelope from a friend was a four-leaf clover decal that she promptly pasted on her sun visor.

The lucky shamrock worked its magic. Sherk birdied four straight holes on her way to a three-under par 68 that gave her a share of the lead after one round of a $150,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Mesa Verde.

Sherk and Pat Meyers took a one-stroke lead into today's second round. Hollis Stacy and Jo Ann Washam are at 69.

Canada's other campaigner, Sandra Post shot a disappointing 39 on the opening nine but recovered to finish with a round of 73 for 28th place.

Sherk missed a hole in one by an inch and added another birdie when her bunker shot from 45 feet out rolled into the cup.

And, said the two-time Canadian amateur champion, because she's the superstitious type, she'll wear the same clothes and the same sun visor today. Sherk's best finish so far this year was a tie for 18th.

Lady luck wasn't as kind to co-favorites Nancy Lopez-Melton and JoAnne Carner. Both suffered the indignity of triple bogey sevens on the 17th hole.

Melton, in quest of her first victory of the year, fired a one-over par 72 while Carner, the defending champion, struggled to a 78, 10 strokes off the pace.

Youths going to pot earlier

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has issued a report that says American students are smoking marijuana at an increasingly younger age and the drug they're lighting up is much more potent than before.

In the last five years, the number of high school seniors who use marijuana daily has doubled to almost one in 10. Meanwhile, there is evidence the drug can cause more physical problems than previously believed.

Those are the conclusions of Marijuana and Health — 1980, a report prepared by the U.S. National Institute on Drug Abuse and sent to Congress on Thursday.

Institute Director Dr. William Pollin called the report "disturbing" and added: "My greatest concern is for the youth of our country who, at a physically vulnerable age, are using increasing amounts of stronger marijuana.

"Many young people want to view marijuana as a simple herb with the power to enhance their lives," said Dr. Pollin. "In fact, research is showing it to be a complex drug which can negatively affect learning and motor co-ordination and may eventually lead to serious health problems."

The report said 10.3 per cent of last year's high school seniors smoked the drug daily, compared with 5.7 per cent in 1975. Three-fifths of the seniors had used it at least once, compared with 47 per cent in 1975.

The report also said in 1975 marijuana confiscated by police only occasionally had more than one per cent THC, the drug's active ingredient. "By 1979, samples as high as five per cent THC content were common."

The larger amounts of THC, or delta-9-tetrahydrocannabinol, were attributed to less use of Mexican marijuana and increased use of the stronger Colombian drug.

Past criticism of marijuana has generally focused on temporary pscyhological effects. However, the health department report said the drug can affect memory, motor co-ordination and cause "impaired learning ability."

The report also cited potential physical dangers, saying "it appears likely that daily use of marijuana leads to lung damage ."

Red Brigades quartet gunned

ROME (UPI) — Police today killed four Red Brigades terrorists in a dawn gunbattle at their Genoa hideout during a sweep through several north Italian cities, officials reported.

A police warrant officer, Rinaldo Bena, 41, was shot through the eyebrow in the battle. He wa expected to lose his right eye.

The apartment hideout where three men and one woman were killed is near the scene of two earlier Red Brigades killings and police sources said the raid by the special counter-terrorist squad of the paramilitary state police may have thwarted another Red Brigades attack timed for later today.

Carabinieri headquarters in Rome said other police raids were being carried out in Turin, Biella and Vercelli after "laborious investigations" and that additional raids were taking place in Genoa.

The Carabinieri said that six "presumed Red Brigades members or supporters" had been seized

El Salvador bigwigs flee

Times News Services

SAN SALVADOR — Three senior members of El Salvador's government, including an architect of its sweeping land reform plan, have quit and fled the country to protest the government's inabilility to halt the political violence that has taken at two dozen lives in the last two days.

Economics Minister Oscar Menjivar, Education Minister Eduardo Colindre and Deputy Agriculture Minister Jorge Villacorta left Thursday after submitting their resignations to the military-civilian junta because it was "unable to stop the repression."

There was no comment from the ruling junta as it struggled with the rising tide of violence from both the left and right.

Menjivar, a Christian Democrat, and Villacorta, an independent, went to Costa Rica, while Colindre, a Christian Democrat, went to Mexico.

Villacorta was one of the drafters of the land redistribution program initiated by the government almost three weeks ago to divide large farms among the peasants.

A U.S. land reform expert said it was not yet clear whether the authorities would move quickly enough in taking over smaller farms to defuse mounting tensions.

U.S. Ambassador Robert E. White said the United States would give the civilian-military junta $10 million this week as the second installment of a $50 million economic aid package destined solely for public works projects.

Saudis to hold line on crude

United Press International

Saudi Arabia, the United States' largest supplier of foreign oil, says it will hold the line on crude prices despite Iran's recent oil hike, and Mexico announced an increase of over 23 per cent in the cost of natural gas.

Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia said Thursday his country would hold the line at $26 a barrel.

Yamani was in Ottawa where he was discussing with government officials proposed closer relations between Saudi Arabia and Petro-Canada.

Saudi Arabia provides about 20 per cent of the 8 million barrels a day that the U.S. imports.

Iran announced Thursday it would raise its prices to $32 or $33 a barrel.

Killer count at 33

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — As police reported the body count in the Freeway Killer case may have climbed to 33, a forensic psychologist said the killer who preys on young boys might be feeding off the publicity surrounding the murders.

"He could get caught up in his own drama," Dr. Albert Rosenstein said Wednesday.

Rosenstein has prepared a profile of the person who may be responsible for a string of murders that began in 1972. Most of the nude bodies of the young boys have been dumped along freeways in Southern California. Many were known hitch-hikers.

Most of the victims, all similar in appearance, were strangled. A few were smothered and several died from overdoses of alcohol and Tylenol or chloral hydrate.

CLUES ACROSS

6. DELICIOUSLY not deliriously. It is easier to believe that she would feel flattered, or complimented, in the case of DELICIOUSLY, "Deliriously enjoyable" is exaggerated and may well sound insincere or even sarcastic.

9. FLASH not clash. Against clash, one may not look for harmony in the group's attire, or one may be insensitive to things that clash in color. Things that FLASH can hardly fail to catch the eye.

10. RESIST not desist. He may fail to RESIST as effectively as he should. One may not agree that he should desist entirely.

15. BIKE not bite. He is hoping to catch a fish, rather than strictly to "get a bite" as such.

16. LONG not lone. The clue's thinking in terms of keeping up the struggle over a period, favors LONG rather than lone.
18. FEW not new. It "can happen" (though hardly in a typical case) that advertising attracts only FEW customers. It normally gains new customers.
20. BEECH not leech. One may doubt if the former medical use of the leech was a real case of its being "useful to man."
21. DEDUCT not deduce. To deduce is an automatic function of reasoning; it is not something one is "careful" to do, or not to do, according to the merits of the case.
22. DEACON not beacon. Idiomatically, the clue is better suited to a DEACON, who may be viewed by those who know him as a shining example of virtue, etc. A beacon simply is a light.

CLUES DOWN

1. TELL not yell. Aptly, "keep your mouth shut!" can mean "don't TELL." The fact that to yell necessitates opening the mouth, is comparatively incidental.
2. TIES not pies. "Good taste" means discrimination in matters of dress (e.g., TIES), rather than the good flavor of pies.
3. FIT not hit or wit. As a word that "describes," an adjective (FIT) is more apt than a noun (a hit, or a wit).
4. JUNE not tune. The clue's idea of comparable degrees of hotness favors JUNE. In jazz, the "hot" element lies in performance, it is not inherent in the tune, as a melody, nor is it really measurable.
7. LEAVING not leading. The clue applies more pointedly to that which implies a reason for making some such gesture to the animal.
11. INSOLENCE not indolence. INSOLENCE, as the clue implies, is bad behavior. Indolence, the quality of being averse to work, is more in the nature of a character defect.
12. TELEPHONY not telephone. The clue's concern with broad basics links up with the process or practice of TELEPHONY, rather than with the instrument used (telephone).
14. BLUNDER not plunder. "Blame" applies to sin or error; that is, to a BLUNDER, or to the act of plundering. The blame attached to plundering is not related to sharing the plunder (but to share in a BLUNDER means that all are at fault).

Contract Bridge B. Jay Becker

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	?

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ AK ♡ KQ982 ◇ 94 ♣ Q973
2. ♠ 875 ♡ AJ86 ◇ AQ3 ♣ KQ4
3. ♠ K6 ♡ QJ9743 ◇ QJ8 ♣ A6
4. ♠ J94 ♡ AJ763 ◇ J752 ♣ 5
5. ♠ QJ72 ♡ AQ762 ◇ K5 ♣ K8

1.Three clubs. An opening bid facing an opening bid means game. Obviously, this is a game-going hand, but the best contract is unclear at the moment.

Three clubs (forcing) informs partner of your opening bid values, and also tells him that game in clubs, hearts, or notrump are all possible, depending on his hand.

2. Three notrump. This shows balanced distribution (no void or singleton) and 16 or 17 points. It therefore constitutes a mild slam try. Two notrump would show 13 to 15 points and limited interest in a sam.

3. Three hearts. Here you can play notrump if your partner is so inclined, but you should first shoot for game in hearts, since you have a six-card suit. If North can't support hearts and bids three notrump, you intend to pass. Three hearts is forcing, just as practically all jump bids by responder are forcing.

4. Pass. The chance of making a game with this layout is remote, and the only real problem is to find the best part-score contract. There is no good reason to think that climbing the ladder to search for a better spot than one spade would pay dividends. Partner might take any further bid seriously, and it would be wrong to run such a risk unnecessarily.

Note that the opening bidder's change of suits is not forcing. The forcing principle applies only when the responder names a new suit.

5. Four spades. A raise to two spades would ordinarily indicate 8 to 10 points. Three spades would show 13 to 15. Four spades shows 16 to 17 points and at least mile interest in a slam. In all these cases, distributional values are added to the raw high-card values.

The sequence in question is very different from the case where dealer opens with one spade and responder jumps to four spades. This is a shutout bid that announces lots of trumps and very limited high-card values.

Use of force in Iran crisis not ruled out

Times News Services

With it appearing that the 50 American hostages in Tehran will be held until at least July, the United States has put Iran on notice that it has not ruled out using force to end the 146-day-old crisis.

The only hope offered by Iran that a peaceful solution could be reached sooner than mid-summer came from President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, who said Thursday that Ayatollah Khomeini could intervene and shorten the time the hostages are held.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told the Senate foreign relations committee, "We are reviewing again our options in the event tangible progress is not now made."

He declined to be more specific on the options but State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said some news reports misinterpreted the administration's intentions by suggesting the United States had ruled out using force.

"I did not rule out the use of military force," Carter said. "I meant to give the notion that we would be reluctant, but we are not ruling it out."

Deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi — the object of the militants' siege at the occupied U.S. embassy in Tehran — rested in a Cairo hospital after receiving blood transfusions to build his strength for surgery.

Iran claims in new documents that the shah bought large amounts of gold to give away as gifts and spent lavishly for his royal palaces, The Washington Post says.

The allegations against the monarch reportedly were contained in documents that Iran prepared for filing in Panama in an attempt to seek extradition from that nation of the shah.

Meanwhile, more than $1.3 billion in loans made to Iran during the final years of the shah's regime may have violated the Iranian constitution, the Wall Street Journal reported today.

The newspaper said the loans, by syndicates led by Chase Manhattan Bank, may eventually be ruled illegal by the courts, with Chase forced to return the interest paid on the loans.

In related developments:

— New fighting has broken out in Iran's northwestern province of Kurdistan province, where the ethnic Kurds renewed their campaign for autonomy.

— Three of the six Americans who escaped from Iran last January sued the Iranian government for $90 million in damages Thursday.

— Hojatoleslam Ali Khamenei, a leading Iranian clergyman told a Moslem prayer service today the American hostages will "certainly" be tried "to ensure the extradition of the shah."

Gas, oil hikes push reserves

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasoline and crude oil supplies in the United States reached record levels last week as price increases continued to curb consumption, the American Petroleum Institute said Thursday.

For the week ended March 21, gasoline supplies increased to 280.5 million barrels from 278.4 million barrels in the previous week and were substantially higher than year-ago inventories of 243.5 million barrels, the API said.

The industry organization has said U.S. gasoline use ran nearly nine per cent behind year-ago levels in February as prices of regular gasoline rose by 50 cents to nearly $1.20 a U.S. gallon. Overall, the U.S. oil industry delivered 13.2 per cent less petroleum in February than it did a year before.

Crude oil inventories were a record 360.5 million barrels, up from 351.5 million barrels in the previous week and 321.9 million barrels a year before. The previous record for crude oil inventories was 356.3 million barrels set during the week ended March 7.

Supplies of distillates, used for home heating and diesel fuel, fell to 176.9 million barrels from 179.3 million barrels in the preceding week, but remained ahead of year-ago inventories of 116.4 million barrels.

Gasoline production in the latest week was 6.6 million barrels a day, compared with 6.6 million barrels a day last week and 6.7 million barrels a day a year ago.

Distillate output was 2.6 million barrels daily in the latest week, against 2.8 million barrels daily a week before and 3.1 million barrels a year earlier.

Crude oil imports rose to 5.9 million barrels daily from five million barrels daily a week earlier and 5.8 million barrels daily a year ago.

U.S. refineries ran at 78.2 per cent of capacity in the latest week, off from 78.8 per cent a week earlier and the year-ago level of 84.4 per cent.

Scarsdale plea

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — School headmistress Jean Harris pleaded not guilty today to killing "Scarsdale Diet" author Dr. Herman Tarnower.

Westchester County Court Judge John Couzens Jr. set May 13 as the hearing date for legal motions. The trial is not expected to begin until late fall.

Mrs. Harris — who has been confined for two weeks at a psychiatric hospital, and was left $220,000 in Tarnower's will — has been indicted in the March 10 shooting of the author of The Complete Scarsdale Medical Diet, a book she is credited with helping him write.

Vandal account paid

Damage to washrooms at the Panorama Leisure Centre in North Saanich, apparently caused by 12 and 13-year-olds, has been paid for by the Peninsula Minor Hockey Association.

Centre manager Brian Storrier said $130 was paid for five mirrors and $105 for a broken toilet.

Storrier said there have been sporadic outbreaks of vandalism, but nothing of a serious nature.

Icy ordeal ends for CN ferry

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Tired of the jokes about hostages and being the new "boat people," about 250 CN Marine passengers stepped ashore from two Nova Scotia-Newfoundland ferries here and at Halifax early today, ending a week-long ordeal by ice in the Cabot Strait.

One elderly lady among 140 passengers aboard the Marine Atlantica, stuck six nautical miles off here since last Sunday, asked a steward what was for supper. She's going back to Newfoundland on the return trip.

In Halifax, Mrs. Bill Timbury and 110 others disembarked from the Marine Nautica after an 18-hour trip around the ice-blocked Cape Breton port and echoed most when she said her trip was "enjoyable but lengthy."

The passengers and crew of the Marine Nautica waited five days in Port Aux Basques for ice to open up at North Sydney before sailing to Halifax.

But even those on the Marine Atlantica showed no bitterness when they finally reached the CN dock here at 7:40 a.m. AST.

"We had a grand old time," said George Sanders of Port Aux Basques. "It's good to be back on land."

Capt. Ray Diamond of the Marine Atlantica said passenger took the situation in stride. He helped ease the boredom of children by inviting some to his cabin and letting them pose for pictures in his uniform cap.

Prince to visit Pearson College

Prince Charles will visit Pearson College next week.

He is expected to arrive in Victoria Tuesday evening but his public appearances won't be until Wednesday when he attends the international council meeting of the United World Colleges at Pearson College. He is president of the UWC.

Weather permitting, a short hike on the college grounds is planned.

Then it's back to the city for a reception at Government House and then to the Royal Theatre for a stage presentation by Pearson students.

The next day he will leave for a private visit to Florida.

Grievance over 'sick' mechanics

The city plans to launch a grievance with the Canadian Union of Public Employees over the one-day absence from work last November of about a dozen mechanics at Victoria's Garbally Road works yard.

Council voted Thursday to accept the recommendations of the civic administration on the matter, when 11 CUPE members booked off sick.

Council members were reluctant to give details, but CUPE outside local president Jim Walker said the city docked the men a day's pay, claiming they were not actually sick.

He said no effort was made by the city to determine whether they were sick.

In the past, supervisors have checked their homes or the men were seen elsewhere, Walker said, but this time the city cut their pay without checking.

He didn't know if it was actually a job action because he wasn't there that day, but Walker pointed out that a couple of the men were off sick the day before and some the day after and they were credited with sick leave for those days.

Walker also objects to the manner in which the dispute was settled.

CUPE's contract says grievances shall be referred to city council, but it went instead to the personnel committee.

The matter was debated behind closed doors last week.

Passenger safety on E&N queried

NANAIMO (CP) — A Qualicum alderman said Thursday he's amazed people risk their lives riding the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway.

"It is only a matter of time before there is a serious accident," Edward Baker told a public hearing.

He said the E & N, owned and operated by CP Rail, is 100 years out of date. Ties are rotting, spikes are often loose or missing and many of the rails date back to the 1900s.

He said the deplorable conditions on the line will only be remedied if the federal government takes control of the entire railway system in Canada.

CP Rail attempted to abandon the line in 1978 but was ordered to continue and upgrade operations by the Canadian Transport Commission.

Briefs from two regional districts and municipalities along the line, railway and paper worker unions, and private submissions stressed concern that a major disaster — similar to the derailment of chlorine cars which forced evacuation of Mississauga, Ont. last fall — could occur because of the line's condition.

The hearing was called by Ted Miller, New Democratic Party MP for Nanaimo, who said he and other MPs wanted to lobby for better safety measures. Attending with Miller was Jim Isler, regional manager of the CTC's railway transport committee.

Howard Blake of the United Transportation Union, which represents E & N workers, called for legislation for tougher national railroad standards. Lack of adequate maintenance and shortage of section repair crews are responsible for this situation, he said.

He pointed out a marshalling yard here is used as a storage area for cars carrying chlorine, sulphur dioxide, explosives and other dangerous cargo.

His union expressed concern about the lack of emergency measures in the event of a major disaster involving dangerous goods. Similar concerns were expressed by spokesmen for pulp unions in Port Alberni and Nanaimo.

Hugh McAuley, CP Rail regional manager, acknowledged some sections of the line are in poor condition, but said the line is generally safe. While many track sections require upgrading, he said the Island service is not a main route, and hauls only a fraction of the freight passing over the line.

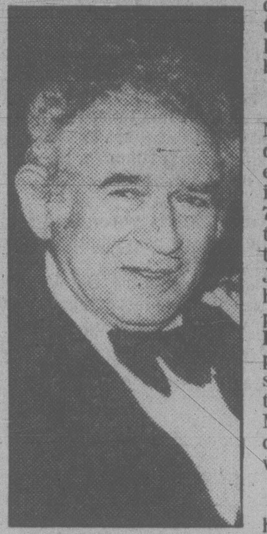
Two Canadians have been elected fellows to the Royal Society of Britain, the highest scientific honor offered in the United Kingdom. Dr. Zbigniew Stanislaw Basinski, head of the crystal plasticity group with the National Research Council of Canada and Prof. Louis Siminovitch, professor and chairman of the medical genetics department at the University of Toronto, were among the 40 scientists elected during a society meeting last week.

Canadian dancer Karen Kain is in demand these days. She got yet another call from Lee Majors congratulating her on her performance in the National Ballet in Ottawa. And Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, another recent date of the world-famous dancer, asked for a ticket to the show and let it be known he'd be backstage to greet her.



Norman Mailer

Author Norman Mailer has been ordered to pay his fourth ex-wife $575 per week in alimony for the next 7 years, plus any inflation increases during that time. Probate Judge Shirley Lewis has ordered Mailer to pay Beverly Rentz Bently Mailer the $575, plus $200 per week for support of their two teen-age children. Mailer had claimed during testimony he was $400,000 in debt.

"Nonsense" was how Buckingham Palace described published reports that Prince Charles would be announcing his engagement to Princess Nora of Lichtenstein. Papers on both sides of the Atlantic have said the marriage is imminent, but royalty remain mum. Nora says the prince is charming, "but I could not say I know him very well."

Charges against the father of the boy who found part of skyjacker D. B. Cooper's ransom money have been dropped, says an Oklahoma prosecutor. District Attorney Don Roberts said in a telephone interview that he will make no further attempt to extradite Harold Ingram, 28, to face charges of illegally removing a mortgaged vehicle from the state. "That mixup is resolved now and everyone down here is happy now," Roberts said.

Sylvia Tyson, half of the folk singing duo of Ian and Sylvia that made Four Stong Winds famous, is upset that she is not recognized as being an individual artist now. Her marriage to Ian broke up three years ago and she says she doesn't like being linked to the past.

Dear Abby

I am a straight "A" high school student (girl) who has always wanted to be a nurse. When I told my high school counsellor that I had chosen nursing, he seemed disappointed, and asked. "Why?"

I told him I wanted to help people, and he said. "With your brains, you should consider medicine, all a nurse does is carry bedpans and follow the doctor's orders."

Now I'm confused. Should I drop the whole idea? What is your opinion?

Planning My Future

Dear Planning:

Nursing is one of the most interesting and rewarding professions a caring person could choose. As a nurse, you may indeed carry a bedpan; but you will also comfort a frightened child, calm and reassure an anxious patient, alert a physician to a change in a patient's condition, teach people how to care for themselves, and much, much more. And you can do these in a variety of settings — hospitals, clinics, physicians' offices, schools, public health agencies and in private practice.

Talk with your school nurse or contact a school of nursing in your community for information about professional nursing. Then share that information with your high school counsellor. He has a lot to learn!

Dear Abby:

I am a 45-year-old woman who has always had a very deep voice. I think it is getting deeper with age, because I am being called "sir" more frequently when I talk on the telephone.

Can you think of something snappy I can say to correct these people who call me "sir" without embarrassing them too much?

Getting in Deeper

Dear Getting:

Skip the correction unless it's important for the gender-bender to know whether you're a "sir" or a "madame."

Dear Abby:

I went out to dinner recently with friends and asked for a doggie bag for the leftover rolls, as I heard that according to the laws, once a basket of rolls is placed on your table, they are not to be served to anyone else.

My friend said I was mistaken — that bread and dinner rolls should not be taken home. I left the crackers because they were individually wrapped in cellophane an could be used again.

Who is right?

Margaret H.

Dear Margaret:

You are.

Living in the labyrinth

By BRUCE LEVETT

TORONTO (CP) — The sun does not burn them, nor do the blasts of winter chill the marrow of their bones.

A generation is emerging in Toronto that, in its day-to-day operations, need not experience more than the slightest suggestion of the extremes of heat and cold that govern life in Canada's largest metropolis.

A stockbroker living 12 kilometres north of the heart of Toronto moves each morning to the subway station. There, he encapsulates himself for the long ride downtown.

He debarks at Union Station and, without braving the elements, plunges into a tunnel leading to the Royal York Hotel.

From there, he joins the throng striding north, underground, past rows of restaurants, book shops and boutiques toward the Toronto-Dominion Centre or Commerce Court; up toward First Canadian Place; on through The Lanes and into the Sheraton Centre.

Take your choice from there — head on toward the city hall, still underground, or bob to the surface for an instant and cross to Simpson's department store.

From there, you may continue north through the incredible Eaton Centre.

Or come at it from east or west, via subway or commuter train, 28 kilometres into town.

The magnitude of the operation can be understood in the realization that some of the buildings under which these commuters pass house more workers than the population of some small Canadian towns.

Like a domed city of science-fiction, this modern-day anthill stretches for more than a mile under the sun-baked or blizzard-swept streets of Canada's largest English-speaking city.

Just getting to work, these moles walk beneath four massive towers of Canada's leading banks — Montreal, Toronto-Dominion, Commerce and Royal.

The network encompasses shopping malls, pedestrian walkways, more than 400 retail outlets, two large department stores, city hall, the largest movie complex in the world — 18 theatres — the main railway station and two of the city's largest hotels.

The most recent addition to this vast labyrinth is the newly opened extension of the Eaton Centre, northern terminus of the hidden city.

The 860-foot glass galleria, modelled after the showplace in Milan, houses more than 250 shops, restaurants and boutiques on three levels.

Fountains cascade or jet upward more than 100 feet. Live trees spread their branches over park benches. Profusions of greenery trail downward from white-railed terraces.

So real is the illusion of endless summer that flights of tough city sparrows have taken up permanent residence among the indoor eaves.

Here you may shop for Spanish boots, English china, Italian knits, Canadian carvings, Hawaiian coral, Danish silver and Chinese silks — and, at lunch, you may linger over shepherd's pie and a pint at an imported British pub.

Come look up at waterfalls or pause to read on one of the square, futuristic park benches; or climb toward those sparrows in a glass elevator.

At one point it's possible to pause to watch customers doing their banking in front of an impersonal television screen.

There are fake, tube-like stalactites hanging from the ceilings and real evergreens growing from the floors.

Everywhere there is contemporary art — wall hangings, tapestries, paintings and sculpture.

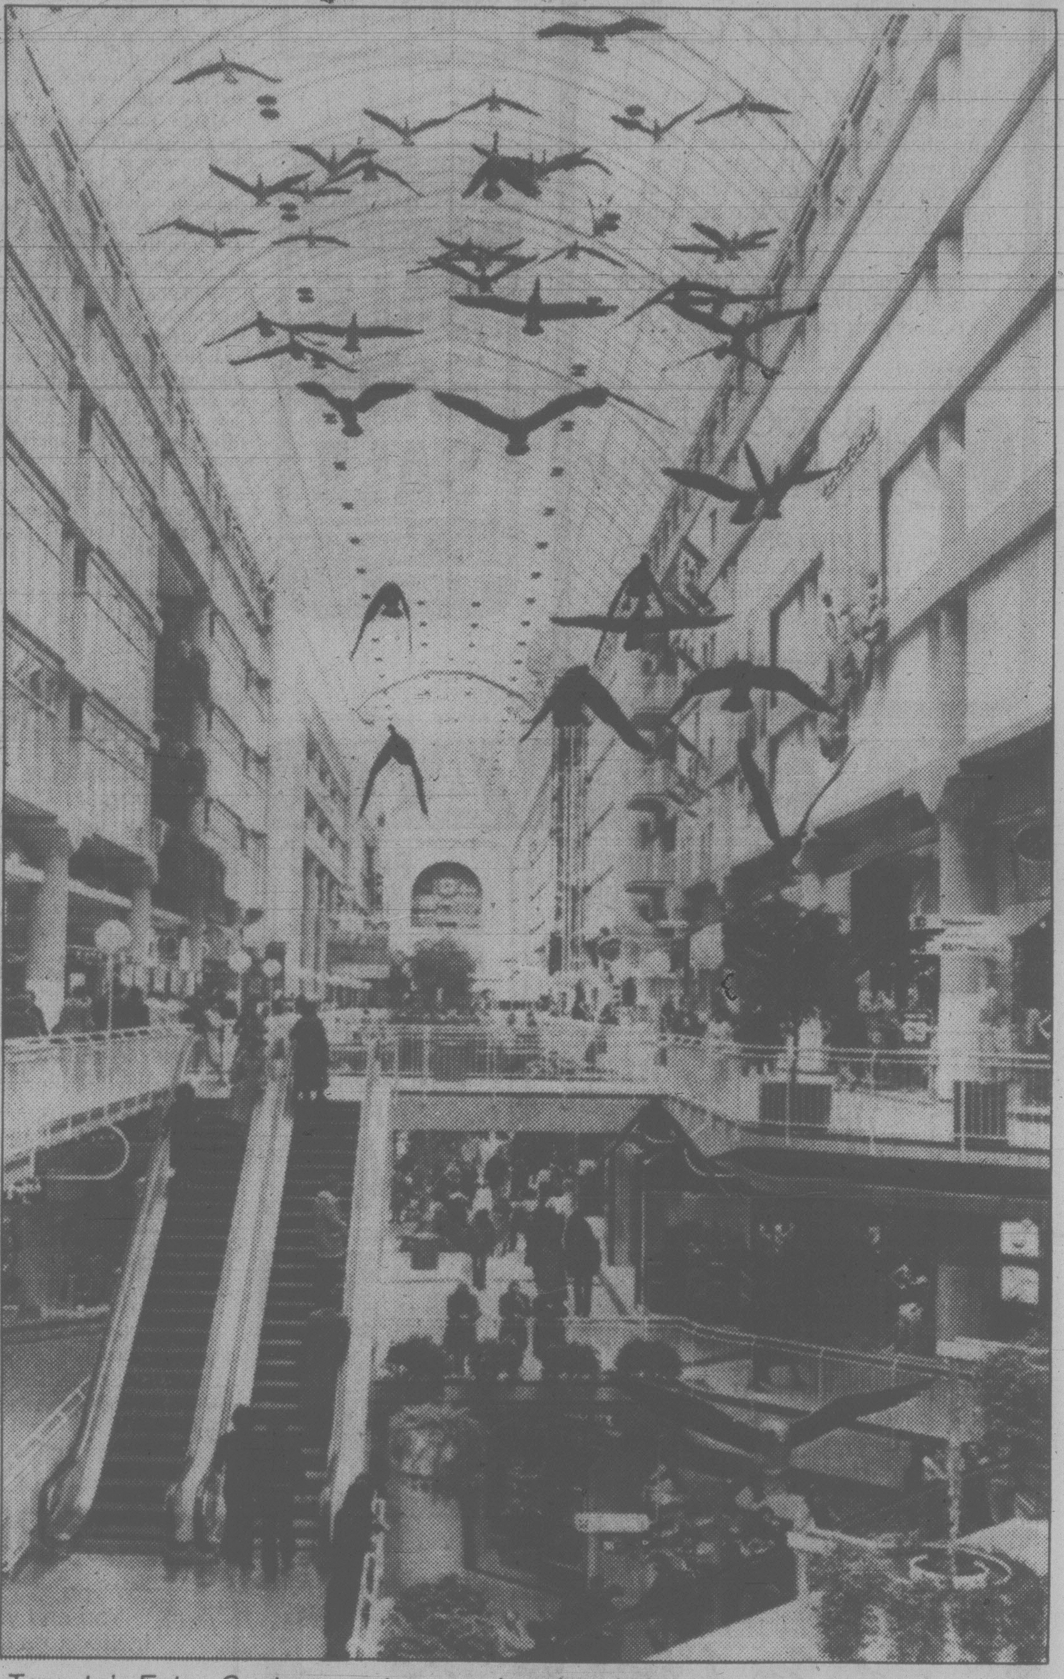
But go outside every now and then to look up along the serrated walls of the Royal Bank headquarters.

From the windows reflects a warm glow, given life by 2,500 ounces of real gold fused into the glass. Gold, today, is worth nearly $700 an ounce.

A few years ago, there was a spot of doggerel penned by the late Ralph Allen, one of the most esteemed of Canada's reporter-editors:

In Toronto the Good, it must be understood
That sin is a thing to bewario.
So, if you are bad, be sure to be sad,
For nothing is fun in Ontario.

Not any more, Ralph. Not any more.



Toronto's Eaton Centre uses trees and sculpted birds to create illusion of spring

Perking up a plastic environment

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — The modern office is usually depicted as an austere, plastic environment where robot-like employees perform mundane tasks — conducive to efficency but not employee morale.

One way or another, most companies try to combat worker alienation produced by such environments. Some may brighten up the office with Muzak or plants, others may offer worker lotteries, bowling leagues and contests. But compared to the investments of life insurance companies, these efforts are peanuts.

London Life, for example, offers its 1,500 head office employees picnic grounds, tennis courts and a clubhouse beside the Thames River in London, Ont.

The Burlington head office of CUMIS Life Insurance Co. is set in an apple orchard, where employees lunch at picnic tables overlooking a small lake. In winter, they can ski on the 135-acre grounds.

In Waterloo, the Mutual Life Assurance Co. offers saunas, whirlpools, sumptuous changing rooms, fitness classes, 50-cent lunches, prize-winning flower gardens and much more.

These are known as perks — the casual amenities attached to an office beyond salaries or wages. In the past, perks were offered to keep wages down and unions out. Now they're offered to brighten up the workplace and improve morale.

Bruce Powell, of the Canadian Life Insurance Association, says the insurance industry in southwestern Ontario has been providing extra amenities to its workers since the turn of the century. At that time, firms felt a need to provide leisure facilites for young people drawn from towns to the cities.

This may work well in small cities, but in Toronto, one company's experience shows that such employee perks may be out of place in the big city.

When Confederation Life moved its head office to downtown Toronto in 1955, it set up a posh staff-house for its employees, complete with a theatre, billiard rooms, photography dark rooms and even a rifle range.

It thrived with activity until the mid-1960s. But as people moved to the suburbs, interest dropped, forcing its closing in 1975.

Despite this experience, many experts think there is still a future for on-the-job perks. "There is a definite trend toward improving the environment at work so people will feel good about going to work every day," says Cy Eber, corporate affairs director of Toronto-based Manufacturers Life Insurance Co.

Eber says more firms in other sectors will imitate the insurance industry and offer their employees a slice of the good life at the office.

If flying gives you a pain, here's help

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

I really suffer during plane descents. My ears not only clog up, but the pain is unbearable. Since I travel a lot I would appreciate any suggestion you may have for either preventing or treating this situation.

Mr. T.R.

Dear Mr. R.:

In addition to the routine suggestions of chewing, swallowing and yawning, there are a few other techniques that can help people like you to ease the excruciating pain you suffer during the descent of planes.

A few drops of a decongestant nose solution used in the nose on ascent and descent can be helpful.

When pain is particularly severe, the stewardess can supply a "hot cup" which can be placed over the ear or ears. This hot cup consists of a teacup with a small napkin inside. Boiling water is poured over the napkin, then squeezed out. This leaves the warm cup which, when applied to the ear, brings welcome relief. Of course, one must be sure that the heat transmitted from the cup does not burn the surrounding skin.

It must be emphasized, of course, that people with allergies should use their antihistamine or anti-allergy drugs before flying. Flying with a cold, or with an acute attack of sinusitis, increases the possibility of discomfort.

Dear Doctor:

I spent almost $150 for hormone creams for my baldness. Not a single hair has come back. I know I was a sucker, but why do they allow such advertising that promises a new head of hair?

Mr. T.T.

Dear Mr. T.:

If spending $150 by falling into a tempting trap of fraudulent advertising makes you a "sucker," then I must agree with you.

I would speculate that the cream or lotion that you bought probably did not contain any of the male sex hormone (testosterone). For there are many legal statues that do not allow the use of hormones in over-the-counter cosmetics.

A great many scientific studies were made seeking the value of hormones for the regrowth of hair. The original enthusiasm raised the hope, but not the hair, of bald men.

"Miracle" cures of all kinds are at best, exploitative. If there were any proven value to the extravagant claims that are so openly advertised, you can be sure doctors would have known about them. No worthwhile scientific conclusion is kept a secret from doctors everywhere.

Unfortunately, despite your story and my reaction to it, thousands more will, in all likelihood, join the sucker list.

Portrait of a real volunteer

A Brief Biography:

Africa: Lived there over 30 years; 20 years is Colonial Civil Service in Northern Rhodesia (Zambia); clerical, secretarial, administrative experience.

Bahamas: 3 years trust company administrative work.

Victoria: 4 years in office of former MLA Dr. Scott Wallace; 2 years of that time as constituency secretary.

What assumptions would you make about the person described above? Would you be surprised to learn that this is the brief life account of a woman who is deaf and is a volunteer?

Maida Sandford does not support the popular notions of what a deaf person, or a volunteer, should be. She would like to help explode the myths and misunderstandings many people have about those who are handicapped and, indeed, about those who volunteer.

Maida has been a faithful volunteer at the Victoria Volunteer Bureau office for over 2 years. She has the capacity to see things that need doing, or things that can be done better, and she promptly goes to work on them. We think the office would fall apart without her.

Three mornings a week she reads newspapers for pertinent clippings, processes statistics, keeps the filing system up to date, and even finds time for general jobs like office tidying and organizing. She is thorough, extremely capable, energetic and enthusiastic — a really important person in the Volunteer Bureau's office. The United Way of Greater Victoria thinks pretty highly of Maida, too. Each fall, Maida is one of the office volunteers who help them with the fall campaign.

Maida's hearing gradually diminished after she took drugs for malaria; over 25 years she's become almost completely deaf. She says that coping with handicaps is hard on both sides — and consequently the program is sometimes "swept under the rug." Many deaf people refuse to admit their own handicap — and many other people doubt a deaf person's ability to function normally, let alone contribute actively to society. Maida proves that this prejudice is unfounded. She has limitations (as we all do) but has learned to do the many things she is good at, and accept the things she can't do.

There are myths about volunteering too. There are still people who believe volunteering is only for rich elderly ladies with time on their hands or boring "goody-two-shoes" types trying to force charity on "needy" people. If these stereotypes were ever true, they are long out-dated now.

Reasons for volunteering are many and varied, but there is one common factor. Maida says, "It's a two-way street, isn't it? If you have a skill or 'gift' that someone can use, then it benefits both the volunteer and the recipient."

Below is a sampling of agencies who have requests for volunteers right now.

'Juvie' is the nickname of a juvenile detention centre in Victoria. "Juvenile delinquents" despite the unfortunate label are really just kids who are in trouble and need help with a lot of problems. Volunteers are always needed for office work, supervising groups in various activities, teaching crafts, helping in education programmes, and just offering support and frienship to the youngsters.

Two groups avoided by many people are prison inmates and "ex-cons." A correctional centre re-entry programme needs mature people to work individually with inmates in social activities and as drivers. Another program, operated by a non-profit society, needs persons able to assist in evening activities at William Head Penitentiary. A talk with the coordinator, and their excellent orientation period should help volunteers deal with fears and prejudices about this work.

Our society often seems unable to deal with diseases and death in an emotionally helpful way. Cancer is one of the most feared diseases. The Canadian Cancer Society works to help lessen those fears caused by ignorance. They are looking for assistance in health education programmes in schools and for drivers to take patients to the treatment clinic. No special knowledge or background is necessary for either job.

Immigrants are another large group of people that sometimes have to cope with prejudices from the community, on top of the basic problems associated with moving to a new country. An intercultural organization has a variety of needs for people to help newcomers adjust and practice new language skills, to offer friendship and assistance and to act as interpreters and drivers. People who were once new to Canada themselves are especially welcome.

Stroke victims themselves, as well as family and friends, often have false ideas about the implications and limitations of this condition. There is often a good, long life ahead for the person who has suffered a stroke. Victoria is lucky to have a Stroke Club which deals with problems associated with stroke recovery; the club needs people to drive their members to club meetings. They also need volunteers who can look after general preparations for the meetings on a regular basis.

Care to learn more about some of the groups who could use your skills or gifts?

Then please give the Victoria Volunteer Bureau a call at 386-2269 any weekday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Dear Mr. Levine: I am a 14-year-old girl and my sister is 18. Because of problems at home, I moved out and am living with my uncle. Last week when my uncle and I went for dinner at my house, my sister started pushing me around.

I had a sharp handled brush in my hand and was hitting her with it as though I were stabbing her. I completely lost control because she has often beaten me before and I was scared. My mother was crying and I said to her, "If I had a knife I would have used it." My sister and I fight so much and so often, I'm afraid to go home.

Answer: You are right to be scared. Too often serious injuries or worse are inflicted on one member of a family by another. Violence has a way of escalating, and developing a "life" almost of its own. And this can be among family members who at other times are loving and mutually supportive. It is obviously much more frequent, and dangerous, in families where there is ongoing strife and tension.

Your family seems to be beset with serious problems, so much so that you have had to move out at an early age. Has your family ever sought or received help in the form of family counselling? It sounds to me that you would all be advised to do so as soon as possible.

Discuss this with your mother, and even with your sister (not during a fight, obviously). They may be just as motivated as you are to improve relations in the family. If they refuse outright, or ridicule the suggestion, then you would be well advised to seek some help on your own. It would also potentially help you improve your own personal life so that you need not be so dependent on a destructive family.

Get in touch with the local branch of the family service agency; they will surely be able to help you.

Dear Dr. Powell: I am worried about my boyfriend's health.

He is a 19-year-old, who has an ulcer and is very thin.

I told him to go to the doctor, for a checkup, but he said, the doctor probably would put him on a strict diet, and tell him to stop smoking and drinking.

I want him to stop smoking so badly, I've run out of things to say or do. He said he just can't, it's been a habit for so long.

Answer: It is great for you to be concerned about your boyfriend's health. He needs someone to take an interest in his life style because he does not appear to care about himself.

Unfortunately what happens is that you come across as a nag and not as a help to him. Smoking is one of the leading health hazards and a major factor in both deaths and illness in adults. Your boyfriend knows this as well as you do and your badgering is not helping him to stop smoking. He may want to stop but finds it is difficult so he is excusing himself by saying it s a habit of long standing and he cannot help himself.

Your boyfriend's present health problems are certainly partly related to his smoking and he would feel better if he quit.

You might try to persuade him to join a group which will help him quit smoking. The one problem is that his success will depend on his real desire to stop.

Dear Mr. Vichert: I am a 15-year-old girl and I like a guy who's 15. When I'm talking to a boy I like, I get nervous and giggly. I realize I get this way and some of my friends have told me I mustn't act so silly. How can I stop this terrible nervous habit?

Answer: It is quite natural to feel a bit nervous when you are talking with someone that you like a lot. As you get to know the person better some of the nervousness will go away and you will feel more comfortable. People have different ways of showing their nervousness — yours is giggling. Don't worry about that. Your giggling may seem like a very nice part of you to the boy that you are talking to.

Sometimes it helps if you acknowledge to the person you are talking to that you feel a bit nervous and this makes you giggle. It could also be a topic of conversation. You could ask the boy if anything happens with him when he is feeling nervous.

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel including Marion Powell, physician; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and social worker Bruce Vichert.

Send questions to Youth Clinic, The Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria V8W 2N4. Readers wishing to talk with someone about their problems can call NEED at 386-6233.

A carload of ideas for going it alone wheels

by mike lamm

Dear Mike: I'm a woman who usually drives alone. Could you suggest a list of tools that I should keep inside my car in case of roadside emergency? Also, how often should I have my car's wheels aligned, tires checked, oil changed, filter changed, transmission checked, and engine tuned? — Going It Alone

Dear Going: In addition to your spare, jack, and lug wrench, it's wise to carry the following inside your trunk: medium-sized Phillips and regular screwdrivers, pliers, a small crescent wrench, plus a set of open/box-end wrenches ranging from 7/16 to 3/4 inch (or 9-17mm if your car uses metric nuts and bolts). I also suggest carrying an A-B-C fire extinguisher alongside the driver's seat.

As for service intervals, the following are my own personal suggestions and might not congrue with your owner's manual: change oil every 2000 miles, oil filter at 6000 miles, check tires every other gas fillup, alignments every 18,000 miles, tuneups and change automatic transmission fluid every 24,000 miles. Check master cylinder, power steering reservoir, transmission, battery, radiator, and rear axle every oil change.

Dear Mike: There's no way to shut off the blower motor in our 1975 Bonneville. Why? — Windtunnel Kid

Dear Kid: Lots of cars with "flow-through" ventilation systems use the heater blower to maintain positive pressure inside the passenger compartment. You'll note vents inside your door pillars or on your decklid. If there weren't some pressure always pushing air out through these vents, exhaust fumes might leak back through them.

Dear Mike: I own a 1971 Chevrolet Vega and wonder whether it's a good idea to keep the thermostat in this engine's cooling system. I understand that electrolytic action between the aluminum block and the copper thermostat can cause the thermostat to stick. Should I remove the thermostat, especially since winter is almost over? — Stitch In Time

Dear Stitch: I don't recommend removing the thermostat, but in aluminum engines it's a good idea to replace the thermostat every 50,000 miles or so. In other cars, since there's some electrolysis even with cast-iron blocks, I suggest changing thermostats every 80,000 miles. The purpose of an engine thermostat is to help the engine warm up more quickly, thus preventing wear and excess fuel consumption.

Soap opera scene

Michael Levin, reflecting on his four-and-a-half years with the Ryan clan, describes his character Jack Fenelli on Ryan's Hope: "brutally honest and brutally independent."

Levin believes that he was fortunate to be a part of Ryan's Hope from its inception. He appreciated its off-beat nature which leaned heavily on the melting pot flavor of New York City.

"We started with the premise of honesty in the problems most people face," said Levin. "Conflicts were not on such a grandiose scale. Now we're more of a standard soap, full of involved plots and big incidents, but we are still trying to hold on to what we had and blancing somewhere in the middle."

In his view of the whole daytime picture, Levin thinks that soap operas are currently in a period of transition; and the changes, especially in the area of technical production, are exciting.

"What's ironic," said Michael, "is that on Ryan's Hope, we've been doing Jaws, The Godfather, and King Kong, while one of the most popular films of the year, Kramer vs. Kramer, has the basic ingredients of a soap opera."

Michael contends that although the Syndicate shoot-out at Ryan's bar and his slow motion dream sequences are exciting, action is still very difficult to do within the confines of a soap where you have to turn out a new show every day. In addition, he feels that there is always the danger of getting overly involved with the trappings rather than content.

Levin frankly admits that he has felt confined now and then on the show and almost left last year but claims his current situation is terrific.

The challenge has helped him sustain his character after such a long time. The directors trust his instincts, and he calls creator-writers, Claire Labine and Paul Mayer, anytime to make suggestions.

They may not always take his advice, but they listen and that's what it's all about for down-to-earth Michael Levin.

PLOT PORTENTS

The death of Bob Anderson is a bombshell on Days of Our Lives. The newly wedded Mary is in a state of shock and Phyllis is numb because she was about to get back with Bob.

All these new faces on The Young and the Restless! Victor is bearing down on Julie, while Carl continues to check on Suzanne and Jonas reveals his feelings for Leslie at the hospital.

Tom gets suspicious about Barbara's sudden plans, and tries to dig into her past about Paul's father on As the World Turns. Meanwhile, Joyce's growing reliance on Grant upsets everyone in Oakdale.

Delia faces another kind of ordeal on Ryan's Hope. Trouble looms for Siobhan while Kim makes an admission that stuns Rae.

Daisy becomes bored and tempts fate on All My Children. Frank's plans take a surprising turn and Chuck fires Donna's jealousy.

Ivan develops a new evil plan on One Life to Live. Meanwhile, Tina focuses on Mick and there is great concern about Jack.

Raven dreams up a foolproof plan to get Jamey back on Edge of Night, while Logan has his own ideas on how to keep Raven away from their son. Also, Emily's mysterious past unravels bit by bit.

Federal funded no? Odious: Rene

QUEBEC (CP.) — Any use of federal government money to help the no side in the referendum campaign would be "odious and illegal," Premier Rene Levesque said Thursday.

Levesque warned federal politicians they will have to abide by Quebec's strict expense limits during the referendum campaign if they decide to participate actively with the no forces.

Provincial laws apply to all citizens of Quebec, even if they are federal MPs, the premier told a press conference.

"And that includes the honorable gentleman over there," he said in a reference to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Asked what he would do if federal Liberal MPs embarked on a parallel campaign using public funds, Levesque replied: "It's an iffy question . . . but if they do, we'll see."

Maurice Dupras, head of the Quebec Liberal caucus in Ottawa, said Wednesday the 74 Liberal MPs from the province had decided to take an active part in the no campaign and use literature provided by the Canadian unity information office during the referendum campaign.

Dupras said MPs would go to court if necessary to challenge the Quebec law.

Quebec Liberal Leader Claude Ryan said Wednesday that the federal government is entitled to defend itself and its programs in the face of Parti Quebecois attack.

The law says that each side in the referendum campaign must be grouped together in special umbrella committees, through which all referendum spending must be channeled.

Each side is limited to spending $2.1 million during the formal campaign period. Since the referendum writs have yet to be issued, spending now is uncontrolled.

Levesque said he has no objections to federal politicians campaigning during the referendum as long as they don't use federal public funds, and he called on them to first take care of the federal administration, which he compared to "an abandoned boat."

"If they've got leisure time, they can use it" during the campaign, he said, but suggested they stay in Ottawa to work during the week.

The premier suggested that the Quebec wing of the Liberal Party of Canada become an affiliated group with the no committee since it appears they don't agree with provincial Liberals on constitutional change.

"They should become a useful third, fourth or fifth wheel," he said.

Ryan has said that the federal Liberals, as well as the Progressive Conservatives and the provincial Union Nationale will be represented on the official no committee itself.

Polar bears' deaths 'not too high a price'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The death of polar bears was not too high a price to pay for the information obtained in a recent oil spill test on the northern animals, an official connected with the project said Thursday.

"It will give us information that will protect a very substantial proportion of the polar bear population if we have to actually react in a spill situation," Dr. Norm Snow told a news conference

Snow, project manager for the federal department of Indian and Northern Affairs, said the tests have shown that in the event of an oil spill, it would be necessary to scare polar bears out of a spill area or physically remove them.

Snow insisted that the information could not be obtained without the project.

The conference was staged by the Polar Bear Care Committee, a provincial government-appointed group formed to ensure safe and humane treatement of the bears.

Reporters asked repeatedly about assurances that the bears would not be harmed.

Rick Hurst, a research biologist, who took part in the tests, said no one expected the bears to ingest the amount of oil they did.

"We thought that they would probably lick a few times, become aware that this was not the best thing to be ingesting, and then stop," he said. "In fact, they licked for a period of at least 12 hours."

When reporters asked why it took so long for anyone to be informed that the bears were sick, Dr. Merlin Shoesmith, head of the Polar Bear Care Committee, said it wasn't considered a life or death situation.

Supreme court reviews Quebec language law

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada agreed Thursday to hold new hearings on the validity of Quebec's controversial language law.

In a December decision, the court ruled that English is an official language of the province's courts and national assembly. That ruling struck down a portion of Quebec's French-language charter.

Since the ruling the question has been whether the judgment also applied to regulations or orders of statutory bodies or to bylaws of municipalities and school boards.

The Quebec government asked the high court to reopen hearings to decide this point and the court today agreed to do so.

The court said today that the hearing will be confined to these points only "as distinct from orders-in-council and ministerial orders or regulations which were in issue" in the original hearing.

Three Montreal lawyers who contested the validity of the law making French the only official language of the courts and legislature, told the court that they support Quebec's application for a rehearing.

Widow sues engine maker

MONTREAL (CP) — The widow of a Montreal pilot who died a year ago in the crash of a Quebecair F-27 near Quebec City has filed a $1.5 million suit against Rolls-Royce Ltd., manufacturer of the aircraft's engines.

In the suit, filed Thursday, pilot Andre Bessette's widow Jacinthe asks $1.25 million for herself and $250,000 on behalf of the couple's two daughters.

The damages were claimed because of loss of her husband's income support.

The crash of Quebecair flight 255, from Quebec City to Montreal, claimed the lives of 17 people March 29, 1979.

Natural gas row unwanted

The Canadian Petroleum Association Thursday night told Energy Minister Robert McClelland it hopes a dispute over natural gas prices does not erupt into a major battle like the Ontario-Alberta feud over the cost of oil.

"There's a confrontation coming between the federal government and Alberta that's going to be world-shaking," the CPA's B.C. chairman Eric Connor of Calgary told a meeting at the Empress.

"We hope we don't have that problem here."

At issue is the fact oilmen have not received an increase in the price they get for their B.C. natural gas for more than two years.

Their operations in Alberta have had six price hikes in the same period.

They were hoping McClelland, who was the keynote speaker at their final dinner, would announce a price hike.

He disappointed them.

McClelland has only been energy minister since November and is reviewing oil and gas policies.

"I'm not in a position at this time to tell you how the government will deal with short and long-term strategies for field and wholesale pricing for natural gas. I can only say that I hope to have answers for you soon."

Connor expressed disappointment but agreed the minister might need more time. But he warned if there is no increase by June, there could be a significant reduction in drilling activity in B.C. next winter.

Both sides expressed optimism that former B.C. deputy finance minister Gerry Bryson, newly-appointed Victoria manager for the CPA, will be a useful mediator in the debate.

McClelland said he was pleased by the appointment of Bryson because it is sometimes difficult to communicate on B.C. matters with an organization centred in Calgary.

In his speech, McClelland said increases in natural gas prices are inevitable.

"Under current pricing, users of natural gas are paying less than half the price paid by oil users and approximately one-third the price of electricity.

"Domestic users of natural gas are being subsidized at the rate of about $100 million per year, which comes directly out of the B.C. Petroleum Corporation's export revenues."

Because of recent increases in transmission costs, B.C. domestic customers are paying less for natural gas than what it costs to deliver it to them.

"The price of natural gas to consumers may well have to rise.

"However, the matter of gas pricing must be related to a number of elements, not least of which is the impact of rising prices on B.C. users of natural gas."

Use This Home Recipe Plan to Lose Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky unsightly fat right in your own home. Use this recipe plan yourself. It's easy — no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full twice a day and follow the Naran plan.

If your first purchase does not show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears — how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Notice of Subsequent Hearing

TO: CORY HUNTER ELLIOTT

Take Notice that on the 10th day of April 1980 at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon, a hearing will take place at the Provincial Court at 238 Government Street, Duncan, B.C., to review the Order made by Judge Lance Heard on September 30, 1974. The purpose of this hearing is to review the Permanent Order of Committal made on your son CORY HUNTER ELLIOTT b.d. 18.01.62. For further information please contact Ministry of Human Resources, 238 Government Street, Duncan, B.C. Attention Brian Thicke, 748-0351.

SOMEWHERE IN VICTORIA there must be a lady of single status in her forties who has raised her family and is looking forward to a life of her own where the companionship of a gentleman of similar experience would be desirable. Mutual assets should be well tempered disposition, intelligence, physical attraction, the desire for a relationship of some depth and a variety of interests such as literature, music, the pursuit of learning, the outdoors, dining and dancing and home life. If interested please respond with brief particulars and telephone to Victoria Press Box 270.

CARING & Sharing—Gentleman, tall and attractive, studious nature, of some intellect, varied interests, professional occupation and good income, seeks honest sincere female companion in her 40's or younger, without ties, to care for and share with. Please send snap and phone number. Victoria Press Box 269.

I'D LIKE TO MEET A MAN, who could answer this ad without embarrassment because he wants to meet a bright woman, under 30, interested in sailing and photography. I'd like a relationship on mutual trust rather than role playing. Please respond honestly and with respect. Victoria Press Box 291.

UNATTACHED PROFESSIONal man, mid forties, seeks lady friend on whom to lavish his affection. I enjoy sailing, cycling, music, laughter, elegant dining, theatre. Occasionally I like wearing ladies apparel in my home. Box 6492 Station C, Victoria, V8P 5M4.

LONELY FELLOW, 37, HONest, average looks, new to Victoria and just starting own business, loves music and fine art. Desires to meet a very special lady under 28, for friendship, companionship, possible marriage. Please write Victoria Press Box 294.

309 IN MEMORIAM

BEGGS - in loving memory of my wife dearest Rose who left on March 28, 1979. Gone but leaving memories death can never take away. Memories that will always linger. While on this earth we stay. Forever Bert.

FLYNN - In loving memory of my husband, Jim who passed away March 28, 1979
Looking back with tenderness
Along the path he [illegible]
I bless the years [illegible]
And leave the [illegible]
What would I give [illegible]
hand,
His happy face to see [illegible]
To hear his voice and see his smile,
That meant so much to me.
If all this world were mine to give,
I'd give it, yes and more,
If I could see my loving husband,
Come smiling through the door.
So many things have happened,
Since he was called away,
So many thing to share with him,
Always remembered and sadly missed, Dora.

309 IN MEMORIAM

FRANCE - In loving memory of dear brother John, who fell asleep March 28, 1971, Mother 1952, Dad 1943, and dear brother Herbert 1938.
Daniel 12:1. And at that time shall Michael (Jesus) stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people (the Jews who have returned to their land of Israel, Jeremiah 16:14 to 21, Isaiah 62, and there shall be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time and at that time thy people shall be delivered even every one that shall be written in the book (of Life).
Verse 2. And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting comtempt. Verse 4. But hou O Daniel, shut up the words and seal the book even to the time of the end (of the Babylonian era of Satan's kingdom, preparing for God's kingdom to be brought on earth, Dainel 2:31 to 45, Daniel 7:19 to 27, Revelation 13:1 to 18, (verse 17 the common Market) and Revelation 19:19 to 21 and Revelation 20:4, Daniel 12.4 Many shall rush to and fro and knowledge shall be increased.
Ever remembered by sisters and brother, nieces and nephews.

HITT - In loving memory of Annie Gertrude who passed away March 28th, 1970.
Rest in Peace
Ever remembered Tom, Jack & Kay & all the family.

MUSGRAVE - In loving memory of my dear husband William (Bill), who passed away March 29, 1978.
I remember the day I met you,
And the Day God made you mine,
I remember the day I lost you, dear,
And I will till the end of time.
But through the tears and heartache, dear,
There is one thing that makes me glad,
It was me you chose to share with you,
Our love and wonderful days together.
Dearly loved and sadly missed, his wife Susan.

Plants rate highly in scent value

gardening

hilda beastall

The scent of flowers and plants are known to be difficult to describe, for it may be either fragrance or odor according to personal preference.

Among annual plants more are credited with scent than are found in the perennial flowers; shrubs cultivated in our gardens are comparatively high in scent ratings, there being a few for each season.

So let us look at scented annuals first, for these will be among the bedding plants soon to be seen for sale at garden centres and nurseries.

High among flowering annuals for fragrance must surely be sweet peas. To their pervading sweetness is added rich or delicate colors and airiness of form. And the plants can be kept in continuous production from late May through September with a few stragglers likely to make the Thanksgiving table.

Second on the annual list for many gardeners is the sturdy 10-week stock. Since the doubles are the ones sold for bedding purposes there is no need to cut flower stems before every blossom has opened. There will be no seeds from the doubles.

When the heavy central stem of stock is finaly cut off, side shoots with smaller numbers of blossoms keep the fragrance going for a few weeks longer.

Mignonette is seldom seen in today's gardens though the seeds are displayed in the packet racks. Seedlings do not transplant easily, making it necessary for the gardener to sow into the flowering places where the plants are to grow for the season. Give it fine good soil and a warm sunny spot, which may even become fairly dry by flowering time. Too much mignonette in a house bouquet is — well, too much. Use one good flower head and leave it at that. In the garden the scent is lovely.

Ornamental-tobacco (nicotiana) is a delight both outdoors and indoors, after sundown. For the house, keep a large vase of cut stems in an inconspicuous place during the day while the blossoms are closed. You'll find the fragrance becoming noticeable at the day's end as they open. For those not familiar with this plant, ornamental-tobacoo does not smell like smoking tobacco. It has a somewhat elusive fragrance similar to that opetunia to which it is related. Both have the same hairy and rather sticky stems, leaves and flowers, no doubt because of the plentiful scent glands.

It is at the end of the warmest of our summer days that we are aware of many of the garden scents. The heat is responsible for bringing to the surfaces of the flowers their volatile oils, especially those depending on night flying moths for pollination in their native lands.

Perhaps this is why some years we feel cheated of our garden scents when temperatures do not rise, and in other summers we have a fine surfeit on one or two days.

Indoors we can often enjoy the flower fragrances that we fail to notice outdoors. This can be due to the indoor warmth replacing the ocean breezes of the garden.

Even pansies are noticeably sweetly scented when picked and put into low bowls near favorite chairs in the livingroom. They smell of fresh honey (to me), but just sweet to others. Although not strictly an annual, pansies will bloom during the early summer if sown early enough in the year under cover.

The other plants named today are true annuals, needing to be replaced each spring if you would have the pleasure of their fragrances during the warm days and evenings of summer.

UNIVERSITY OF VICTORIA INVITATION TO TENDER

Sealed tenders for the construction of a McKinnon Building Extension will be received by the University of Victoria up to 2:00 p.m., Pacific Standard Time, on 24 April, 1980 at the office of the Director of Campus Planning, Room 109, Saunders Building, University of Victoria, and will be opened in public immediately thereafter.

Plans, specifications and tender documents may be obtained from John A. Di Castri, Architect, 1976 Oak Bay Avenue, Victoria, B.C. upon payment by cash or cheque of $10.00, which sum will be refunded if the plans and specifications are returned to the Architect in good condition within two weeks of tender close.

Tenders shall be submitted in accordance with the Instructions to Bidders contained in the specifications. Each tender shall be accompanied by a Bid Bond in the sum of 10% of the tendered price, and shall be open for acceptance for thirty days from the date of submission. The lowest or any tender will not necessarily to accepted.

Aldermen boost salaries by 7¼%

The old debate about making sacrifices to perform civic duties and whether aldermen should be full-time politicians was revived Thursday night as Victoria city council voted unanimously for a 7¼ per cent pay increase.

The increase — the same as the city's employees got this year — gives aldermen an annual salary of $9,874 and Mayor Bill Tindall $26,306. Two thirds is an indemnity; the rest is paid in the form of an expense allowance.

These salaries are well below the pay levels of senior city officials. City manager Jim Bramley will be paid $55,128 this year as the top civil servant, while the comptroller-treasurer Mason Sheldrick gets $45,672, and city engineer John Sansom and city solicitor Jakob de Villiers are each to be paid $47,520.

"I think the issue here is: is this a full-time job?" said Ald. Bob Wright.

"We here are a board of directors," he said. Just as directors of major corporations like Ford Motor Co. don't get a full salary for serving on the board, neither should aldermen be paid for a 40-hour week.

"We receive fair remuneration."

In the Victoria area, Wright said there are about 60 politicians and "if you start looking at each one as a full-time job, my God, I feel sorry for our taxpayers."

On Wednesday, Wright and Mayor Bill Tindall voted against a a pay raise for Capital Regional District directors (differing with Ald. Bill McElroy, the city's third representative on the CRD), and Wright handed his $685 increase from the board over to the Chinese community's fund-raising campaign for the Gate of Harmonious Interest in Chinatown.

He also said he thought some of his council colleagues were overpaid already.

But the vote at city council was unanimous for the raise.

Aldermen McElroy and Robin Blencoe were the only other members of council to speak, and both supported the raise.

McElroy, who has always urged higher salaries for aldermen, used statistics presented earlier in the evening by Colin Aykroyd, president of the Fairfield Community Association, to bolster his contention that they were underpaid.

Aykroyd's table used the consumer price index to translate council salaries for the last 10 years into constant 1971 dollars. In real terms of buying power, pay for the mayor and aldermen has actually gone down, he said.

In future, council should try to find a formula that would keep it from falling behind, maybe a per capita basis or something tied to the wage increases of the lowest-paid union worker at city hall.

Blencoe said he has always considered himself a full-time alderman, but he ran for council and agreed to the existing pay.

The salary level probably prevents a lot of ordinary people from running, because unlike self-employed businessmen they can't take time off from their nine-to-five jobs to attend to civic affairs.

Crematorium battle joined

Victoria council voted Thursday night to join Saanich and apply for a B.C. Supreme court injunction to block construction of a crematorium at Hatley Gardens cemetery in Colwood.

The city and Saanich jointly operate Royal Oak Burial Park and crematorium, the only one south of Nanaimo, and some aldermen fear the new facility will make the municipal crematorium a money-loser.

Ald. John Cooper, Victoria's representative on the Royal Oak operation's board of trustees, said the board voted unanimously earlier in the day to try to get a court order against the Colwood crematorium, which is now under construction.

The new owners of the Colwood cemetery, Valleyview Memorial Gardens Ltd., claim they need the crematorium to provide revenue to restore the graves and grounds, and also to serve the two-thirds of their clients who prefer cremation over burial.

Two strikes on Danclair's development

Danclair Developments Ltd. — twice rejected by the Advisory Planning Commission (APC) and city council — may get lucky the third time in its attempts to build a commercial project in the 1600-block Hillside.

In January, it had a proposal to block off Scott Street for a small shopping mall on the south side of Hillside, opposite the existing shopping centre, but both bodies rejected it after residents complained about the street closing.

The company returned earlier this month with a scaled-down plan that would leave Scott open but still swallow up three residential lots. The APC liked this plan a little better, however, recommended against it.

Aldermen agreed Thursday night with the commission.

But another attempt is to be mounted.

City planner Peter Crisp told council the company will make a third appearance before the APC in April with revised plans.

"Three times and maybe they'll be lucky," said Ald. Bob Wright.

In other zoning matters, at a public hearing by council on a bylaw to change the zoning of the empty CBC headquarters building at Blanshard and Kings, the Crown corporation's real estate manager spoke against the plan.

The city is gradually rezoning such properties to PB — public buildings — but CBC official Robert Burns said that would greatly restrict the corporation's freedom of action. Plans for the building are uncertain, but if the CBC decided to sell PB zoning would limit the price it could expect.

Burns said the CBC still plans a local radio station, but it would take up only a small part of the building.

Blanshard is now the main entrance into Victoria and the city wants to keep poor quality commercial enterprises off the strip, he said.

The bylaw will come up on the agenda next month for adoption.

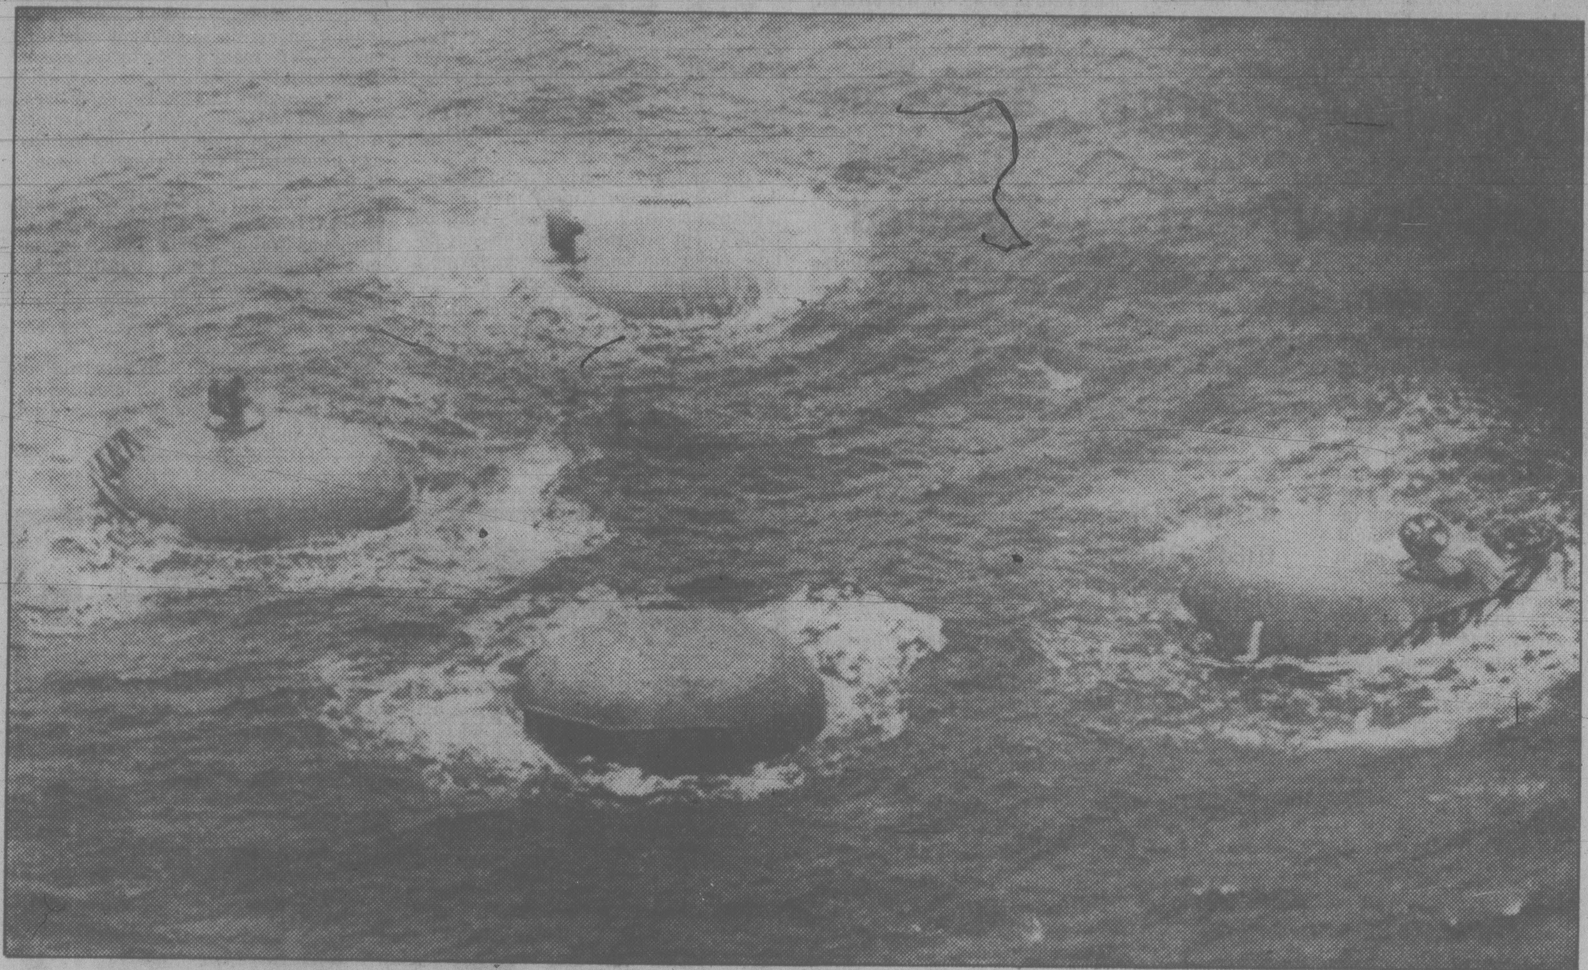
Oil rig disaster toll mounting



Four remaining legs of belly-up oil platform show on surface as divers desperately search below for survivors

Armada combs icy North Sea

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Divers today hammered on the hull of a capsized platform used as a floating hostel for workers looking for survivors of the worst disaster in the history of the North Sea oilfields.

With 139 men now reported dead or missing, the biggest rescue operation since the Second World War was under way with more than 2,000 people manning scores of ships, planes and helicopters.

Divers, operating at depths of up to 27 metres and using underwater television cameras, were checking for signs of life in the platform's submerged living quarters.

"They are hammering on the hull but so far there has been no response from inside," said Per Erik Bjorklund, spokesman for the Phillips Peroleum Co. which leased the 10,000-ton Alexander I. Kielland. "We are giving every priority to the search for survivors."

Tugs were standing by to latch onto the rig. Norwegian helicopters ferried dozens of survivors to hospitals here. Most escaped serious injury but are being treated for exposure.

Revised figures show there were 228 workers on board the platform when one of the five legs collapsed Thursday night during a storm that produced winds up to 96 kilometres an hour and six-metre waves. The rig listed briefly before overturning in 73-metres of icy water 160 kilometres west of Norway.

Phillips Petroleum listed 101 men still missing, 38 bodies recovered and a total of 89 workers rescued. Previously 149 survivors had been reported.

Visibility in the search area was described as good with dwindling winds after poor weather in the morning. But rough weather is forecast for later in the day.

At least 46 ships have been deployed in the search over 10,400 square kilometres in the Edda oilfield on Norway's continental shelf. Planes and helicopters from Britain, West Germany, Denmark and Norway joined the rescue.

Most of the workers aboard the platform were working, sleeping in the hotel or watching a movie when it capsized.

"There was an almighty crack . . . then chaos," said Tony Sylvester, a British rig worker briefly trapped in the hotel's movie theatre.

"It suddenly toppled right over and everybody was in the sea," said Sylvester, 35, a father of three from Grimsby, England. "Everybody was climbing up to the top that could make it and clinging on. Nobody knew what to do."

Many of the missing were feared trapped in the overturned rig.

Olav Forsheim, a Norwegian rig worker, also was watching the movie. "We were all thrown back against the wall, and the light went out, leaving us in complete darkness."

People panicked as they started for the doors, which soon became jammed, he said. Men not inside the cinema grabbed life jackets or just hurled themselves into the water, looking for a raft, he added.

In London, the British foreign office said among those aboard the platform were 170 Norwegians, 35 Britons, three Finns, one Spaniard and one Portuguese.

An investigation has been ordered into the disaster, the second of its type in the North Sea. In December, 1965, the British Petroleum drilling rig Sea Gem collapsed during a storm with the loss of 13 lives.

The Sea Gem collapse was subsequently blamed on a fatigue fracture in one of the legs.

One British government specialist told the London Evening News newspaper that sea water might have seeped into a crack in one of the buoyancy tanks of the Alexander I. Kielland and upset the rig's stability.

In Paris, the French firm that built the platform, Compagnie Francaise d'Enterprises Metalliques, said 11 identical rigs are in operation throughout the world and are "renowned for their stability."

Mountain spews gas, ash

SPIRIT LAKE, Wash. (UPI) — Sulfur gas and ashes from erupting Mount St. Helens plumed three kilometres into the sky today and spread over a wide area.

Observers, fearful of a full-scale volcanic eruption, moved back farther down the mountain.

The 2,950-metre volcano, 80 kilometres northeast of Portland, Ore., which has been dormant since 1857, exploded to life Thursday with a loud boom in the first volcanic eruption in the continental United States since California's Mount Lassen erupted in 1914.

Although no lava had yet been sighted on the mountain, observers were moved beyond an 8-kilometre radius. The intense heat from two crescent-shaped fissures across the top of the mountain — one five kilometres long, the other 1500 metres long — melted the volcano's snow pack and sent water cascading down the slopes.

A U.S. Forest Service plane spotted the blackened plume of ash and gas at 3 a.m. PST rising 300 metres above the mountain. Within 30 minutes the vertical column had risen 2,000 metres above the cone-shaped peak, which has been compared in beauty with Japan's Mount Fujiyama.

Don Swanson, a scientist with the U.S. Geological Survey who was aboard the plane, said the craft flew through the plume to get a look at the crater.

He said they noticed "a terrible rotten egg smell" from the sulfur fumes and steam.

Ash was falling eight kilometres from the crescent-shaped fissures near the volcano's summit, and officials said "an avalanche of ash" flowed down the peak's northwest flank. A steam cloud from the inferno rose 3,000 metres above the summit and floated at least 30 kilometres in a southeasterly direction.

Sgt. Dallas Reel of the Cowlitz County sheriff's office, on duty at a roadblock about 13 kilometres south of the base of the mountain, said he was in radio contact with a newspaper crew on the north side of the peak when they reported at 1:48 a.m. that "the mountain was spewing stuff out."

Reel said he and another deputy went to the base of the mountain where they could see the column of smoke and ash.

"But the main thing was the sound effects," Reel said. "It was rumbling, cracking and banging. It was unnerving."

Asked if it was frightening, Reel replied:

"That's why we moved the road block down here," to Cougar, about 17 kilometres from the base of the peak.

A crew of four or five was stationed at Swift Dam, 11 kilometres from the base of the mountain. It is the closest of three Pacific Power and Light Co. dams on the Lewis River that were lowered to handle any increased runoffs resulting from mudslides and melting snow.

Residents of Cougar and of Toutle River, about 55 kilometres from the volcano's base, were warned to be ready for possible evacuation because of the latest explosion.

But Dot Elmire, owner of the Cougar store, said she would not leave "unless a lot of ash starts falling."

Shaken by a week of many earthquakes in the range of 4 on the Richter scale and smaller tremors too numerous to count, the cone-shaped mountain first blew its warning Thursday. Officials immediately evacuated several hundred loggers, Forest Service personnel and residents.

Thursday's eruption touched off snow avalanches and spewed ash 55 kilometres away. A murky steam curled into the sky. No one was hurt.

Scientists have said the greatest danger from a full-scale eruption would be gigantic mud slides moving at 80 to 95 km/h, clogging streams and creating the problem of possible downriver floods.

Most of the 250,000 people in the mountain's three-county area of Southwest Washington live more than 30 kilometres from the peak.

Gloom and doom forecast too cheerful: economist

Visit the stars

Marsha Mason, who has been nominated for an Academy Award this year, is the public half of a powerful husband-and-wife team.

Husband Neil Simon writes comedies while she stars in them when the plays are turned into movies.

It was a bit of a surprise in 1978 when she was nominated best actress for her performance opposite Richard Dreyfuss in The Goodbye Girl. Dreyfuss won an Oscar for his performance in the movie.

This year Mason is back and has a better chance with her portrayal of a man's second wife in the Neil Simon movie Chapter Two, apparently vaguely based on Simon's life story.

Mason has tough competition, however, from Sally Field, Jane Fonda, Jill Clayburgh and newcomer Bette Midler.

The Victoria Times and VI*90 are offering readers a chance to win a trip for two to Hollywood via CP Air with weekend accommodations for correctly predicting the Oscar winners for best actress, best actor and best movie.

A full list of rules and the official entry form are printed in an advertisement on page 16 today.

The Academy Awards will be announced April 14.

OTTAWA — While the nation was wringing its hands this week over the Conference Board in Canada's most pessimistic economic forecast 26 years, its author was privately confessing the board had not gone nearly far enough.

"To tell the truth, we've been too optimistic," said Thomas Maxwell, the board's chief economist in an interview.

In fact, the board — one of the country's half dozen most influential economic institutions — has a track record of being too cheerful in its forecasts, he admitted sadly. And it looks like it's happened again.

The board is officially predicting, for instance, that the cost of living will go up by 9.7 per cent this year. But none of its economists really believe the country can make it through 1980 without hitting double-digit inflation.

For the record, it is predicting an unemployment rate of 7.8 per cent — one of Canada's better showings since the mid-1970s. But Maxwell said the official unemployment figure hides as much as it tells.

Many companies are hanging on to employees they don't really need in the hope that business will pick up in a year or so. At the same time, serious shortages of skilled workers are developing in some industries, while others have reached the stage where they have little choice but to contemplate massive lay-offs.

One of the glaring question marks in the Conference Board forecast is its treatment of oil prices.

Until the board officially hears otherwise, its policy is to assume — on the record, at least — that oil prices are going up by $1-per-barrel every six months, just as they always have. Maxwell knows that is nonsense.

So, instead of the 0.3 per cent jump built into the board's inflation forecast for this summer's oil price jump, he figures the new Liberal government's soon-to-be-announced oil price regime will mean a jump of at least 0.7 to 0.8 per cent in the consumer price index.

But there is a matter which su[illegible] any of these statistical underestimates. The old economic measures don't tell the whole truth anymore.

On the surface, for instance, it looks as if Canada is doing a dramatically better job of fighting inflation than the United States, which this week reported an 18-per-cent rise in price levels. Canada's current inflation rate is 9.4 per cent.

Dramatic comeback for stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market scored a dramatic comeback this morning after a massive wave of panic-selling pushed it to its most spectacular nosedive on record Thursday.

The Toronto Stock Exchange index of 300 selected stocks jumped 58.69 to 1761.20 in the first two hours of moderately active trading.

All 14 stock groups in the composite index advanced, led by oil and gas, which soared 211.49 points to 3768.53.

Beset by crashing prices on precious metals markets and soaring interest rates, the market plunged 95.65 points to 1702.51 Thursday, wiping almost $6 billion off the market value of companies listed on the exchange.

It was the worst daily plunge since the Toronto Stock Exchange started keeping daily records [illegible] 1, 1976, surpassing the drop of 82.56 points on March 17.

In the aftermath of Thursday's sell-off, the Toronto Stock Exchange announced this morning that margin requirements — the amount of money required from investors as a down payment when they borrow money from stockbrokers to buy securities — will be reduced to 50 per cent from 60 per cent, effective April 7.

Roller wins on red

HAMILTON (CP) — Although he admitted going through a red light, a Hamilton man skated around the law in traffic court Thursday when a justice of the peace ruled that his roller skates were not a vehicle.

The skater, Michael Magee, a 22-year-old pinball machine repairman, was charged last January by a city policeman for failing to yield after he saw him skate through a red light in downtown Hamilton.

But Justice of the Peace Clayton Gledhill dismissed the charge after Crown Prosecutor Arnold Renshaw conceded that a roller skater is a pedestrian.

Cattle

CALGARY (CP) — Total sales today at the Calgary public stockyards of 311 head were mainly feeder and stock calves.

There were too few slaughter cattle on offer to quote prices.

Light receipts of average condition kinds of feeder cattle met a moderate local demand.

Light receipts on feeder steers over 800 lbs. were steady.

Feeder steers 600-800 lbs. were $4 lower. Feeder heifers sold steady to 50 cents higher.

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market continued to soar in active mid-afternoon trading today, staging a remarkable recovery after enormous losses Thursday.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said margin requirements will be reduced to 50 per cent from 60 per cent effective April 7.

The exchange raised margin rates to 60 per cent last Jan. 23 in an attempt to curb speculative interest in securities.

Among industrials, Dome Petroleum gained 5⅛ to $62⅛, Gulf Canada 5 to $130, Gusky Oil 5 to $74, Texasgulf 5 to $40 and Inter-City Gas 4½ to $16½.

MTS International fell 15 cents to 85 cents, Bank of B.C. 1¼ to $27¼, Canada Permanent Mortgage ¼ to $15½, Petrofina Canada ¼ to $46 and Union Gas A ¼ to $10⅝.

McIntyre Mines rose 6 to $53, Dome Mines 4 to $65 and Brenda Mines 3½ to $24½. Patino N. V. lost 1 to $26 and Chimo Gold Mines 45 cents to $2.05.

Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange as gains outnumbered losses two to one. Volume at 11 a.m. PST was 2,954,885 shares.

Of the stocks that traded, 245 advanced, 106 declined and 125 remained steady.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials and gained .40 to $7 on 102,300 shares. Keg Restaurants was steady at $1.40 on 3,900, National Trust Co. remained unchanged at .35 on 2,000 and Adera Financial rose .05 to .45 on 2,000. Renn Industries remained steady at $1.65 and Computrex Centres gained .01½ to .18½.

Anglo-Bomarc Mines led industrial traders and rose .05 to $2.65 on 43,100 shares. Thunderwood Explorations advanced .15 to .92 on 33,900, New Frontier Explorations gained .75 to $5.35 on 33,350, Silver Standard gained .19 to $1.44 on 33,100 and United MacFie Mines dropped .05 to $2.75.

Logan Mines Ltd. led traders on the curb exchange, and dropped .01 to .91 on 37,000 shares. Beach Gold Mines gained .12 to .80 on 27,200, Tagus Resources rose .31 to $1.56 on 25,700 and Mackenzie Energy gained .16 to .96 on 21,600. Samson Energy Corp. advanced .08 to .93 and Neptune Resources gained .05 to $1.30.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices surged ahead in busy trading, recovering sharply as Wall Street leaders and government officials began examining the jolt late Thursday from a collapse in silver prices.

The wild gyrations Thursday prompted Securities and Exchange Commission Chairman Harold Williams to go to the New York Stock Exchange today for an emergency meeting with leaders of the NYSE. The SEC Thursday halted trading in securities of Bache Group, a major brokerage house that had large loans outstanding for silver purchases by the wealthy Hunt family of Texas. Those loans were jeapodized when the price of silver plunged.

The upward movement in prices was broad-based, but was particularly felt by the independent oil and precious metals issues. The gains came as Citibank and First National Bank of Chicago announced they had increased their prime lending rate by one-quarter point to 19¼ per cent.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — The London stock market was mixed near the close of trading.

The Financial Times Index of 30 industrials closed at 421.5, down 1.6.

Industrials and banks declined while golds and oils were mixed.

Canadian stocks were mixed.

Useful over-the-bed shelves

By PAULINE GRAVES

Here is a bedroom by interior designer Carole Eichen. The most unusual feature of the room is the shelf structure at the head of the bed. Not a furniture piece, as are most headboards, this brings architectural detailing into the room. Thanks to a mirror behind every opening, the structure has considerable depth.

Because of the high ceiling, the shelves, which rise six feet above the bed, are in good scale with the room, and the height is balanced by 22-inch high bookcases that extend out on each side from the bed to the adjacent walls. The depth of bookcases and headboard shelves is 13-inches. They are made of 1-inch thick wood with ½ by 2-inch facing over the front edges to give a substantial look to the overall design.

The irregular sizes and shapes of the openings are totally decorative, made more so by the plants and the objects displayed in each niche. In addition to the lamps on each side, a flourescent tube extending across the top provides reading light unobtrusively, concealed as it is in a six-inch box that is attached to the top front header.

A deterrent to the attractive appearance of any lamp is the length of cord that can be seen looping around under the table. In this bedroom the lamp cord travels through a small hole drilled in the bookcase top and continues down to the wall outlet where it cannot be seen.

NOW YOU KNOW

Attic vents, bath touch-up

Q. We want to install adequate venting in our new home. What is the best type of vent to use for the attic?

A. You cannot really over-vent an attic. The air inside the attic should be the same temperature as the air outside or close to it. If it is more than 5 deg. C warmer inside the Attic than it is outside on a calm day you could have condensation problems especially in older homes. I highly recommend continuous soffit or eave venting as well as adequate ventilation on the roof. The best way to obtain this is to install continuous ridge venting. This continuous ridge vent is installed when the house is being built and before the shingles are put on. It can however be installed in an existing house. It provides a continuous vent for warm air collecting near the peak. It also looks much better than a number of smaller roof vents mounted on the whole roof. The combination is necessary to allow air circulation through the attic. Soffit vents in themselves will not provide enough ventilation in this area of the country. The only way air moves through an attic with soffet or eave vents only is when there is a side wind pressure. Usually on cold days there is less wind, so therefore a lack of air circulation in the attic. That's why it is necessary to install enough ventilation. In the Victoria area you should install 1 sq. ft. of venting for every 200 sq. ft. of attic space. This is considerably more venting than is required by the National Building Code. However the National Building Code requirements are not adequate for this area of the country. Vents are made from aluminum or vinyl. If you are using a roof vent, get the type that has a pipe extending up underneath a hood that makes it practically impossible for snow to get in. It also has a screen on the end of the pipe for preventing bugs and birds from getting into your attic. This is also true of the continuous ridge venting. It is made in such a way that snow can't drift in and the bugs can't get in. Remember that if you have soffit or eave ventilation you have to make sure that the area between the rafter is not plugged up so that the air can get over the insulation and into the attic.

Q. I was reading in a publication from the United States that there is a vent tube for the attic that is made from plastic and it has a bunch of holes in it, much like weeping tile. It can be shoved in between the rafters to allow air to come up from the eave area into the attic. I haven't been able to find anything like this in the Victoria area. Is there something similar available here that would do the job.?

A. Unfortunately I have not been able to locate that particular item anywhere in Canada. But there are a number of different ways that you can assure that you get air into the attic through the soffet or eave vents. There are cardboard chutes made from a wax-coated cardboard. They simply are folded together and stuck inbetween the rafters to provide air to the attic. This also acts as an insulation stop to prevent insulation from gettin into the soffet or eavespace where it doesn't do any good. Also if you have used cardboard tubes, they could be inserted between the rafters to let air up. Actually anything could be used really to allow air to come up into the attic from the eaves. Some people make their own air chutes using plywood and strips nailed to the side of the rafters. The important thing is that you need a lot of ventilation in the attic and this is the only way that it can be assured.

Q. We have chipped our bathtub and want to know if there is any powder on the market that we could mix to repair the chip so that it doesn't show?

A. Not that I know of. There are some epoxies that work quiet well but the problem is matching the color. If you could go to the company that made the bathtub in the first place you may get the same color of touch-up paint. However if the bathtub is quite old that won't work because the color could have been changed a number of times since then.

(Editor's note: Plumbing supply stores sell touch-up enamel for bathtubs in several basic shades.)

There are commercial tub refinishers in this area, but usually it costs well over $100 to have it done. Some homeowers feel that this is a little high but when you consider the cost of a new tub plus the removal of the existing tub and installing a new one with all the wall repairs, etc. it isn't a bad idea. If there are two or more refinishers in your area, always get more than one price and make sure that the total price is written down on a contract and not simply an estimate. Also the guarantee should be spelled out in full.

Work plus know-how = new chair

FIXING IT UP

Remember that beautiful, but battered chair you saw at a flea market or garage sale at that ridiculously low price? You probably didn't buy it because you had no idea as to how to restore it to serviceable and attractive life.

Well, it's easier than you think. What's required is some time, a little know-how, and the right materials, including some wood glue, wood filler and a bright coating or two of paint.

First check what has to be done, so you can gather the right tools and materials. Chances are the chair has a loose rung or leg and some nicks and cracks. For these, products like Elmer's professional carpenter's wood filler and wood glue are ideal. If the seat is removable, buy a half yard of fabric or vinyl to blend with the paint color you've chosen.

Remove the old finish simply by using an electric sander. If the finish is stubborn, apply paint and varnish stripper. When surface begins to have a gummy consistency, (wearing rubber gloves) use a paint scraper to scrape everything off. Repeat several times if necessary.

Allow to dry thoroughly. Now, reglue any loose joints. If possible, don't remove them. Scrape off the old glue around the holes carefully, then apply wood glue generously, allowing it to run into the hole. Wipe off excess.

REJUVENATE THAT OLD CHAIR. Start with a thorough cleaning, then reglue loose parts and fill in nicks and cracks with a professional wood filler. Sand the entire chair thoroughly before spraying with enamel in the color of your choice. Recover the seat in a gay fabric and that old reject suddenly has new life.

Next, fill all nicks, chips and hairline cracks with the wood filer, molding with fingers as you work. Scrape off excess and sand smooth when dry.

Before refinishing, the entire chair should be sanded thoroughly several times, wiping dust with rags and a soft, moistened sponge each time.

Finally, carefully paint the chair with a high gloss enamel. It's a good idea to test color and your motion on a scrap of wood or the underside of the chair.

Recover seat and replace, using fresh screws or small, tack nails and glue as needed. If screws don't hold in holes, fill holes with wood filler. Allow to dry 24 hours and then screw seat in place.

Solar heated water cheap to install

It costs less than $1,500 for a solar installation that will give you up to 75% of your domestic hot water. This figure holds, says Gil Parker of Ark Solar Products, whether you're talking about a new house or an old one.

A solar space heat system costs more; between ten and twelve thousand for a system that will produce 60% to 70% of house heat, which, experts think, will pay for itself in less than ten years if the cost of oil rises at the present rate. Oil costs 17% more today than it did three years ago.

Patterns now coordinate

By ANNE SWANNELL

Wallpaper can be a room-expander, a space-divider, an area-definer. But nothing looks worse than a whole lot of different, untied-in patterns all visible at once, as is often the case when the house has an open floor plan, or even when doors are open in a house with a formal room arrangement.

For those who are attracted naturally to patterns and who like the statement a patterned wall can make (with the ensuing ease of choosing accessory colors from the cue the wallcovering gives), the busyness of too many patterns in a house can be a decorating problem.

Wallpaper companies have come up with the solution. "Companion patterns" are now available, so that attached or adjoining rooms can all be wall-papered, giving home decorators class without clash.

Coordination sometimes comes from different sizes of one pattern. Sometimes it comes from a small all-over motif used in one room, as in the hall in the above photo, and the same motif over-printed with another used in an adjoining room, as in the dining room of the above photo. Small motif is used again in the living room, with a coordinating stripe above it. All three rooms are different patterns, yet they look comfortable together because the patterns are designed to go together, and the colors match perfectly.

Test your taste in wallcoverings

Here's a simple quiz about you and your life-style designed to help you choose suitable wall-coverings for your kitchen and bath. Check your answers, see which group you belong to and read on for new decorating ideas.

1. My home is: (a) Old and rambling (b) A small apartment (c) A typical family home.

2. Its rooms are: (a) Huge (b) Small (c) Unremarkable in size.

3. Our family is made up of: (a) Kids in all sizes (b) Just the two of us (c) Adolescents — and the rest of the neighbourhood.

4. We're into: (a) Board games (b) Travel (c) Watching sports on TV.

5. We're also into: (a) Little league (b) Personal fitness (c) Competitive sports.

6. We're big on: (a) Homemade cookies and pickles (b) The latest restaurants (c) Sunday brunch with the family.

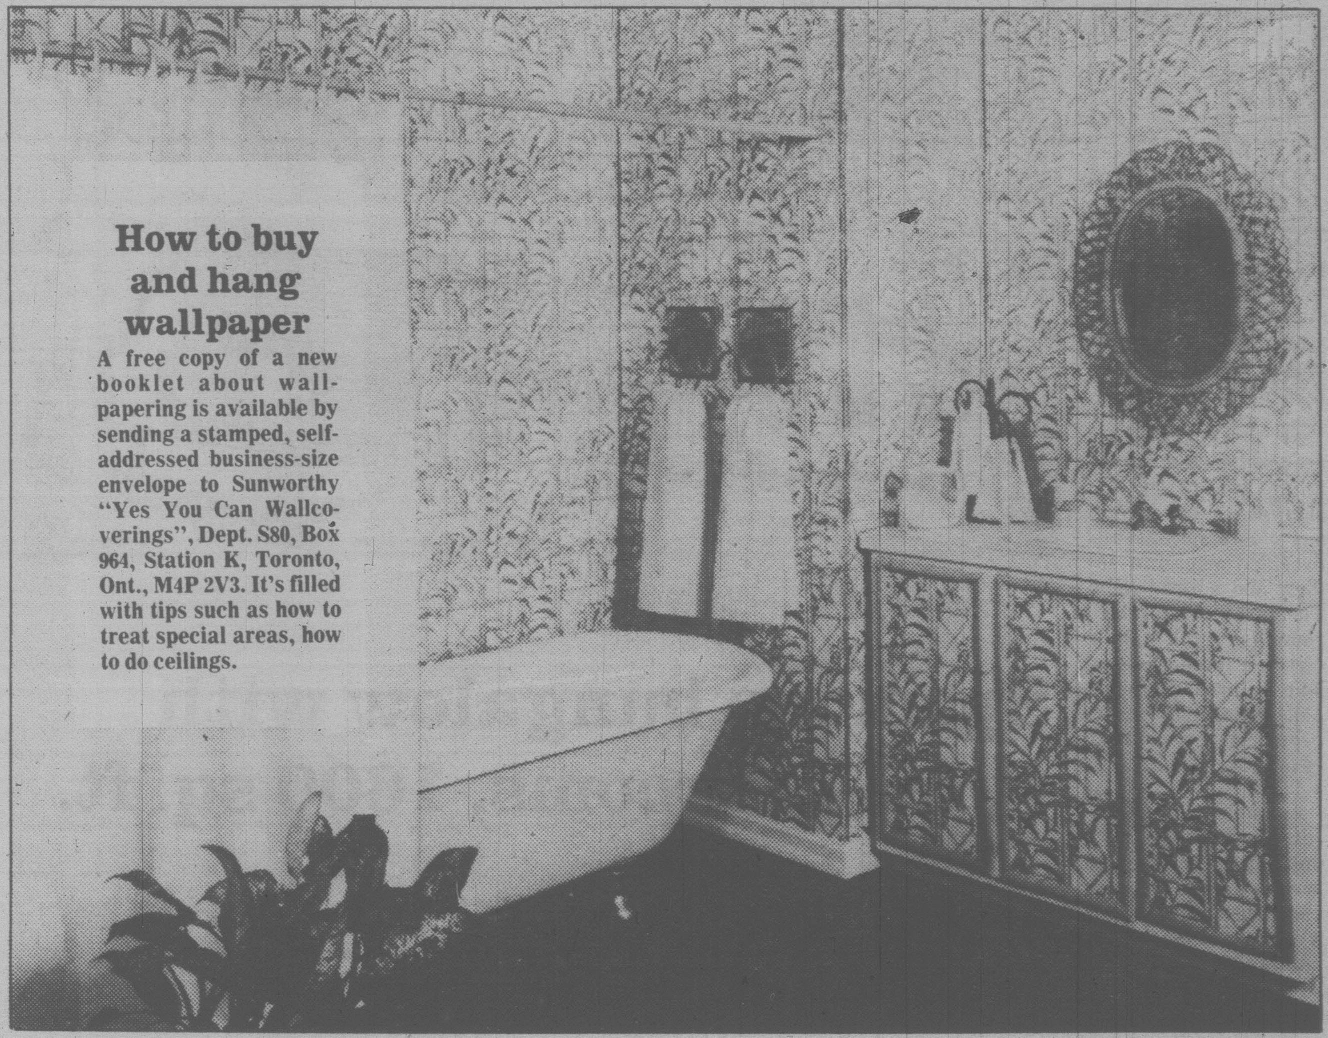
You sense the long tradition behind flowered wallcoverings and climbing foliage; you appreciate symmetry, balance. Combine them with stripes to give contemporary freshness to the garden on your walls. Sunworthy Design and Color Consultant, Mary Prud'homme says: "You'd probably like meadow flowers, provincial stripes, like those in the photo above. They're stain-resistant, tough and scrubbable."

Most of your answers in the B group? It's an elegant life — or can be. But while you like the freedom you get from superior modern surfaces like stainless steel, transluscent plastic, you also like the sophistication that natural textures add to these materials — the 'reality' of wicker, straw, marble, natural woods. Mary Prud'homme notes "You'd probably like Sunworthy's 'Queensbury' (opposite page, bottom) in your kitchen. Its formality suits your urban soul, the flowers on which the pattern is based agree with the natural fibres and surfaces you choose in accessories. 'Mayan' with a palm and bamboo design for the bath supports the theme. These are also dry-strippable, in case you decide to change the mood in mid-stream.

Most of your answers in the C group? A cheerful and sensible mixing of styles suits the up-and-down drama of modern family life. A broad variety of activities and personalities needs expression in most homes. Mary Prud'homme says: "You'd probably like "Patio" (not shown) with its pots of flowers and companion gingham "Patio Check", in the kitchen — pots of flowers for the earth mother in you, gingham for the girl in the house — or in you. "Island Magic" in the bath is a waterscape with traditional sea flowers, contemporary fantasy.



How to buy and hang wallpaper

A free copy of a new booklet about wallpapering is available by sending a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to Sunworthy "Yes You Can Wallcoverings", Dept. S80, Box 964, Station K, Toronto, Ont., M4P 2V3. It's filled with tips such as how to treat special areas, how to do ceilings.

Murals

Murals, or scenics as they are often referred to, have been a part of home decorating in one form or another ever since man drew on the walls of caves. Egyptian tomb paintings were also a form of mural, as were Medieval tapestries.

Wall murals today are executed in a variety of materials, but by far the most common are murals which can be applied to your walls as easily as regular wallcoverings. They usually have all the practical qualities of today's wallcoverings, too.

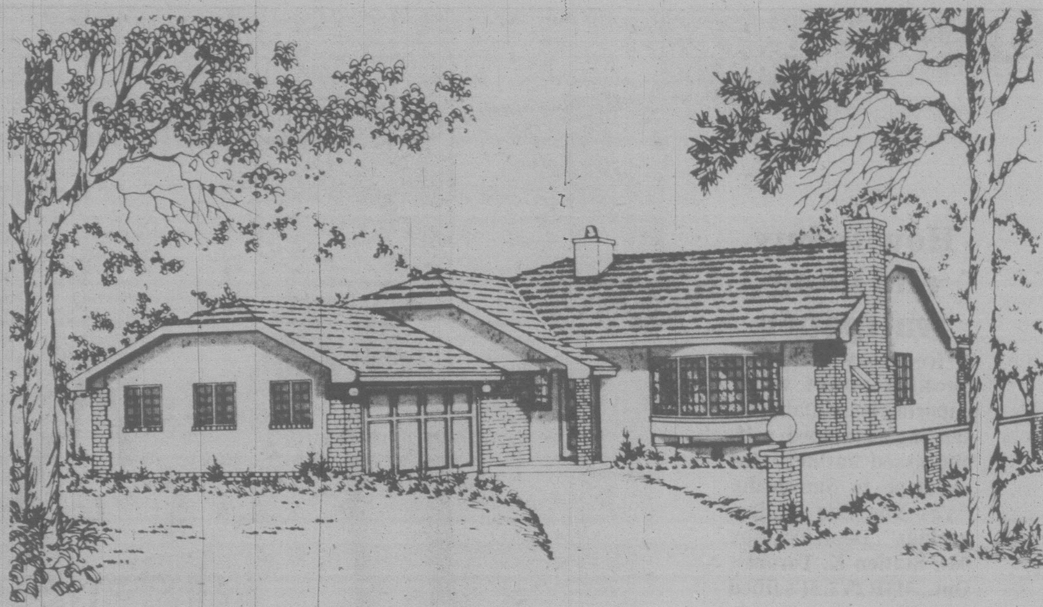
Once thought of as totally traditional in character - architectural renditions of ancient Egypt, Crate, Pompeii - wallcovering murals today are totally diversified, including simple modernistic designs, peaceful country scenes, natural photographic looks - even designs in metallics.

The very newest wallcovering murals have an added plus in that they come with companion patterns. These add tremendously to the decorative scope of a mural. With companion patterns, it is possible to feature a mural on one wall, with a companion wallcovering either on the other walls in the same room, or in adjoining rooms. This can create a very exciting and well-integrated decorating scheme.

An interesting way to use a mural and companion pattern in a bedroom would be to use the mural behind the bed, set into an alcove with a companion pattern around it. Alternatively, where no alcove exists, frame the mural with molding or ribbon, or simply take it across the whole wall. Then use a companion pattern on the other walls.

One area where murals have always been popular is in a hall or small foyer. With the addition of a companion pattern, you can continue the effect up the stairs or into rooms which lead off the hallway.

PLAN OF THE WEEK



Spacious bungalow with three bedrooms, 1600 sq. ft.

This luxurious three bedroom bungalow design is ideally suited to the medium frontage residential building lot and provides 1,600 square feet of finished floor space for the family which requires spaciousness and convenience at every turn. The mixed stucco and brick veneer accents of the exterior, combined with the brick chimney, bow window and heavy shake roof, lend the impression of a palatial Florida mansion, suggesting luxury and solidity.

The weather-protected entry leads into a spacious reception foyer, which contains a generous outerwear storage closet and a two-piece vanity bathroom. From the foyer, traffic moves naturally to the right, into the large L-shape living-dining room combination. The living room features a wide bow window and a cantilevered-hearth masonry fireplace. The dining area has adequate space for the installation of a full dining room suite and a china hutch. It separates from the kitchen via convenient pocket door for ease of access when serving guests, and occasional privacy.

The well-planned L-shape kitchen has a logical work triangle configuration, ample countertop work surface and abundant cupboard storage facilities. The position of the kitchen midway between the dinette-family room and the formal dining room provides for excellent separation of formal dining when entertaining and more relaxed family meals.

A large family room and dinette combination connects to the rear-facing patio via sliding glass doors, for easy access to outdoor dining in fine weather.

A conveniently central laundry-utility room, with a side-by-side configuration of washer and dryer, makes chore day minimally time-consuming.

All three bedrooms are positioned to the extreme left of the design. Each has generous closet storage and excellent exposure for view and natural light. The large master bedroom has a full walk-in closet, a three-piece ensuite bathroom with tub, and sliding glass doors providing access to the rear patio.

A double enclosed garage and generous indoor luggage storage area complete the convenience features of this well-appointed and practical design.

Plans for design No. 80-1600 may be purchased either by the single set, at a cost of $85.00 for the first set, and $14.00 for each additional set, or by the package. A five-set plan package, including the first set, is economically priced at $120.00 and an eight-set package, also including the first set, is only $150.00.

Whichever method you choose, please include $5.00 for postage and handling. B.C. residents add 4 per cent sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs magazine, Series 44, featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas, plus 320 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.75 ($2.00 plus .75 cents postage and handling).

To order any of these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, 382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C., V5Y 1½2.

Artistic teen builds his own $1,000 home

By DEBORAH HAND

Recently, Nicky Koenig found that his mother's house was not big enough. So he built his own--for only $1,000.

The little square structure with a cupola is on a mountaintop near Santa Cruz, in California.

The house has only one room, which Koenig divided into specific areas--library, living room, kitchen, corner for his collections, loft bed and a studio for his artwork.

"I didn't really want to build a house," said Koenig, who is 18. "I just wanted a place to draw."

Until he was 15, Koenig's life centered around sports.

"I thought I was going to be a ski racer," he said. "Then, all of a sudden, I knew I was going to be an artist. I realized I had something I really liked to do and was good at."

Koenig lives with his mother on a hilltop apple farm and he discovered that there was no room for a studio in the house. So he built his own about 25 yards away.

Koenig built his house "intuitively," he said, even though every detail looks meticulously thought out. Far from just nailing the boards together, he created patterns with different colored wood. In the process, he said, "I completely wore out a guaranteed-for-life electric scroll saw."

He "rummaged around" to find materials. He cut his own lumber from redwoods that had fallen on a friend's property. The flooring came from a house that was being demolished.

He put used windows of different sizes together to create new shapes and hung prisms in them to cast rainbow patterns around the room.

He designed the house with possessions in mind, and there is a place for everything--except his one suit. That simply hangs off the end of his bed.

One low shelf holds nearly 500 comic books. Pull out any one of them and Koenig can tell you the artist by the style of drawing.

It was from the comic books, he said, that he learned perspective and figure drawing.

Although Koenig plans to be a sculptor rather than an architect, he said he learned enough from building this house to be able to build a big one.

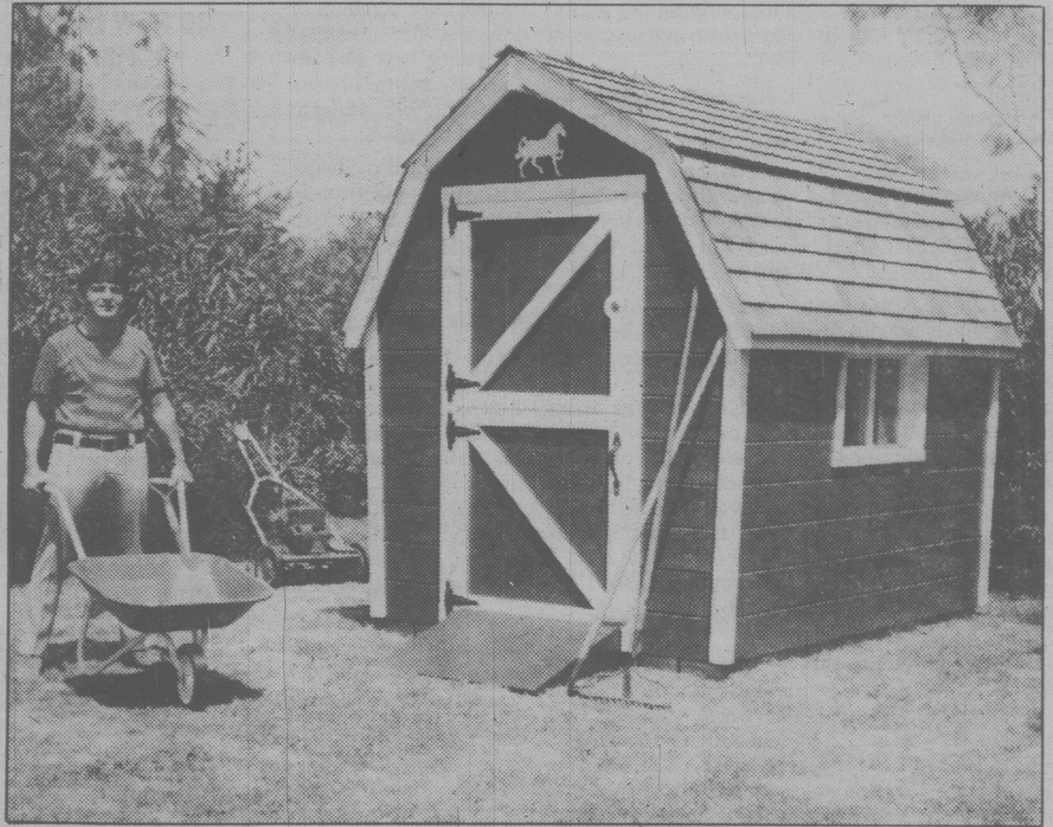
Shed your garden storage problems: style plus savings



By Steve Ellingson

Garaging a car these days is complicated by the fallacy that there's always room for one mower. If your home has the storage blues, today's project is the best tonic you could ask for. The handsome little red barn shown here has dozens of uses in addition to being a storage shed for garden tools. It's quite possible that your youngsters are at the age where they need a playhouse, if so . . . they'll love this barn. Or, you may wish to use it for a workshop. Gardeners find that it makes an excellent potting shed. You couldn't find a more suitable garage for motorcycles or garden tractors. If it rains, here's shelter for your outdoor furniture.

Other applications are limited only by your imagination.

The dimensions of the barn pictured are 6 ft. x 8 ft. x 8 ft. which is suitable for most purposes. If, however, you need something larger you can easily alter the plans to take care of the extra size. The plan for building the barn gives complete and easy-to-follow step-by-step directions along with photos showing the various stages of construction. A list of needed materials is included.

To obtain the easy-to-follow barn pattern number 461, send $3.50 (please add fifty cents extra for postage and handling) by cheque or money order to:
U-Bild Patterns, Box 100, Cote St. Luc, Montreal, Quebec, H4V 2Y3.

Books, pens, violins, and millefiore explained

By JOHN HEARN

Richard De Laat of Surrey, asks about a book bought at a farm sale recently. It is the Complete Works of Aristotle, dated London, 1779.

Nothing is said about the condition or binding of this book which, in this instance, is the only thing that matters. It is over 2000 years away from being a First Edition and the contents, therefore, are in no way different from what you will read in a modern paperback edition. If it is leather-bound, hand-tooled, suitably engraved, then it is bound to be worth something but there will be many books published this century worth a whole lot more. Age has very little to do with it.

I sometimes wonder how eldery writers feel when they learn that first editions of their own works, published maybe half a century ago, are now fetching the kind of money they needed to keep body and soul together at the time they were writing those books; not only that but they are being bought now by collectors, not for the wisdom of the writer but because the collector's market indicates that they are a good buy. If the wisdom of the writer was any criterion then Mr. De Laat's Aristotle would be worth far more than it is.

Paul Zimmerman of Grimsby, Ont., makes me feel old by sending a photograph of an old 'mangle' and asks what it might have been used for — back then in the olden days.

The gadget has an enormous cast-iron wheel turned by a handle, which rotates two wooden rollers through which, as anyone over the age of fifty will remember all too well, one passed the weekly wash in order to squeeze out excess water before drying. Marvellously ugly things and not, I think, collectors items — at least not yet.

Frank Proto, of 4214 117 St., Edmonton, Alta. T6J 1T7, writes to thank me for my recent plug for the hobby of pen-collecting. "I would be pleased," he says, "to provide all the advice and guidance I can to new collectors. Canadian-made pens differ slightly from those made in the U.S.A., and I can assist in helping to date most Canadian pens. I am currently trying to organize a Canadian Pen Collector's Club and would be anxious to hear from your readers. I would be glad to provide free advice and appraisals for members."

Under the heading of 'questions most frequently asked' comes one from Mrs. Alice Whitfield of Alix, Alta., who inquires about the possible value of a violin marked Antonius Stratovarious 1731-36. The last time I wrote about this I said that by now, all the world's Stradivarius violins are accounted for and the chance of some hitherto undiscovered Strad turning up in a Canadian attic are precisely nil. This brought an angry letter of rebuttal from a reader but the music world has still not been rocked by any such discovery.

What happened was that in the early part of this century, enterprising German violinmakers turned out huge numbers of instruments all marked with faded yellow labels carrying all kinds of ingenious misspellings of the great Strad. They were offered (I believe at $10 each) in Sears catalogue. No one pretended they were authentic and I understand that they were very good instruments for the money — but not, alas, $50,000.

R. D. Johns of Toronto asks the meaning of the word 'millefiori' as applied to glass.

Millefiori glass is made by taking large numbers of multi-colored glass rods, fusing them together and cutting a section right through them. The effect when expanded in a blown glass is rather like cutting through liquorice allsorts. The word millefiori means 'a thousand flowers.'

Readers' letters should be addressed to Collector's Item, c-o Homes Today, R.R. 1, Lowbanks, Ont. N0A 1K0.

Eberts Street

Eberts Street was named for the Hon. David MacEwen Eberts, K.C., who came to Victoria from Ontario in the 1870's. Mr. Eberts was called to the B.C. bar in 1880, and in 1892 was created Queen's Counsel and a Bencher of the Law Society.

A clever campaigner, his skill in handling hecklers was both amiable and adroit. Eberts became Attorney General of B.C. in 1895, holding the office for three years at that time, and on his reappointment in 1900 he again held office for three years, having held the position in the Turner, Dunsmuir and Prior administrations. He was Speaker of the Legislative Assembly from 1907 until 1916.

In 1917 Mr. Eberts went to the bench, which office he filled until his death in 1924.

Victoria, B. C.

Dear Mr. Sidaway:

I felt that I would like to let you know how extremely pleased I am with the tremendous response that is received from both the general public, and my colleagues, whenever I advertise in Homes Today: Such exposure produces the desired results, from the point of view of both Vendors and Purchasers, regarding the properties involved.

You may rest assured I shall continue to use this medium to advertise future listings.

My sincere thanks to you,

Sincerely,

Birds of pay flying

A special one-hour documentary entitled Birds of Pay, to be telecast on CBC-TV Monday at 10 p.m., shows the fabulous growth now taking place in the U.S. of both cable and Pay TV and the effects, present and future, on Canadian television.

Appearing on the program are CBC president A. W. Johnson and Vice President and General Manager Peter Herrndorf.

Also taking part in the discussions will be Ted Rogers of Rogers Telecommunications; Jerry Levin of Time-Life; Ted Turner of Atlanta and Cable News Network; and Issy Asper of Global Television.
